NATIONS' LEAGUE SEES LAST ARMS PROP FALL

DISARMAMENT IS LOST CAUSE NOW REALIZED

May Seek Halt in Wild Race—Britain May Act Alone

By JOSEPH E. SHARKEY
Associated Press Foreign Staff

GENEVA, March 27. — The League of Nations, realizing the reduction of armaments is apparently a lost cause, intends to concentrate on the next best thing: an agreement to limit the armaments of nations to their present level and prevent a wild armaments race.

Arthur Henderson, president of the disarmament conference, expects to call the steering committee into session April 10. It was considered possible the committee will summon either a general conference of interested followers or, at least, a general commission to study the disarmament question.

League circles have been given to believe the British are contemplating a separate treaty on aviation as an ace card in the disarmament poker game in the hope eventually a general arms convention may yet be arranged with Germany a participant in the pact.

League circles, however, fear France may not even sign the limitation treaty visualized as a last hope unless she obtains the promise of sanctions—that is, the certainty pressure would be imposed upon any nation violating a convention of the league.

Dr. Guiseppe Motta, former president of Switzerland and former president of the League of Nations assembly, said the attitude of Russia toward the League of Nations had changed totally. This was interpreted in league circles are meaning Switzerland would not oppose Soviet membership in the league.

WHEAT BILL MEETS STRONG OPPOSITION

Sets Up Board With Autocratic, Dangerous Powers, Claim

Charging that the bill to control and market wheat now before the legislature meant establishment of a compulsory pool and that it created a wheat board with dangerous and autocratic powers, Hugh J. Montgomery, Liberal, Wetaskiwin, in the legislature on Monday night voiced strong opposition to giving second reading to the measure on the ground that it was impracticable and discriminatory.

Discussion of this bill occupied the entire Monday night sitting and was still unfinished when the house rose.

Mr. Montgomery was followed on the floor by Col. F. C. Jamieson, V.D., K.C., Conservative, Edmonton; F. S. Grisdale, U.F.A., Olds; A. M. Matheson, U.F.A., Vegreville, and P. J. Enzenauer, U.F.A., Alexandra.

Debate was adjourned by W. Harry Ross, Liberal, Calgary.

"What right has Premier Brownlee to speak on behalf of the Alberta farmers and ask for this control?" demanded Mr. Montgomery.

"If he would put the need of re-

Net Tightens On Brother Ex-Magnates

Two fugitive brothers wage a losing battle to escape U. S. prosecution in the crash of their utility empire. Samuel Insull, above, aboard a Greek ship, frantically seeks a haven from U. S. law, beset by abduction fears as he flees. Extradition of Martin Insull, below, has been upheld by the high Canadian court.

INSULL DICKERS FOR NEW DEAL

LONDON, March 27.—Samuel Insull, through his lawyers, is negotiating with five countries which reportedly are willing to give him refuge, and he is now waiting in the Mediterranean to hear what country will allow him to land, the Daily Mail's Atnens correspondent reported tonight.

The foreign office announced, meanwhile, the application of Mrs. Insull for a British visa will be denied.

Officers Arrive For Martin Insull

TORONTO, March 27. — Lieut. Frank Johnson of the Chicago city police and Lawrence Ryan of the Illinois State attorney's office arrived in Toronto today to take Martin J. Insull back to Cook county to face a larceny-embezzlement indictment.

Gauge of Federal Election Battle Thrown Down by Mackenzie King in Scathing Speech.

By THOS. WAYLING
Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, March 27—The gauge of federal election battle was thrown down in the commons yesterday by Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberal opposition, in a scathing indictment of the government's failure, and worse than failure, to deal with the unemployment relief situation.

After four years the government which had promised to end unemployment had nothing to offer but a continuance of the dole. There was nothing on the government's record as to what it achieved save $110,000,000 spent and another $52,000,000 advanced in loans and guarantees and it didn't even know how many unemployed there were and how the monies were being spent.

"There has been no national policy of any kind with respect to relief," charged Mr. King. "There has been no national recovery plan; no commission has been operating; no plan for the unemployment insurance problem of the future. There has been nothing but this vast expenditure and vast waste."

The Liberal leader read proof after proof from the auditor general's report of money mis-spent and mis-appropriated; and the Dominion treasury pilfered by provinces and municipalities charging to the general government items of their own expenditure. One favorite stunt was to charge the provincial gasoline taxes to federal account. One city charged $18,000 of university equipment.

But for the opposition leader's

RELIEF FOOD DOLE SYSTEM NOW IN CASH

Ald Margaret Crang's Motion Finally Adopted by Council

By a majority vote, city council Monday night supported Ald. Margaret Crang's motion that effective May 1 the city pay its one-third share of relief food allowances in cash.

Miss Crang argued that council had communicated its desire for a cash payment to the provincial government some time ago and that no action had been taken by the latter body. The time had come to make a stand for the payment of the city's share of food allowances in cash, at least.

No reply had been received to the city's proposal to the province, and he for one was certainly not in favor of paying the one-third contribution in cash until the other two governments agreed to continue with their two-thirds contribution, declared Mayor D. K. Knott.

He called to the attention of council that the cash system had been tried out in Montreal with bad results. The Dominion government had refused to pay certain charges because of the city's actio in paying relief by cheque rather than by coupon. Even Edmonton had lost

STOCK SEATS HIT NEW LOW

NEW YORK, March 27. — New York Stock Exchange seat prices slumped today as Wall Street learned of President Roosevelt's demand for a United States stock trading regulation bill "with teeth." Three memberships sold at the market's opening, at $100,000, $85,000 and $83,000. The previous sale was at $112,000.

NAVAL BILL IS GIVEN ASSENT

WASHINGTON, March 27.—President Roosevelt today proposed further reductions in naval strength in the 1935 disarmament parley as he signed the bill authorizing construction of the United States navy up to existing treaty strength.

MOTHER AND 6 CHILDREN DIE IN HOME FIRE

Coal Oil Explosion Sets House Aflame—Two Are in Hospital

BOWSMAN, Man., March 27.—Mrs. Philip T. Gillespie and six of her seven children were burned to death here today when fire, originating from a coal oil explosion, razed their farm home. Bowsman is a small hamlet 250 miles north west of Winnipeg, near the Saskatchewan boundary.

The dead: Mrs. Phillip Gillespie, 34; her three boys, Donald, 13, Beverley, 5, and Desmond, 18 months; and three girls, Dorothy, 11, Audrey, 9, and Phyllis, 3.

In addition the second oldest Gillespie boy, Coleman, 15, and Phillip Gillespie, husband and father, are in Swan River hospital suffering from burns on the face and body. The boy's burns are quite serious.

Fire started in the main downstairs room of the two-storey frame farm dwelling. Two fires were burning in the building, and Mr. Gillespie used coal oil to hasten ignition in the main room heater. The can exploded and in a minute the wooden building was a blazing inferno.

Mr. Gillespie was forced to smash his way through a window of the flaming house carrying Coleman to safety. Both were burned in making their escape while the mother and her six children were trapped on the second storey.

Neighbors rushed to the scene and attempted to rescue the trapped residents by placing a ladder against the upstairs window, but the searing flames drove them back.

The charred remains of the mother and her six children were found in the debris. Hospital authorities held out hope for the recovery of Coleman, while Mr. Gillespie's injuries are only superficial. Pending investigation by Coroner Dr. E. G. Bruce, of Swan River, the bodies are in the hands of Royal Canadian Mounted Police here.

FACTORY FIRE KILLS 2 GIRLS

LODZ, Poland, March 27.—Two girl workers, trapped by iron window bars which made a flaming torture chamber of second floor rooms, definitely were listed as dead today in a fire which destroyed the Wiener Textile factory.

No remains of the two were found, however, as the ruins left by Monday's flames were searched.

M. Lajbowicz, brother-in-law of the factory owner, jumped into the fire in despair and perished.

KILLING MARKS CITY ELECTION

KANSAS CITY, March 26.—One killing, numerous sluggings and other disorders marked the hotly contested municipal election here today between the powerful Democratic organization and the Citizens-Fusionist ticket.

William Findley, a Negro election worker, was shot and killed in a polling place. He was reported to have been struck by a bullet intended for a Republican election judge.

Douglas Gregg, another Democratic worker, was reported badly beaten.

SPY ARRESTS ARE IN SIGHT

PARIS, March 27.—More arrests in the international spy ring case were foreshadowed today as investigators followed up information given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Switz of East Orange, N.J., and New York.

Switz was questioned again Monday after he and his wife, the former Marjorie Tilley, were permitted to talk freely together for the first time since they were arrested in connection with the alleged spy plot in December.

Investigating Judge Andre Benon declared the inquiry was succeeding beyond his "fondest dreams."

$10,000 Nasturtium Seeks Many Suns

Speaking of plants that have speeded up production since a year ago, don't forget the double hybrid nasturtium that pretty Louise Estes is shown admiring at the International Flower Show in New York. This specimen, worth $10,000, was produced in 11 months instead of the usual three years by transporting the growing plant by plane from Philadelphia to Buenos Aires, to Puerto Rico—wherever the sun was shining.

Kidnap Thug Duo Snatch Two Men And Steal $15,000

Daring Bandits Make Their Escape in Stolen Auto of Merchants

MONTREAL, March 27.—Two daring bandits Monday kidnapped two officials of Tousignant and Freres, provision merchants, drove them to a deserted spot and released them after securing $15,000 in cash the men were taking to a bank. The bandits escaped in the firm's automobile and were still at large last night.

Lazare Tousignant and Donat Prevost, employes of the company, were driving to their bank, taking a short cut through a lane, when suddenly a large car swung in front of them, forcing the merchants' car to halt.

DRIVE TO OUTSKIRTS

Two men jumped from the bandit car, pointing revolvers. They forced their victims to drive far to the northeast of the city, in the outskirts of Rosemount Ward where a brown paper parcel containing the $15,000 exchanged hands at revolver point. Their automobile taken by the thieves, Tousignant and Prevost made for the nearest telephone and spread the alarm.

Hesitation on their part to comply right away with the orders of the bandits to "keep your mouths shut and climb into the rear seat," brought the muzzles of revolvers against their ribs, Tousignant and Prevost told the police of the Rosemount station. They only reached the station after a walk of half an hour from the spot at which they

VETERANS TO SEEK ACTUAL PENSION VIEW

Government's Intentions Asked in Showdown With Premier

OTTAWA, March 27.—A positive declaration from the government as to its intention in regard to the security of pensioners and the maintenance of basic rates of pension, including hospital allowances, was sought today when Brigadier General Alex Ross, C.M.G., of Yorkton, Sask., Dominion president of the Canadian Legion, interviewed Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and his cabinet. Accompanying General Ross were Colonel George Drew of Toronto, second vice-president, and J. R. Bowler, general secretary.

URGE REORGANIZING

The veterans' leaders also urged a reorganization of the Canadian Pension Commission in such a manner as to "remove any suggestion that it is dominated by personnel of the old Board of Pension Commissioners."

More pensions were not being asked, General Ross emphasized. "We are only asking that, as far as it is humanly possible, applicants for pension shall be satisfied of the fairness of the commission adjudicating upon their claims, and that they have had a fair hearing."

LEGION TO AID

General Ross presented other matters of urgent importance, among them that of unemployment.

"It should be quite clear," he said, "that it is the earnest desire of the Canadian Legion, if the difficulties in connection with pensions can be eliminated, to direct its attention particularly to the assistance of the non-pensioner, many of whom are in great need and equally deserving of the assistance which we have heretofore accorded to the pensioner.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Several leading steel producers are considering an increase in wages, probably of 10 per cent, it was reliably reported in Wall Street today, and an announcement is expected through the Iron and Steel Institute tomorrow.

HUDSON'S BAY SHOWS PROFITS

LONDON, March 27.—The Hudson's Bay Company today reported a net profit of £28,755 (about $144,000) on the past year's operations compared with large deficits in the past three years. It is proposed to carry the amount forward.

The profit compares with losses of £761,000 in 1930, £465,000 in 1931, and £52,000 in 1932.

Nickel Concern Has Increased Employees 3,643

TORONTO, March 27.—The International Nickel Company of Canada, Ltd., had 3,643 more men employed at the end of December 1933 than at the end of 1932, Robert G. Stanley, president, told shareholders at the company's annual meeting here today. The increased wage bill in Canada alone, Mr. Stanley said, was about $4,000,000,

Manhunt Continues In South

Fugitive Gang Chieftain Believed Fleeing in California Zone — Outlaw Outwits Pursuers.

LOS ANGELES, March 27.—John Dillinger, fugitive gang chieftain, was hunted in widely separated sections of the country today on reports he had been seen at San Bernardino, Cal., 60 miles from here, and at Detroit, Mich.

Alvin Carson, a garage man at San Bernardino told authorities he saw a man whom he identified as Dillinger riding in a motor car. He had three automatic pistols and another man with him, he said.

Detroit authorities were informed six men, apparently led by Dillinger, held up a railroad freight terminal there, escaping with $28,679 in cheques.

Carson and two companions said they were positive the man they saw was the notorious midwest outlaw.

EX-SERVICE MEN MAKE PROTEST TO MEMBERS

Contact Committee Meet War Veterans in Legislature

Representing all classes of ex-service men in Alberta, the contact committee of the Unemployed Ex-Servicemen's Association met ex-service members of the legislature and representatives of the I.O.D.E. in an effort to bring the plight of married and single ex-service men to their attention in the hope that remedial action will be taken.

In a brief prepared for presentation to the members the association stressed the work and wage program for single men, and urged the provincial and federal governments to undertake an adequate public works program for medically fit veterans, the work to be spread among as many men as possible at fair wages.

The association also pressed for three meals a day to be provided for single ex-service men instead of the two meals provided at present, claiming that many of the men are not being properly fed under the two meal arrangement.

A more adequate clothing allowance and proper medical, dental and hospitalization services for all unemployed single ex-servicemen was also aked for, and protests against conditions in the twenty-cents-a-day relief camps and restrictions placed on men working there were also voiced. Sworn statements to prove that conditions in the camps were not as they should be were offered by the delegation.

Pointing out that the care of the men was going to be a problem for the next thirty or forty years and that some steps should be taken for the care of unfit and aged single ex-service men the committee asked that the Federal government be pressed to provide hostls for these cases.

Similar consideration for married men was also asked and in addition to declaring that work at fair wages should be provided, the committee protested the policy of ordinary maintenance and upkeep work being done as a direct relief project, throwing a large number of men out of regular employment. Edmonton was named in this respect.

SIMPLE RITES MARK SERVICE

THE HAGUE, March 27. — A simple but impressive ceremony today marked the funeral of the dowager Queen Emma, whose remains were placed in the Royal Mausoleum of the historic church at Delft.

Dowager Queen

The funeral procession for the beloved queen mother, who died a week ago at age of 75, wound from the palace through streets thronged with thousands from town and country.

Battalions of infantry and squadrons of cavalry, artillery and naval units preceded the specially constructed hearse, on which the crown, badges and orders of the late queen were placed.

KIDNAP THUG GETS 50 YEARS

MISTRIAL IN MALONEY CASE ORDERED HERE

Former Klan Leader Will Answer to Charge Again at Next Court Session

A mistrial was ordered in the John J. Maloney misappropriation case by Mr. Justice Tweedie in criminal court at 11 a.m. on Tuesday. After the jury had been discharged and the presence of the bondsmen arranged for, Maloney was continued on $2,000 bail to answer to the charge again at the next seccion of criminal court in April.

Mr. Justice Tweedie's decision came like a thunderclap in court, and resulted from remarks made in the address to the jury by E. Clare Darling, defence counsel, to the effect that Maloney had served two months in Fort Saskatchewan jail when convicted in police court following a New Year's eve frolic at Mayfair golf links.

CASE PREJUDICED

His Lordship held that no evidence to this effect had been brought out during the present hearing and charged that Maloney's case had been prejudiced by his own counsel.

Mr. Darling based his remarks on the evidence of J. P. Henry, complainant in the case, who charged that Maloney had got two $1,000 bonds from him as security for the publication of a book, had never had any book published and had never returned the bonds. Henry testified that he visited Maloney once in Fort Saskatchewan and Mr. Darling based his remarks on this evidence.

When Mr. Darling had finished his address to the jury, Mr. Justice Tweedie halted E. B. Cogswell, K.C., crown prosecutor, as he was about to address the jury and ordered Sheriff John Rae to take the jury out of court.

He then asked Thomas Powell, court reporter, to read Mr. Darling's statement with regard to Maloney's former conviction.

Mr. Cogswell—Mr. Darling has a right to say that about his own client if he wants to.

HAS NO RIGHT

RED ATTEMPTS TO WRECK OPERATION TOLD IN COMMONS

West Algoma Member's Charges Countered by Claim Low Wages With Insanitary Conditions Blameable.

OTTAWA, March 27.—Sabotage in the lumber woods of northern Ontario was charged to Communist agitators by George Nicholson, Conservative, West Algoma, in the House of Commons last night. Red organizations were described as trying to wreck timber operations, prevent lumber and pulp companies from filling orders, and instigating strikes.

Two northern Ontario Liberals, Joseph Bradette, North Temiskaming, and Dr. J. R. Hurtubise, Nipissing, countered with charges of low wages and insanitary conditions. Both men claimed they had no sympathy with Communist organizations, but insisted conditions in the camps, which led to strikes, were not attributable wholly to Red agitators.

between $10,000 and $11,000 last year owing to the failure of the other two governments to meet some items in connection with the works program.

Ald. J. T. McCreath stated there would be extra administration expenses if the cash system were instituted.

If the governments were going to continue with the "dole system", then relief cases should be helped to make the best of it, observed Ald. C. L. Gibbs, who supported the cash idea.

The motion was put to the council and carried.

Province Awaits Ottawa Action

Alberta can make no decision on the question of payment of cash relief until communication has been established with the Dominion government on the subject, declared Premier J. E. Brownlee on Tuesday. His remark came when asked to comment on the action of the Edmonton City Council on Monday night in ratifying, on a division, the policy of paying cash relief.

Calgary decided in favor of cash relief some time ago and a letter on the subject is on the Premier's desk. However, until Ottawa advises what can be done on the matter, the province can take no action.

No Action Taken Against Bonding Firms By Gov't.

No action has been instituted by the government so far against any bonding firm or others in connection with highway contracts, according to information supplied the legislature at the request of John J. Bowlen, Liberal, Calgary, by Hon. O. L. McPherson, minister of public works.

The attorney general in the name of the crown, however, has given permission for suit to be filed against the General Accident and Assurance company, and the Canadian Indemnity company.

The Commercial Cartage company is the name of the firm on whose behalf the bonds were taken out and the amount involved with the General Accident company was $2,644.43, and with the Canadian Indemnity company $2,628.23.

Simple Rules Prevent HEADACHES

The best way—in fact the only safe, sensible way—to avoid headaches is to obey Nature. Live a moderate life. Eat moderately. Sleep sufficiently. Get lots of fresh air, exercise and recreation. Avoid worry. And, once or twice each week, enjoy a refreshing, pleasant-tasting glass of Andrews Liver Salt.

This last rule is extremely important. Even with the most careful living and the most regular physical habits you may still suffer from the effects of incomplete elimination of body wastes. Thousands of people suffer from this cause without suspecting it. Occasional use of Andrews helps your eliminative organs to function completely; hence Andrews helps you to new energy—keeps you fit—and corrects the conditions which cause headaches, indigestion, general body weariness, and the "little ills."

Begin following these simple rules for health. Take Andrews once or twice each week. Then you will escape those headaches which bother you so often now—and you will enjoy the pleasure of vigorous good health.

All druggists sell Andrews Liver Salt. In tins at 35c and 60c. New, large bottle, 75c. Sole Agents: John A. Huston Co., Ltd., Toronto. 8

GOVERNMENT'S RELIEF WASTE IS FLAYED

quick action, the relief bill of 1934 might have gone through without Canada knowing the record of careless, inefficient, almost culpable neglect in the keeping of proper accounts and records for the millions spent.

He asked for and received on Friday reports made by the auditor-general on a few tests that had been made. It was not hearsay; it was proof, not confined to one province, but included all, and the evidence was startling.

In 1930 he had urged an audit be established on all these expenditures, and Mr. Bennett had scoffed and called the suggestion an insult to the provinces. Mr. King renewed his suggestion each year, but with the same result. Then four years later, on March 12 of this year, the Prime Minister actually passed an Order-in-Council ordering the auditor-general to do exactly what the opposition leader had recommended from the outset. But, as Mr. King pointed out, it was four years too late.

IRREGULARITIES LISTED

The following were some of the instances of irregularities enumerated in the auditor-general's report, none of which were localized:

The Dominion was charged with maintenance costs on highways, administrative costs and salaries of permanent officials.

Excessive rentals have been charged for machinery.

Trucks have been billed as hand labor.

Gas taxes paid to the provinces have been submitted in accounts for federal contribution.

Cities have charged the Dominion for street maintenance.

Civic salaries have been paid by the Dominion.

One municipality submitted the same paylist twice.

Equipment for university, costing $18,000 was charged against the Dominion.

Involving $96,000, 62 pay sheets could not be verified because vouchers were not available.

A paysheet for 25 men was signed by one man.

Another paysheet was signed in the same handwriting for different men.

The auditor-general's report emphasized it was based on a few test audits for each province and did not pretend to be a check-up on every dollar spent by the Dominion for relief. It was nothing more than a cross-section of accounts.

WHY TAXES INCREASED

"Remember," cautioned Mr. King, after reading the Auditor-General's report, "every dollar of this money is so much in the way of increased taxation. If people wish to know why it is that income taxes have been increased, why they have to pay a tax on sugar and why the sales tax was increased, they will find the answer in the report of the Auditor-General which tells how relief money has been spent by this government under the blank cheque authority."

"The way in which this government has wasted public money on unemployment relief is shocking beyond words," exclaimed Mr. King. "For every dollar spent or guaranteed for unemployment relief there has been a much larger sum in the interests of some financial corporation."

LOANS NO HELP TO JOBLESS

The Liberal leader asked if the unemployed of Canada were helped when the Dominion guaranteed a loan to Newfoundland, or when the banks were guaranteed on the account of the western grain pools? Or when the banks were guaranteed against loss on a $60,000,000 loan to the Canadian Pacific Railway? Or when the banks were guaranteed in respect of the Beauharnois development or the Algoma Steel Corporation?

Several times the Liberal leader alluded to the possibility of a Dominion election this year and submitted "the government has no right to take advantage of its majority in this house to take arbitrary powers which it could use during an election without the knowledge even of the electors and under the guise of seeking to relieve unemployment."

Alberta Accounts Not Questioned

There has been no suggestion that Alberta has rendered any improper accounts to the Dominion government at Ottawa, according to Premier J. E. Brownlee when shown a statement made in parliament by Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Dominion Liberal leader, that the provinces had "plundered" the Dominion treasury.

"We have had no suggestion of impropriety on the part of this province and we will be glad to assist in an investigation at any time," he said.

THIRD MAN SOUGHT

The city's holdup squad believe the robbery was a three-man job. They found no trace of the large black automobile which first barred passage to the Tousignant car in the lane when they went there to search for it after the robbery was reported. They held it unlikely the two who actually pulled the coup would return to claim their automobile, and were convinced the pair had an accomplice who drove their car away after they kidnapped the victims in the latter's own automobile.

B.C. SPECIAL POWERS ACT ON ITS WAY

Bill Wins Progress Despite Repeated Attempts to Foil Passage

VICTORIA, March 27. — The special powers act was ready for third reading in the legislature today after having weathered one of the hardest fought battles in committee stage that has ever faced a piece of legislation in British Columbia.

In five hours continuous debate, the bill which has been the centre of heated controversy since it was introduced on March 16, ran the gamut of 40 amendments coming chiefly from G. G. McGeer (Lib. Vancouver-Burrard) and Co-operative Commonwealth Federation members.

Two minor amendments were accepted by the government from the opposition and three passed which the government itself sponsored. Otherwise the Liberal majority, minus Mr. McGeer, rolled aside efforts to change the measure from what the administration desired it to be. Second reading itself was given without recorded vote at 1:15 a.m. today.

DICTATORSHIP CHARGED

"Dictatorship" was charged by the opposition as the government asked the powers of the legislature over a wide range of matters for a period between the end of the present session and the beginning of the next.

Premier T. D. Pattullo gave assurance that the government did not contemplate anything in the nature of "dictatorship" but wished only the power to act from day to day in emergencies which might arise.

Clauses which give the government the legislature's power over the disposition of natural resources, over property and civil rights, and power to inflict penalties for infractions of ordinances under the act came especially under the "dictatorship" charge. The measure was declared by Mr. McGeer to be unconstitutional.

The government, challenged to reveal its program under the act, put forward several matters which might be dealt with.

HEAR WILD TALK

"I've heard a lot of wild talk from people outside the house about the property and civil rights clause giving us power to prohibit free speech, suspend newspapers and so forth, which is entirely contrary to the spirit of the thing", declared Attorney General Gordon Sloan.

"Whether the power was exercised or not, the act took the power to deny freedom of the press and freedom of speech", retorted Mr. McGeer.

"This looks very much like the intimidation of labor," said H. E. Winch (C.C.F., Vancouver-East), regarding the penalty clause. "I wouldn't be surprised to see it used to settle the Loggers' strike."

Hon. G. S. Pearson, Minister of Labor, replied that the government had no intention of settling the Loggers' strike with the act and would not do so as long as he was Labor minister.

WORK AND WAGES

"You are asking for work and wages and yet you want to circumscribe the activities of the government," said Premier Pattullo.

Dominion legislation, including the Marketing Act, required dovetailing of provincial enactments which the government must have the power to do.

And E. D. Barrow (Lib., Chilliwack), said the whole bill would be ineffective as far as the Federal Marketing Act was concerned if the clause regarding property and civil rights were eliminated. What he had in mind was putting people to work, not throwing them into jail or cutting their heads off, remarked Mr. Pattullo at one stage.

"This province is going to meet all its obligations as long as it has the resources to do so," said the Premier, "we may be temporarily hard up for ready cash, but I have the utmost faith in our ultimate success."

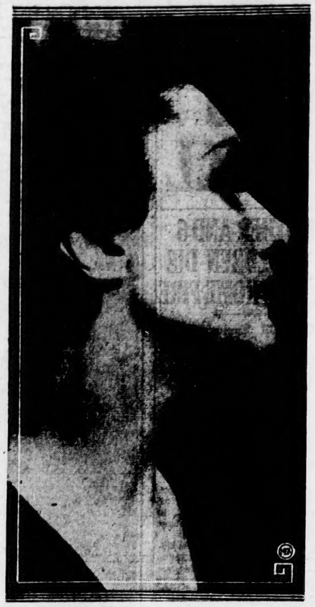
Stage Idealism Holds Her To Footlights



The 16,000-mile tour of Katharine Cornell, who will have played one and two-night stands in 78 cities of 32 states before this season ends, is lending fresh significance to her title of queen of the American stage. Broadway was an easy conquest for the actress, but a mere succession of Broadway triumphs did not fit in with her theatrical idealism. She insists that the theatre must not be centralized; that it must be national to be vital. And yet she knew that out over the country, in scores of towns, a generation was growing up without ever having seen a play performed by living actors.

AXE AND WINE JUG FLY WHEN HUBBY REVOKES

DRUMHELLER, March 27—When pay-checks were of goodly size, Lorenz Chaliastri encouraged Richard Forshaw, of Lehigh, to form the third side of the eternal triangle in the Chaliastri home, but when Forshaw was laid off, after having paid heavily for the position of star boarder, Chaliastri attempted to reduce the triangle to a simple equation by throwing an axe at Forshaw, according to evidence in a complex series of cases at the East Coulee police court.

Chialistri had no objections to a straight business arrangement for the case of Forshaw's physical and emotional desires, it is alleged, but objected to a growing attachment between his wife and the boarder which did not provide him with financial compensation. Forshaw is alleged to have replied to Chialistri's decapitating overture with a wine jug (empty) which cracked three ribs of the aggrieved husband, sending him to hospital and leaving Forshaw master of all he surveyed including a $360 mortgage on the Chialistri home.

Into this ideal movie plot stepped the red-coat to add typically western color to the scene. The triangle suddenly became triangulated into a six-sided affair, Chaliastri facing two charges of procuring for gain and procuring for unlawful purposes, and a further charge of creating a disturbance; Mrs. Chaliastri also appearing on a disturbing the peace charge and Forshaw being charged with disturbing and assault occasioning bodily injury.

L. G. Casewell acted for Forshaw with David Chertkow appearing for Chaliastri.

7-Year-Old Boys Get Wanderlust, Taken Back Home

Two seven-year-old boys, Fred Hughes, 12217 Jasper avenue, and Hal Johnson, 10160 119 street, wandered away together from their homes Monday and ended up miles away, lost on the Mayfair Golf and Country Club, according to city police reports. Employees of the golf club found them shortly after 7 p.m. and brought them to the club house from where police were called.

The lads were later taken to the station and were claimed by anxious parents. The youngsters were none the worse for their adventure.

list and were almost resigned to the situation when the train was pulling out of the North Edmonton station. Just at this time, however, Gordie clambered aboard out of breath and showing signs of having made great speed. He had been rushed to North Edmonton by Archie Ritchie, big gridiron star.

The boys made merry throughout the evening with a portable gramaphone kindly loaned by Bill Strachan, and such songs as "Minnie the Moocher" were highly popular for hours, with this one in particular being the favorite.

FLOCK OF EATS

There was also a flock of eats for the youngsters to tear into, these having been donated by some of their admirers, including Dave Sorley and Ernie Twitchell.

Except for Leyetzke, all of the boys are in grand shape and they are looking forward to their first practice on artificial ice Wednesday. They will be the guests of the Manitoba Hockey Association at tonight's Western Canada junior semi-final game between Kenora and Port Arthur.

Police Court

First blood in the test case of section 505 of the Criminal Code against the Western Auto Club Ltd. was drawn Tuesday morning by the Crown when a conviction of "issuing trading stamps" was registered by Magistrate Col. P. C. H. Primrose and a fine of $5 or distress imposed on the organization through its managing director Fred R. Brason. John McClung, of the attorney-general's department, prosecuted. George B. O'Connor, K.C., defence counsel, gave notice of appeal.

No comment was made by the court when the decision, reserved from Saturday, came down Tuesday morning.

The lone witness in the test case, John R. Simpson, Edmonton manager of the club's office, outlined the set-up of the organization. Members joining the Western Auto Club Ltd. paid a $10 entrance fee and at "official garages" the title being bought by a $20 fee, bought gasoline receiving tickets worth two cents each per gallon. Members are able to apply these tickets on their face value when purchasing goods other than gas at any official garage in the province. The tickets cost the garages nothing other than their $20 entrance fee into the organization, and are redeemed by the office of the Western Auto Club, which is a Calgary organization with branches over Alberta.

A term of three months in jail was given Joseph Kossi, Leduc farmhand on city relief, who went from section to section of a department store Monday afternoon snatching from the counter articles which caught his eye. But other eyes were caught during the shoplifting sally—those of the store detective who trailed Kossi as he made his collection listed in court Tuesday as soap, perfume, pliers, powder, a wallet, a purse and socks. The store detective pinched Kossi as he was pinching the pliers.

Adjournment of a further week was given Mike and Dora Myss, alleged sidewalk bootleggers, who retailed moonshine from a cache under the walk in front of their home. The case for the prosecution is finished, and the adjournment was given so that defence counsel may summons several storekeepers who will attempt to prove Mrs. Dora Myss was at other places than where detectives swore she was on the night of the arrest.

IRRIGATION IS DRAW-BACK SAY SOUTH FARMERS

Tell Legislators They Would be Better Off Without System

More grief from farmers in the irrigated districts of the south was poured in the ears of the legislators on the railways, telephones and irrigation committee on Tuesday.

Most had lost their homes, all were in debt, and one thought he would be better off if the irrigation laterals were closed. All admitted that if farm prices were normal that they would have a chance to make a living, or do well.

Until reflation comes, they are asking the government to come to their aid with a drastic reduction of water charges by absorbing the debenture debts into the general debt of the province.

LOST EVERYTHING

W. R. Hughes of Diamond City was the first witness. One of the oldest settlers on the Lethbridge Northern system, he has been there 22 years—long before the irrigation system was built. He has 320 acres of which 140 are irrigated. He has 35 head of cattle, 100 sheep and a lot of hogs, but has lost the farm he had bought and paid for and is now without a home he can call his own.

"The land is no good without irrigation, and it's too expensive with it," he said.

The first years he got water, he said he was elated at the bumper crops, getting 52 bushels to the acre on old land. Then the yield went down.

"Last year," he said, "I had one 40-acre tract in clover that I ploughed under. I put on 40 loads of sheep manure. It hadn't a weed showing in the fall, but no matter how I cultivated I couldn't keep the thistles down in the spring. I only got ten bushels to the acre of the dirtiest wheat you ever saw. All the land that I bought and paid for has gone and I have no home of my own left."

Mr. Bowlen wanted to know why the yield was so small with such well-worked land and manuring.

"That's what I'd like to know," said Hughes, who added that he thought the water either added something to the land or took something out of it that unfitted it for bearing good crops.

WHEAT GROWING FAILS

"Growing wheat on irrigated land is a failure" said Hughes. "When you irrigate you help the weed seeds. Beets and potatoes grow well but there's no market there for them."

Asked what should be done, Hughes said, "That's a mighty hard question to answer. We could pay $1 an acre for water inclusive of all charges, but we couldn't pay taxes. The only thing that could save us is if prices came back.

Mr. Elsner, expert for the Lethbridge Northern Irrigation system told the committee that the chief trouble with Hughes place was that the soil had drifted and he was now farming on subsoil. Other farmers had good wheat crops one as high as 66 bushels to the acre.

J. L. Nelson a farmer who admitted that he "knows beets" and has been on irrigated lands in U.S. and Canada all his life enlightened members on the method of growing and contracting. He has a standing contract for 40 acres of sugar beets, in recognition of having kept up his contract when wheat was $1.50. He produced his production sheets for his 320 acre farm for the past three years, to show that production goes down in spite of crop rotation.

LOT TAKEN OUT

"There should be lots of money in beets", he said, "because there's a lot of money taken out of it by others. The Dominion Government gets about $70 an acre out of beets by the sugar tax. The C.P.R. gets $11.10 an acre in freight. The province gets $10 an acre through its leases".

The grower spends $46 an acre to produce beets, getting back the beet tops which have a value as stock food.

"I have lost over $18,000 on my land through the classification", he told the committee. "I paid $25 an acre for it, put up $5000 in buildings and $12,500 in stock. Then the Wilson act comes along and prevents me from selling for more than $6 an acre".

Each year, Nelson has sold his wheat as No. 1, getting 32 cents in 1931, 37 cents in 1932 and 38 cents this year.

Mr. Bowlen: If you were getting 75 cents for your wheat and 60 cens for your barley and oats, you'd be doing all right, wouldn't you?

WORSE OFF NOW

Another angle to the Lethbridge Northern situation was presented by C. T. Schiebaut of Monarch, who complained that he was worse off than ever by the irrigation project. He had been there since 1910.

"Nobody at Monarch voted for the irrigation, and I would like to see it wiped out," he said.

His complaint was that the seepage brings alkali to the surface of his porous sandy loam.

John Saurgard, who acts as trustee for the Lethbridge Northern School District of 24 schools, said that education was hampered by the conditions that gave the Irrigation Commission a priority in exacting rates for the 85 cents an acre administration charges.

"We can't compel payment of taxes after the irrigation levy is made. Most of the lands are on a crop share lease," he said. He asked that the collection of the school rates and administration charges be under the one agency, to enable the trustees to meet their overdue teachers' salaries and debenture obligations, both now overdue.

EX-SERVICE MEN MAKE PROTEST TO MEMBERS

married men and their families and medical, dental and hospitalization services were also asked and a protest filed against "too much red tape" in the working of the Provincial Relief Commission. Cases were cited of ex-servicemen who have come into the city from outside municipalities having to wait two or three weeks before being able to draw relief and a special official in the department to look after ex-service cases was suggested.

The necessity for providing work for partially disabled ex-service men in all future work schemes was also stressed, the committee stating that no provision whatever had been made for this class in past projects.

Consideration for small pensioners was asked the committee believing that all should be handled by the one administration under the Dominion government instead of by the D.S.C.R. and municipalities as at present. It was also suggested the first ten dollars in any war pension should not be included in estimating an unemployed man's income for the purpose of determining what relief he should receive.

In the matter of clothing it was pointed out that children of war veterans on relief were not being properly provided for and some consideration in this respect was also asked.

SNOWFLURRIES ARE FORECAST

With heavy clouds drifting on a northeast wind, weather turned colder early Tuesday and snowflurries are forecast.

Touching a high point of 43 above on Monday afternoon the temperature dropped during the night to reach an 18 degree low point at 8 a.m., holding at that level up to 10 a.m.

The barometer again started upward, registering 27.84 at 9 a.m.

Northern weather on Tuesday was reported slightly colder with stiff northerly winds. Snow was reported at Hudson Hope, Attachie and Beaverlodge.

LOVE SPURNED, JULIAN BROKE, LIFE IS SOUR

Shanghai Woman, Pal of Ex-Oil King, Tells Inside Story

SHANGHAI, March 27. — Miss Leonora Levy, weak and pale from an attempt to kill herself with C. C. Julian, unfolded today what she called the "inside story" of the former Canadian oil millionaire's death early Sunday.

"He was broke," began Miss Levy, Julian's secretary and confidante.

"Saturday night was the last night he could have had a roof over his head. Hotels where he had registered had ordered him out.

"In addition, he had proposed marriage to me and I had turned him down. With all this, he said life wasn't worth living. He checked out (meaning, Julian committed suicide by swallowing the powerful potion from which Miss Levy later drank.)"

The voice of the girl who last saw Julian alive sank to a whisper as she told of the last days of the once-powerful promoter.

"I attempted suicide," she said, "because I felt I was indirectly instrumental in his death."

Julian will be buried Thursday. A Canadian who asked that his name not be disclosed will pay for the funeral.

Rev. Emory Luccock of Oak Park, Ill., pastor of a Shanghai-American community church, will conduct the religious ceremonies.

RUMOR ROGERS TO RESIGN PARK POST

JASPER, March 27.—It is rumored that Col. S. Maynard Rogers, superintendent of Jasper National Park, has resigned his post but it is not definitely known who his successor will be.

Col. Rogers has made the upbuilding of Jasper Park practically his life work. He was the first superintendent to be appointed and he has held this post continuously, with the exception of four years when R. H. Knight was in charge. Upon the sudden death of Superintendent Knight, Col. Rogers was recalled from Ottawa to take over the duties again.

THAT "LIKE THE DICKENS" FEELING IS LIVER

Wake Up Your Liver Bile. Feel Fit. You Needn't use Calomel To Do It.

It's your liver, failing to pour out the vital two pounds of bile, daily, into your bowels, that makes you feel so off-colour.

Lack of bile means poor digestion. Food stays too long in your bowels and decays. Your system is poisoned. You go through the misery of gas, bloating, pain, heartburn. You have a dark brown abominable taste in your mouth and bad breath. Your skin's unhealthy and often your head aches. Your whole system seems out of kilter.

How can you reasonably expect to clear up a condition like this by merely taking salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum, or roughage? These only move the bowels, and that's not enough. You must wake up your liver bile.

Avoid calomel (mercury). Take Carter's Little Liver Pills. They're purely vegetable, gentle, sure and safe. They'll make you feel a hundred per cent better in a very short time.

Don't waste your money on substitutes. Be definite. Ask for Carter's by name—and get them! Look for the name, Carter's, on the red label. 25c. at all druggists. 49

DEMAND ABOLITION OF ASSESSMENT COMMISSION

ASK LEGISLATURE TO RESTORE RIGHT OF COURT APPEAL

Budget Item Approximating $15,000 Draws Fire of L. A. Giroux Who Voices Public Demand.

Demand for the abolition of the Alberta Assessment commission and the restoration of the right of appeal from assesssments, to the courts of the country, was voiced in the legislature on Monday by L. A. Giroux, Liberal, Grouard, while municipal affairs department estimates were under consideration.

"I'll take my chances with the judges," declared A. M. Matheson, U.F.A., Vegreville.

Shelling of the commission by Mr. Giroux commenced when the house, in committee of supply, reached a vote of $14,900 for this activity.

"People are kicking against this commission," declared Mr. Giroux. "It would be much cheaper if we had appeal to the courts. People want to get back to the old system."

F. C. Jamieson, K.C., Conservative, Edmonton, drew attention to the commission when he cited the large number of appeals launched in this city.

"Would it not be possible to recover some of the cost involved?" he asked. Hon. R. G. Reid, minister of municipal affairs, said that he would look into the matter, which had been only recently drawn to his attention.

WANT DIRECT APPEAL

"People want the right to appeal from the commission," said Mr. Giroux. "It would be better to appeal direct to the courts instead of from a council to the board." The Minister observed that this would not be cheaper and said that there was an increase in the number of councils desiring to come within the scope of the board's powers.

"Of course the councils want to come under the commission," contended Mr. Giroux. "But that is not the way that the taxpayers feel. And you must remember they do the paying." The Minister replied that the councils represented the will of the people and if they did not there was a remedy open to the taxpayers.

C. L. Gibbs, Labor, Edmonton, here interjected that he thought these representations would be more appropriately made before council than in the legislature.

$4,000 MEMBER FEES

Mr. Matheson was curious regarding the $4,000 item for fees and was informed it was for fees paid to members of the commission.

Mr. Matheson wanted to know why district judges could not do the work and the Minister replied that the commission was appointed when it was felt this system would be an improvement over the old.

Discussion ended and the vote passed.

W. D. Spence is chairman of the commission, while members are J. J. Duggan and John Gair, of Killam.

duced wheat acreage up squarely to the farmers of this province they would make the reduction voluntarily. I am opposed to to such a board as the bill proposes to set up. Regulation by legislation cannot be successfully applied. Regulation of production is impracticable; regulation of delivery presents many difficulties. It would need an army to enforce a regulation of this kind and to prevent bootlegging of wheat. The dry areas, unfortunately, are being extended gradually northward and the surplus will rectify itself.

"The bill means a compulsory pool and means establishment of a wheat board with far too autocratic powers. No provision is made for reimbursing the farmers for their reduced production. The cost of administration will be excessive. Holding the views I do, being opposed to a compulsory pool, any restriction in production, any control of marketing and any artificial interference with supply and demand, I must opppose the bill."

SURPLUS WAS "CREATED"

Mr. Montgomery challenged the Premier "or anyone else" to state one instance where the producer had benefited in the long run through interference or artificial restrictions in the laws of supply and demand by curtailing production or restricting exports.

"I am of the opinion that had no action been taken during the last three years to allow Canadian wheat to find its proper level, every bushel could have been sold and there would be no abnormal surplus today.

"No doubt some will say Mr. Bennett has committed Canada to a certain course of action by the 1933 Wheat Agreement. Therefore the prairie provinces much implement that agreement. By no means —this is not necessary. What will happen if we refuse to pass the bill? We will simply pass the whole thing back to Mr. Bennett, who, if he wishes, may control exports by way of licensing exporters, a plan which could be carried out without being unfair to any producer.

DOMINION RESPONSIBILITY

"The Dominion is supreme in matters of trade. Let them take the responsibility if they care to do so. I am opposed to any quota basis. I am opposed to any compulsory restriction and I am opposed to any form of artificial interference in the production and marketing of Canadian wheat.

"Messrs. Bennett, Brownlie, Bracken and Anderson should have left the whole business severely alone."

Mr. Montgomery charged that the bill before the house was the result of a misconception. The western premiers in May, 1933, on feeling there would be a large crop, as climatic conditions indicated, asked Premier Bennett to move in this direction. Then came the crop failure. Yet the agreement was the direct result of the prairie premiers' misconceptions of the situation.

He charged that the board, with its wide powers, could show favoritism and contended it was folly to go to the extent of setting up the expensive machinery provided for under the act just for one year. He thought the bill should outline the prospective personnel and the expected remuneration of each. He subjected the bill to a minute scrutiny.

It was contended that European countries signed the agreement but accepted practically no obligation. They agreed to take no new steps to encourage production. "But this is no concession," said Mr. Montgomery.

Col. F. C. Jamieson, V.D., K.C., Conservative, Edmonton, strongly advocated additional provision in the Alberta bill for restriction of deliveries as well as in export. He contended that a large percentage of the population was ready to obey the law. He submitted that the Dominion government was doing its duty in the matter and that the province should not, as Mr. Montgomery suggested, assume the whole responsibility. The Dominion was limiting exports, as it controlled trade and commerce. But the provinces were in control of their production and it was in this phase that the provinces were taking their responsibility.

It was not fair to suggest the passing of all responsibility for the marketing control bill back to the Dominion, he said. After all, the Dominion had only technically made the agreement, it being the provinces' suggestion in the first place. He read the major portion of the instituting telegram from the premiers of the western provinces to the Dominion.

"If we don't carry out this agreement," he said, "it will be an invitation to the 31 other countries to repudiate and at any future time when we want an agreement, we will always have it thrown in our faces that we refused to abide by an agreement we made. Already, through the premier of this province, we have authorized the making of this agreement. In addition to the backing of this group I am sure the premier will be able to depend on his own following."

It would be a waste of time, he said, to repeat the arguments against curtailment heard all over the country.

"But the treaty contains words which all farmers admit will insure that curtailment will mean reduction in carry over," he said. Few would agree with Mr. Montgomery that Canada was not growing enough wheat. When the rate of increase of the carryover was realized, surely it could not be argued that the country was producing too little.

"I submit it is the height of folly to go on growing wheat at a loss or so close to it that the farmers show little desire to put in large wheat crops," he said.

Regarding the contention that the other 31 countries signing the treaty would do nothing to implement it, he said that there was a definite promise in the agreement that they would discourage production to increase. He urged the agreement was a step in the right direction.

"I submit that the Premier was justified in appealing for non-partisan treatment of this bill and I also agree it is the most important piece of legislation in recent years," he said.

It was apparent that the present plan in dealing with reduction in export was to defer action until it was determined whether the current year's crop would be large or small. Thus, he concluded, if present year's crop was found to exceed 385,000,000 bushels, the Canadian average for the last 10 years, then something would be done. The last four-year average was 344,000,000 bushels and the last five-year average was 347,000,000 bushels. From this he substracted the 117,000,000 bushels estimated for home use and there was left a balance of 268,000,000 bushels, still 5,000,000 bushels in excess of the estimated export requirement or 263,000,000 bushels.

READY TO COMPLY

He contended that most people were willing to obey laws and if reduction of production was made statutory, the farmers would fall in line. He felt strongly on the matter of causing a further 15 per cent reduction through legislation, which he was sure all would support.

Mr. Grisdale was of the opinion that all members agreed there should be less production of wheat.

"In Alberta," he said, "with a soil and climate admirably suited to wheat growing has had in the last five years an average production of 125,000,000 bushels or 100,000,000 for export. It has been very profitable to engage in the growing of wheat. A minimum capital was involved and returns, in bountiful years, were both quick and bountiful. And not only was the wheat of excellent quality, but the average yield was between 17 and 18 bushels an acre, as against 14 bushels in United States export wheat and 10½ bushels for Australia and Argentine. Over the last four years the sale price average for the western farmer was 36½ cents a bushel and as it cost 20 cents a bushel above that price to produce wheat, the grower used up his resources and the borrowed money."

As a result, he said, wheat growing in this province had reached a chaotic condition.

SENSIBLE FOR CANADA

But he thought the wheat agreement was a sensible thing not only for Alberta but for Canada as well. Everything possible should be done to live up to that agreement. Its beneficial possibilities were great.

He thought if carried out as intended, curtailment of deliveries would have some effect. He would leave the details to the government.

A. M. Matheson, U.F.A., Vegreville, contended that the farmers were being asked to give "something for nothing." The bill contained no guarantee that wheat prices would advance after it became effective. The whole thing resolved itself into a monetary problem. He contended that in the last four years Canadian farmers should have received 75 cents a bushel for their wheat. He could not understand why western farmers were the only one being asked to give up their rights without compensation. He felt that as a result of the whole procedure, the Dominion was just endeavoring to protect its fiscal policy.

P. J. Enzenauer, U.F.A., Alexandra, supported the bill, seeing in it the thin edge of a well ordered economy. The objectives of the bill were so far-reaching, providing for orderly marketing, that no one could afford to stand in the way.

Nila Cook, Gandhi's 'Blue Serpent' Bride of Ship's 'Mess Boy' Now

NEW YORK, March 27. — Nila Cram Cook, the plump, brown-eyed Iowa woman who deserted Main street to become a disciple of M. K. Gandhi in India, was married yesterday to Albert N. Hutchins, who described himself as a writer.

"Hutchins was signed as a mess boy on the liner City of Elmwood on which Miss Cook returned to New York Saturday," said Frederick Fender, assistant marine superintendent of the International Mercantile Marine.

From this statement it was believed that this new romance in the life of Miss Cook, who said upon her return that "I want to play on the banks of the Mississippi," had its origin on shipboard after she was deported from India.

Hutchins, rather shy and ill at ease, pleaded with city officials at the municipal building that there be "no publicity." Miss Cook, daughter of the late poet, George Cram Cook, gave her age as 25. Hutchins said he was 28, the son of William Hutchins of Chicago.

When Nila Cram Cook sailed away from this port seven years ago, she announced solemnly to friends that she was bound for distant shores to learn what life was all about. She was 18 then and convinced that a blighted romance had wrecked her chance for happiness. The only thing left, she sadly soliloquized, was the prospect of adventure!

For many months, as a more or less faithful follower of Mahatma Gandhi, the buxom Miss Cook, convert to Brahmanism and wearing a caste mark on her forehead, performed the menial tasks usually undertaken only by India's untouchables. She even cleaned streets in Myalore to show her piety and penitence, but every so often her warm-blooded love of life would assert itself and she would do something that would let her in for a scolding from the Great Teacher.

YEARNED FOR THRILLS

Suddenly, after a particularly severe rebuke from Gandhi for conduct which he said was a "menace to the cause," the Blue Serpent Goddess, as she was called by the faithful, announced that her heart was leaping for thrills."

"I want speed, to fly, to dance," she cried and slipped away from the austere seminary in Ahmedabad where she had been sleeping on bricks without blankets for eight months.

When next heard from, she had bought an automobile on approval in New Delhi. A little later she was reported injured in a smash which occurred when she was driving at a speed of seventy miles an hour.

Somewhere in the progress of this grand fling, the strapping young woman, big-boned and tall, registered at a hotel under the name of Janet Gaynor, petite motion picture star. Soon after that, she was ordered deported.

Nila Cram Cook, as the "Blue Serpent Goddess," cleaned streets in Myalore to demonstrate her piety and penitence.

For all her thirst for speed and pleasure, Nila objected to being sent back to the land where, as her advisers soothingly told her, speed and pleasure were to be had in greater profusion than anywhere else. She locked herself in a bathroom for hours and refused to come out or open the door, declined to dress herself and finally when she was led to the ship, shut her eyes stubbornly and refused to speak, even to her five-year-old son, Sirius, who was being deported with her.

TURNS SHEPHERDESS

Before she conceived the idea of joining Gandhi and rushed from Greece to India to carry it out, the Iowa girl had married a Greek banker's son and gone shepherdess on the slopes of classic Mount Parnassos, with a crook, a lyre and real sheep for atmosphere. Sirius is the child of the Greek marriage.

Spectacular daughter of spectacular parents, Nila Cram Cook first manifested histrionic ability in her school days when she acted small parts at the Provincetown Theatre founded by her father, George Cram Cook, poet, playwright and theorizer. Her mother, Mollie Price, was a friend of Emma Goldman and other radical leaders.

On both sides, the girl's grandparents were revolutionary, too. Her mother's father nursed a notion that we live on the inside of the world instead of on the outside. Her father's mother, Ma-Mie, as children and grandchildren called her, shocked her Iowa neighbors by going in for the study of mysticism. Out in Davenport to this day, when people hear tell of some new exploit of Nila's they say that she "takes after her grandma Cook!"

MIGRATION TO GREECE

Her parents were divorced when Miss Cook was a little girl and her father married Susan Glaspell, novelist and playwright. Jig Cook, as his friends called him, had cherished from college days a plan to visit Greece and re-create the simple, glorious life of the country's past.

With Susan Glaspell and Nila, he finally went to Greece. He dressed in the rough clothes of the shepherds, drank and ate and sang with them and at last his restless nature found a sort of peace.

Nila shared her father's love for Greece and soon spoke and read Greek as well as she did English. When Jig Cook died and was buried beside the temple of Apollo at Delphi, she came back to the United States.

It was then, according to her friends, that love let her down and she decided to return to Greece. Her marriage to Nicholas Proestopoulos came soon afterwards. So far as her correspondents here know, there has been no divorce, but Nila prefers to use the name that has already made so many headlines.

accused is after the verdict and for the purpose of sentence. His own counsel stands up and makes a statement, and everyone of them (the jury) wil say, "Here, Maloney has been convicted already."

Mr. Cogswell—I don't think anyone in the province didn't know that Maloney has been to jail.

The court—We must assume that these six men didn't know it.

Mr. Cogswell—I don't think that there can be any objection if my friend (Mr. Darling) chooses on behalf of the accused to say that he has been to jail.

The court—He can't choose on behalf of his client to go ahead and make a statement like that.

Mr. Cogswell—The accused can go into the witness stand and admit all these things.

The court—Yes, but he didn't. (Maloney did not take the stand in his own defence.)

FURTHER CONVERSATION

Some further conversation then took place between His Lordship and Mr. Cogswell, which ended by Mr. Cogswell saying that "he"—meaning either Mr. Darling or Maloney—could take the responsibility for the remark.

The court—No, I will take the responsibility for it. Call the jury back. This is a mistrial.

Mr. Cogswell—Perhaps the remark was made for that purpose.

The court—If I thought that, I would deal with counsel very severely.

Mr. Darling—I want to make a statement that I had not the slightest intention of upsetting the process of the court.

His Lordship said that he believed nothing like that had been intended.

Court then adjourned for one hour, and when it opened again, George McKeever, 12957 115 street, and Robert Hamilton, 10727 113 street, went bond for Maloney in the sum of $1,000 apiece, and Maloney was ordered to attend the next criminal sessions.

MANUSCRIPT PRODUCED

A manuscript of the much-touted book of Maloney's to be entitled, "Darkness, Dawn and Daybreak", the original cause of all the trouble, was produced in court by M. Shantz, who said he got the manuscript from a Calgary printer.

The contents total about 20,000 words, about one-quarter of the size of a regular book, and a cursory examination showed many violent attacks on doctrines of the Catholic religion.

Maloney showed much anxiety to get the manuscript back when the case concluded, but Clerk of the Court Henderson ruled that it had to be kept with the other documentary evidence in the case.

William Walford, local printer, said that Maloney had discussed the publication of the book with him at intervals during the past two years, and had talked over the cost of having some 2,500 or 3,000 copies printed.

Walford asserted that no deposit had been given him for publication and that about two months ago the manuscript had been taken away from him.

SCORES HURT IN HURRICANE

NEW ORLEANS, March 27.—A densely-populated area of modest homes in lower New Orleans was converted into a mass of twisted wreckage within the twinkling of an eye Monday when a tornadic wind dipped down and scattered homes, automobiles and furniture over a two-mile sector.

Within the same hour, similar but less severe disturbances struck Lafayette parish, southwest Louisiana and at Tallulah, northeast of Louisiana.

Twelve persons were hurt here, including eight women and an infant, and hospital attendants said some of them might die.

Scores of others were injured less critically.

Approximately 400, their lives miraculously spared, were left homeless in the New Orleans disturbance, which demolished 50 homes and damaged 100 others.

Named Assistant

LONDON, March 27. — Rear-Admiral Charles E. Kennedy-Purvis was today appointed assistant chief of the naval staff in succession to Rear-Admiral Sidney R. Bailey, who in turn goes to command of the battle-cruiser squadron in succession to Vice-Admiral William M. James. The appointments are effective August 15.

Pilot Bill Jewett of Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, landed at Edmonton airport Monday evening from a trip to Great Bear lake.

TRAPPER FROZE IN CABIN NORTH OF PEACE RIVER

PEACE RIVER, Alta., March 27. —Mounted Police are investigating the death of a man named McPhail in the Runaway lake country northeast of here. Reports brought in are very meagre, but from what can be gathered the body of McPhail was discovered by a trapper in a dilapidated shack, and it is surmised that he was frozen to death sometime during the severe cold of winter.

McPhail was an eccentric character and lived in the country several years. Apparently he left his home place for the cabin to carry on trapping operations with only a handful of grub and no blankets.

It was several years previously that he had built the cabin, in which he left one blanket at that time. The supposition is that he believed he would find the blanket intact, but the cabin in the meantime had fallen in, so he made an improvised shelter and without any blankets or stove attempted to carry on in the face of overwhelming difficulties.

Full details will be available on return of the police patrol, who will undoubtedly have much difficulty in reaching the scene, owing to the great depth of snow covering the country, which is covered with a crust hard enough to carry the weight of an ordinary man on foot, but which will be bad for horses.

Will Name Three To Be Mediators

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Only the announcement of a three-man mediation board last night remained to cap the settlement of the automobile industry's labor dispute which threatened to send thousands of United States workers out on strike.

Still showing the effects of the past few strenuous days, Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, went to his office late in the day and indicated that Richard E. Byrd of Pontiac, Mich., would be labor's spokesman.

Parley Called

BRUSSELS, March 27. — Louis Barthou, the French foreign minister, arrived here this afternoon for a talk with Foreign Minister Hymans.

O. S. A. CLOSING

OLDS.—The Olds School of Agriculture will hold closing exercises on Wednesday, March 28, when Dr. R. D. Sinclair and Hon. George Hoadley, provincial minister of agriculture, will be principal speakers. Dr. Sinclair, who graduated from O.S.A. some years ago, is a member of the University of Alberta staff.

ROOSEVELT VETO CUTS $83,000,000 VETERAN BENEFIT

Holds Opinion That Liberalization Would Jeopardize Budget — Attitude on Paycut Restorations Not Known.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—President Roosevelt last night wrote a veto message for the independent offices supply bill, carrying the dispute veterans benefit amendment. It will be transmitted to congress today.

The President was known to believe the veterans benefit liberalization, amounting to approximately $83,000,000, would jeopardize the budget.

His position on the restoration of the Federal paycut, costing considerably more than $100,000,000, was not immediately known. The bill with these two amendments was given final congressional approval yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Roosevelt last night was believed ready also to tell the limit to which he will go in liberalization of the veterans' economy bill passed a year ago.

PROVINCES NOW EMULATE GOV'T SAYS M'K KING

Adopts Hands-off Policy on Protest From British Columbia

OTTAWA, March 27—The example of the Dominion government had been "such as to occasion provincial governments to follow it," Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, stated in the house of commons yesterday in a reference to the special powers act of British Columbia. Mr. King was speaking in protest against the powers in the unemployment relief legislation.

There were now two provinces and there would be more in the course of a little time following the example of the Dominion government, stated Mr. King. "I think the same is true of the government of Saskatchewan, making three, all beginning to emulate this government in the matter of taking away from the legislative assembly powers given by the constitution to safeguard the rights and liberties and moneys of the people."

REFERRED TO PROTEST

Mr. King referred to a telegram he had received from Rev. S. C. Quainton following a mass meeting in Victoria protesting against the act passed in British Columbia.

The time to have called these mass meetings to protest against this kind of thing was when the Liberal opposition in the House had sought to arouse public opinion on that particular form of divesting parliament of its powers in respect to public money four years ago, he said.

The Liberal opposition had been protesting for four years against parliament being robbed of its authority over legislation affecting the people and the control of public money. When a provincial government undertook to assume authority to meet a definite situation a mass meeting was called immediately to protest against an act of that kind.

"My reply to that message," declared Mr. King alluding to the protest from Victoria, "was that if there had been an infraction of provincial rights it was the duty of the government of the day to intervene in a matter of that kind, that the leader of the opposition in the Dominion parliament has no authority whatever to intervene in any provincial matter, and as far as he is true to the traditions of Liberalism in connection with relations between the provinces and the Dominion he will allow the provinces to manage their own affairs and not attempt to intervene in one way or another."

NAVAJOS SEEK TRIBAL PURITY; OUST NOTABLES

Adoption Rule Bans Screen Celebrities—Protest Film Scenes

FORT DEFIANCE, Ariz., March 27.—Indians were on the warpath today in defense of political intergrity and racial purity on the reservation and on the movie screen.

Lupe Velez

While Navajos purged their records of the names of "adopted" celebrities of other nationalities, two Carlisle graduates demanded of motion picture authorities that their race no longer be Mexicans, Arabs, Chinese, Hawaiians and negros.

Though the Indians asserted that performances described as adoption rites in no way inducted alien participants into the tribe, they approved last night a resolution proposed by Tom Dodge, young chairman of the tribe, banning from membership anyone who is not a Navajo by birth and by birth alone.

That action deprived a score of film celebrities and some prominent in other walks of Navajo brotherhood. Among the picture folk are Douglas Fairbanks Sr., and Mary Pickford, Jackie Coogan, Lupe Velez and Ramon Navarro. Jimmy Walker, former mayor of New York, and B. I. Staples of Gallup, N.M., prominent in Indian rights efforts, also were "adopted" during visits to the reservation.

Wanted In Canada As Drug Runner

NEW YORK, March 27—Pinkus Brecher, said to be a millionaire, was arrested in his New York home Monday and held by United States Commissioner Garrett W. Cotter without bail in extradition proceedings instituted in behalf of Canada.

Brecher is charged with having caused 12 trunkloads of narcotic drugs to be taken across the border from the United States to Montreal during 1930 and 1931.

Tea Importer Dies

TORONTO, March 27.—R. Hayden, one of Canada's leading tea importers, died here Monday. He was 77 years of age. He was born in Sydenham, Ont., and lived in Guelph for some years, moving here 30 years ago.

A Frank Statement to Men about "Milk of Magnesia"

Unknown Drugs of Any Description Should Be Carefully Avoided . . What the Name "PHILLIPS'" Means to Your Family

The father, as well as the mother, values his family's welfare above the price of pennies. It is the last thing he would want to experiment with.

Yet, every day — mainly through lack of knowledge— thousands of buyers accept dubious "bargain" drugs for use in the home . . . gamble the health of their children or themselves on preparations, to take internally, about which they know nothing.

Your doctor will tell you that giving unknown drugs is one of the most dangerous things that you can do. The road to safety lies in the path of his orders.

Doctors Say PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

When it comes to the very important, and often used "milk of magnesia" . . . if a substitute is offered for genuine Phillips' . . . ask your doctor before it is bought. He will tell you that substitutes are not "like Phillips' Milk of Magnesia . . . the safe remedy for your child—the best for all ages."

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia marks, he will say, one of the finest laboratory products the world of science knows. For 50 years his profession has specified it by name. Every purchaser of drugs should know this.

See that you get Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Do this for your own peace-of-mind. For the certain protection of your family. The genuine can be obtained at any drug store—in liquid or tablet form, 25c and 50c sizes.

Also in Tablet Form:

Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

SAFETY in this bottle for you and yours

TIME FOR ACTION

The legislature of British Columbia declared by unanimous vote of the members that the time has come to stop piling up interest-bearing debt for the creation of public improvements. Mr. G. G. McGeer, K.C., is being sent to Ottawa to press upon the banking committee that in future governmental undertakings, federal, provincial and municipal, should be financed at cost, by issuing money, instead of by selling interest-bearing bonds.

The legislature of Alberta has gone on record by formal resolution that the burden of charges on the provincial debt is greater than the taxpayers of this province can bear. If this resolution was passed in good faith, it is to be supposed the Alberta legislature will join with that of British Columbia in asking Ottawa to make the alternative scheme of financing possible.

Unless that is done, the conclusion will be widely drawn that the resolution of the Alberta legislature was only designed to sidetrack the demand for a refunding of the provincial debt. Action in the circumstances is the only thing that can give practical meaning to this resolution, and vindicate the declaration of the members that the creation of interest-bearing debt has already out-ran the taxpaying power of the people of Alberta.

THE CURTAILMENT OUTLOOK

Regina reports that 22,000,000 acres of crop land in Saskatchewan are subject to grasshopper infestation, while 8,000,000 acres are in the area of "severe" infestation. "Severe," it is explained, means 50 eggs to the square inch. Fifty little grasshoppers per square inch would seem to be enough to warrant the term.

From one-quarter to one-third of the crop area of Alberta is also within the infested zone, and officials at the Lethbridge experimental farm have been broadcasting warnings all winter that widespread damage may be looked for.

Barring wet weather in spring and early summer, the outlook seems to be for a grasshopper plague, more or less severe, over 30,000,000 to 40,000,000 acres of the wheat lands of these two provinces. At five bushels to the acre that would account for crop curtailment to the extent of 150,000,000 to 200,000,000 bushels.

Canada's wheat crop last year was 271,000,000 bushels, from 25,900,000 acres.

Our governments, which have been so busy devising ways to cut the crop still further, had better hold themselves in readiness to launch a "grow more wheat" campaign in the northern districts if the spring turns out to be dry in the south. The present prospect is the grasshoppers will see that the farmers do not exceed the quota.

OUR INFLATED MONEY

On Feb. 28th there were in existence Dominion notes to the value of $175,808,728. Of this amount $45,137,728 was made up of notes in circulation. The balance, $130,671,000, consisted of notes of large denomination issued to banks as legal tender, and held by them as a basis upon which to issue bank notes, or loan bank credit.

Banking practice has shown that it is safe for banks to issue credit to ten times the amount of the Dominion notes held by them. Upon the basis of this $130,671,000 of Dominion notes held at the end of February, the banks were in position to issue and loan credit to the amount of $1,306,710,000.

Against the $175,808,728 of Dominion notes outstanding, the Minister of Finance held, as required by the Dominion Notes Act, gold to the value of $68,864,728. The Dominion notes issued totalled about 2½ times the gold reserve. And upon these notes the banks were entitled to super-impose credit, or bank money, to the amount of $1,176,039,000. A grand total of $1,351,039,000 of cash and bank money resting on a gold reserve of $68,864,728. The ratio is about 20 to one.

This is what is called "sound" money, as distinguished from "fiat" money or "inflated" money. It would be interesting to know what our "sound" money friends mean by inflation. When an ounce of gold in the treasury at Ottawa eventuates in twenty times its value in loanable credit in the banks, we would seem to have diluted money until its relation to gold is theoretical rather than actual. Five cents' worth of gold behind a dollar's worth of bank money is a pretty slim proportion on which to base a claim that we have some sort of super-money, safe beyond compare with the "inflated" money of Australia.

We have inflated money in Canada. We have always had it. That is the kind of money with which the business of the country is done. From 90 to 95 per cent of the buying and selling and paying in Canada is done with bank credit—which is nothing but Dominion notes diluted to ten times their face value. The pretence that our transactions are carried on with the paper equivalent of gold is sheer fiction. There is about enough gold behind a bank bill to pay for the fibre-filled paper and the cost of printing it.

And still our Ottawa Government insists on paying high interest to private parties on their "superior credit" which is backed by one dollar of the Government's money to ten dollars of the bank bills borrowed.

London.—Newspaper readers are noting difference between the despatches from the war zone in the far east and those which told in detail of the progress of the late war in South Africa. The difference is largely due to the fact that correspondents are not allowed to accompany either the Japanese or the Russian forces, but must remain far in the rear and forward such reports as come to them, sometimes from unreliable sources. Nor when these are filed in the cable office is there any assurance that they will get through intact. Poems That Live

SONNET ON CHILLON

Eternal Spirit of the chainless Mind!
Brightest in dungeons, Liberty! thou art,
For there thy habitation is the heart—
The heart which love of thee alone can bind;
And when thy sons to fetters are consigned—
To fetters, and the damp vault's dayless gloom,
Their country conquers with their martyrdom,
And Freedom's fame finds wings on every wind.
Chillon! thy prison is a holy place,
And thy sad floor an altar—for 'twas trod,
Until his very steps have left a trace
Worn, as if thy cold pavement were a sod,
By Bonnivard!—May none those marks efface!
For they appeal from tyranny to God.

—Lord Byron.

B.C. AND CENTRAL BANK

In view of the fact that the public accounts committee of the provincial legislature already has under review the Dominion bill to establish a Central Bank for Canada, and that it feels this province's case should be presented to the banking committee at Ottawa, it may be taken for granted that the local house will concur in such a course. Mr. McGeer has taken the initiative in this matter and by reason of his diligent study of the Canadian banking system he is admirably qualified to present the views of the legislature to the Dominion body which has under consideration this vital proposal. The selection of Mr. McGeer for such a mission would be generally approved throughout the province.—Victoria Times.

The United States Congress a year or two ago authorized the president to declare an embargo on the export of munitions, but left the chief executive free to discriminate between the belligerents. But an amendment that has just been added to the law provides that the embargo must be applied, if at all, to both aggressor and his victim. Which is not unlike a police officer who has failed to maintain law and order preventing an innocent citizen from securing a weapon to resist the attack of a bandit. The bandit always is pre-armed.

An eastern paper, noted for its allegiance to the banking interests, recently remarked that the wise men of the East came out West, looked it over, and did not settle. Instead they returned to their offices in Montreal and loaned money at high interest rates to the settlers. And the settlers did not settle.

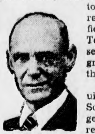
The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER



J. S. Cowper

Mr. L. W. Brockington, K.C., of Calgary, is soon to deliver an address to the Philosophical Society at the University of Alberta on "A Plea for a Sense of Humor." Someone should send a ticket to Conway Tearle, the actor, who has recently been hooked for $3000 alimony due to the estate of an ex-wife recently deceased. The beneficiary of the estate is Mr. Tearle's ex-mother-in-law. A sense of humor would be a great help in a situation like that.

Mr. Brockington is a genuine wit in his own right. Someone should gather up his gems of humor while they are readily available. A later generation will revel in them as they now do in "Sam Slick"—though their respective types of humor differ widely.

Before the St. George's Society recently he took some sly digs at the English and Scotch. Those against the English naturally had little point but I hope the Scotch laughed at his picture of the Scot before the Shepherd's pie, addressing it thusly:

"Wee, sleekit, cowerin', timorous beastie."

Only the Scotch are supposed to know that the line occurs in Robbie Burns' "Ode to a Mouse."

It was a dear little Canadian girl, and not a Scot, who a few nights ago called out to her daddy as he took up his hat and coat to go for a night out, "Bye bye Daddy, be careful and don't beget anything."

Only a couple of weeks ago this column entered on the defence of the fat girl, quoting two experienced newspapermen who had reported court cases for years, that they'd never seen a fat women either suing or being sued for divorce.

This column is nothing if it isn't honest, and today I noticed in a Chicago paper where Mrs. Laura Johnston was suing for divorce because her husband got mad at her for putting on weight. Poor little plump girl; she bought one of those bathroom scales that you step on and find out the awful truth when you're in a position to weigh your lightest. The story of her wrongs were set out in chronological order, with weight as the criterion instead of time. It ran something like this:

Married March, 1928, weight 123 pounds. Everything lovely.

135 pounds—Frank gave me a dirty look.

145 pounds—Received a number of unkind remarks.

155 pounds—Was thrown out of my home.

160 pounds—Was thrown out again and called "fat."

165 pounds—Broke the scales and was thrown out again.

In setting up that Frank was guilty of cruelty, Laura said that it was not her fault as she has "no control over the course of nature."

That's fair enough. Having no control over the course of nature has resulted in so many marriages that it ought to account for a few divorces.

That Irish girl who was so anxious to enter Canada again—after having made a previous stay in London, Ontario—that she stowed away in a lifeboat on a steamer from Glasgow with two loaves of bread, and arrived with frozen feet and a huge appetite, certainly ought to be allowed to land at Halifax.

Anyone with such an heroic spirit, such a keen desire to make Canada her home, and such a capacity for hunger and suffering, would make a splendid addition to our Canadian population.

One of the saddest divorces among my acquaintance had its origin in a belief that, being cousins, the marriage was derogatory to social custom and dangerous in the event of generating children. It so preyed on the mind of one of the parties that she felt the union was under a curse. It ended with a divorce, procured like 95 per cent of all Canadian divorces, by fraud and collusion. I'd always blamed myself that I didn't risk giving offence to talk to them frankly about their private grief. Lest there are others in similar plight, I'll make belated amends in this column.

Where social odium may exist in some minds, I'm powerless to move that. There are estimable people who are affronted by mention of divorce or birth control, though one is the law of the land and the other has been approved by the Lambeth Conference of Bishops. In some minds, it is doubtless rooted in the belief that such marriages are risky for the children that may result.

The study of eugenics has long made it clear that such marriages are only risky where there is a physical or mental defect in the stock. If both parents are affected by any such defect, it is liable to be emphasized in the children. But by reason of the same principles of heredity, where the parties and their ancestry are free from defect, or are of superior type, the chances are that the children will be unusually well endowed physically and mentally. Stockbreeders recognize this truth when they breed whole herds from the same family stock.

Reading a medical essay on Cleopatra, this truth is made clear in a most striking illustration. Cleopatra was not only a paragon of beauty among women and of remarkable health, but she was supremely gifted in her mental endowment. Yet she was the ultimate product of centuries of the most intensive "inbreeding."

Though Queen of Egypt she was pure Greek. The first Ptolemy was the son of Lagos, a Macedonian general under Alexander the Great. All the extra-familial marriages were with Greek women.

Take the last five generations. Her great-great-grandparents were Ptolemy the Seventh and Cleopatra the Second. They were full brother and sister. Their child Cleopatra the Third married her own uncle, Ptolemy the Ninth. Ptolemy the Tenth married his sister, Selene. Ptolemy the Thirteenth married Cleopatra the Fifth, believed to be his own sister. They had five children, of whom the famous Cleopatra of history—who bore a son to Caesar and twin children and a later son to Marc Antony—was one. Yet the final product of this series of consanguineous unions of the Ptolemies has few compeers in excellence.

Cousins who marry have nothing to worry about if the ancestral stock is good.

HAVE A COMPLETE DIAGNOSIS

Dr. F. McCoy

You should not expect your doctor to be able to tell you the name of your trouble when all he has to go by are the symptoms you have told him about, in regard to how you feel, any pains you may have, how you digest your food, and so on. While this information is of value, it is not complete enough to form the basis of the diagnosis. When your automobile knocks you are willing to give the garage mechanic time to check over the motor. You must be willing to do the same in having a doctor look over your physical body and it is only reasonable to allow him plenty of time to test out the various organs to find out if each vital part is in good-working order. A thorough examination may take two days to complete, but the diagnosis based upon the findings of such an examination is many times more reliable than a quick diagnosis based upon looking at the tongue, feeling the pulse, taking the blood pressure, and nothing more.

In order that you may know some of the steps which should be included in the examination before the diagnosis is made, I am going to describe some of them to you: The modern methods of examining a patient make use of such equipment as the x-ray, the fluoroscopic x-ray, and also the instrument used to test the blood-pressure, called the sphygmomanometer.

Of these, the fluoroscope is very important as it takes much of the guesswork out of the diagnosis because the doctor can use it to see the living organs as they do their work. The patient is perfectly comfortable and as a matter of fact, is usually extremely interested in finding out about his own vital organs which are hidden from him by the skin, the muscles and ribs.

In addition, many separate tests are made of the blood, the liquid waste from the kidneys, and perhaps a special study is made of the gallbladder, called the Graham Dye test: The heart is examined by using the stethoscope, and a thorough examination should always include delicate tests of the vision to find out if the eyesight is good. The patient may have a hearing test to find out if there is any tendency to deafness and by inserting a small instrument with a light on it, into the outer canal of the ear, the doctor is able to look for signs of inflammation and can see the ear-drum.

In addition, any local examinations which may be needed are made, such as of the throat. A careful history of previous illnesses is then taken, the symptoms are carefully written down, and the doctor studies the patient's present condition in regard to whether the muscles are well developed or weak, whether he appears well nourished, underweight or overweight, whether any deformity exists such as round shoulders, a pronounced inward curve in the lower back, or fallen arches. After all of these facts have been gathered, the doctor is now ready to make the diagnosis after comparing the various findings. Such a diagnosis is usually a "good" diagnosis.

A "good" diagnosis will do this for you: It will let you know whether your trouble is slight and thus relieve your mind of a great load of anxiety, or whether it is a more severe disorder which may be followed by serious consequences if no treatment is used.

A correct diagnosis is truly the first step along the road to recovery. The best plan is to have a good diagnosis made to make sure as soon as possible what trouble you have. You will then know what treatment to begin in order to most quickly regain complete good health.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION—From Mrs. L. K. of Redlands, Calif.: "I would like to know if you can use avocado leaves as a tea to help reduce the weight?"

ANSWER—I have never heard of these particular leaves being used as a tea, but I will be pleased to try to obtain this information for you and I suggest that you write to me again.

QUESTION — From A. B. M. of Oakland, Calif.: "Could you tell me what is the main reason for which licorice is prescribed?'

ANSWER—In the past, licorice has been prescribed as an ingredient in cough preparations. It is thought to be a good remedy to use in overcoming coughs. However, as a general rule, I do not prescribe the use of any medicinal preparation to stop coughs. If you wish to secure more information along this line, I suggest that you write to me.

You should cultivate the habit of being mentally alert. Do not let unimportant subjects, or issues, occupy your thoughts. Learn to concentrate on worthwhile subjects.

The child born on March 28, as it grows up, must be taught not to be slothful.

If March 28 is your natal day, you will find it to your advantage never to evade an issue. Cultivate the habit of being positive.

The man born on March 28, if he has not already reached his goal, need feel no discouragement, for many men, born on this date, do not make their real success until they have passed the so-called "prime of life."

People born on March 28, if they will follow the very good advice they so frequently give to others, themselves, will find most of their personal problems solved.

TORONTO'S FIRST CIVIC ELECTIONS

ON THIS DATE, a hundred years ago the citizens of the new city of Toronto elected their first city council. The act of incorporation had been given royal assent on March 6; the charter provided that the elections could be held within three months; yet on March 15 a proclamation was issued fixing March 27 for the elections. Why the hurry? Probably in the hope that the Reformers under William Lyon Mackenzie would be caught napping.

But the reverse was the case. Mackenzie started the fighting at once and what a campaign he put up! He appealed to the Radicals' detestation of the "Family Compact"; he warned the moderate Conservatives that the new civic government would, in Tory hands, become a mere taxing machine; he spoke on the hustings on carts and from the galleries of inns, and he poured out satire with his vitrolic pen in The Advocate, in which he submitted a slate of candidates to elect.

Election day came. The polling was open. Each elector, as he entered the poll, a majority of which were held in hotels, announced his choice for aldermen and councilmen, two for each ward. To the credit of the new city be it said that there was no disorder—until after the declaration of the polls and then what a sensation. "The d . . . d Reformers" had actually won a majority in the new council! No wonder the "upper circles" were amazed. Mackenzie headed the poll in St. David's ward and five other Reform aldermen were elected, and six of the councilmen were Mackenzieites.

The usual anaylsis of the vote showed that the official class, all the government employes, the scions of the "best families" had voted Tory, while the "rabble" consisted of people whose names were mostly unknown and many of them comparatively new arrivals. Indeed it had been said that had it not been a period of large immigration Mackenzie would never have won, and even today there are women in Rosedale, the aristocratic section of Toronto, who will tell you that Toronto was "betrayed by the dirty Irish," so long does it take for family prejudices to die. When the council met a day or so later Mackenzie was elected mayor and the Tory discomfiture was complete, but the next year they got back and in a little over three years Mackenzie was a fugitive.

THE BED OF PROCRUSTES

Editor Bulletin: There was in ancient Greece a famous robber named Procrustes, who was slain by Theseus. His real name was Polypemon or Damastes, but he came by the name of Procrustes, which means "the stretcher," from a playful fancy in which he liked to indulge. He boasted that he had a bed which fitted everyone. It was his practice to catch wayfarers and place them on his bed. If they were too short he stretched the limbs of the victim to the length of the bed; if too long, he simply lopped off the feet or legs until they fitted. So "the bed of Procrustes" has passed into a proverb to signify any attempt to make things conform to a fixed standard.

Just now we hear a great deal about the disparity between production and consumption. Production has outrun consumption and people talk of over-production. It is true that for the last few years goods have been produced faster than the markets can absorb them, but this does not mean that they have outrun possible consumption. What it does mean is that people have not had the money to buy the goods. The goods are there and the consumers are there with potential consuming capacity, but without the means of payment, that is purchasing power. They are not permitted to consume and the goods have to be destroyed and production curtailed.

These are the fruits of the orthodox economy. And as the result the world is getting deeper and deeper into the mire. The problem before our statesmen is how to equate consumption with production. All that they can suggest is to bring production down to the level of present market demand. Money is the connecting link but our economists regard that as a fixed quantity or fixed within the limits of the gold available, though gold is never seen. Is not this a perfect example of the Bed of Procrustes, with the unfortunate producer and consumer as the unhappy victims who have to be stretched or cut in turns to fit the bed?

Here is an example: Henry Wallace, secretary of agriculture for the United States, is reported as saying: "To sow less wheat at a time when throughout the world people are out of work and hungry—that is not an easy proposal to understand. The facts are harsh and unpalatable. Too much wheat diminishes farm buying power. Diminished farm buying power closes factories and helps throw millions of people out of work. Because these millions of people are out of work they have no money. When in the modern commercial world you have no money you go hungry, even in the shadow of mountainous surpluses of food." Further: "Piling up a wheat surplus to three times the normal, as we have done in the past four years makes more hungry mouths rather than less." Now any book on Economics speaks of the Circuit flow of money. Money is constantly spoken of as the lifeblood of industry and commerce, but Mr. Wallace in the same address says this: "Foods become goods and fill empty stomachs only when they move in the channels of trade. When goods are overproduced, the pressure of supply on price falls to a point where things either do not move at all, or move very sluggishly. Clots form. The circuit flow of prosperity is broken. The arteries of trade are clogged. Economic paralysis sets in." It will be noted that he speaks of "clots" as occurring not in the blood stream or the circulation of money but in the stream of goods. Could anything be more crazy? Do we live in Bedlam? Surely that way madness lies.

The international wheat agreement was made on the above assumption. It is not suggested that any other course was possible within the canons of the

Making The C.N.R. The Goat

By R. T. ELLIOTT, K.C.

In nothing do the apostles of re-action display more unfairness and animosity than in attacks upon the C.N.R. Listening to these reactionaries one would think the C.N.R. was a major cause of our national troubles.

As a matter of absolute truth the traffic of both our railway systems was strangled and is still strangled by the tariff war and the money blockade. It will take time, even once we make our long-delayed start, to arrange reciprocity treaties and restore a normal volume of international commerce; but the money blockade can be lifted—and safely and wisely lifted—today or tomorrow or any day on which Ottawa will act, because circulation of currency is entirely a matter of Dominion control. Raising the volume of currency in circulation will give immediate increase of traffic to both railway companies; and under the present condition of strangled business they are both in the same boat.

Illustrating the disastrous effect on railway traffic of the money blockade, the president of a still active and solvent lumber company gives the following non-political facts: As compared with the volume of lumber trade up to and including the year 1929, the losses of business which have tied up the lumber business must be divided as follows in respect of each $1000.00 of business lost by the lumber mills:

(1) Loss of domestic trade	$550.00
(2) Loss of United States trade	250.00
(3) Loss of Overseas trade	200.00
	$1000.00

The overseas trade is showing marked improvement in volume; and less marked improvement in price. The domestic trade remains dead. The Canadian tariff and the United States tariff (the Canadian tariff having in point of time been in force first) have deadlocked the Canada and U.S. trade.

It will be seen from a glance at the figures that lifting the money deadlock, and permitting commercial and construction industries to function will give the railways direct and substantial relief by restoring in domestic trade more than one-half of the lost lumber railway freight.

Many other lines of business would come to the rescue of both railway systems once an adequate supply of currency in circulation is made available for the commerce and industry of the nation. The money deadlock must be broken. Ottawa can do it today or any day. Nothing else will do any good for domestic trade and railway earnings. Neither of the railway systems has anything more to do with the national distress and trouble than you have. Money blockade and tariff deadlocks in combination are the basic causes.

INVESTITURE SET FOR APRIL 21

Meal Tax In B.C. Now Abolished

VICTORIA, March 27—The bill repealing the hospitals' aid or meal tax, was given third reading in the British Columbia legislature yesterday. The tax was levied last year.

The measure has been inoperative for some time. It provided a tax of three cents on a meal costing 50 cents with an additional cent for each 20 cents more of cost.

5 BIG BAD WOLVES FAIL SCARING GENE

ENTERPRISE, Ont., March 27—Five wolves that gathered around the door of the farm house where 18-year-old Eugene Knox was preparing the carcass of a newly-slaughtered pig, were routed by the cool-headed youth after one of the animals stuck its head in a large tin can he improvised as a trap. Today Knox passed through here on the way to claim the bounty for his wolf-pelt.

West Coast Church Buildings Burned

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C., March 27—Three church buildings at Port Essington, B.C., located at the mouth of the Skeena River, has been destroyed by fire yesterday, according to word received by British Columbia provincial police here.

Believed to have been started by a spark from a chimney falling on the roof of one of the buildings, the flames spread rapidly and completely destroyed the Indian church, the old United Church and the minister's residence.

COPYRIGHT 1934 JOHN DILLE CO

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Not all moral questions can be answered with absolute scientific accuracy, but no decision as to what is morally right is possible without science. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

1.—Yes. Frontier life, with its romance and excitement, its degradation and glory had to go because, for most people, the enormous advantages of civilization make life vastly richer and fuller. If the people of the old frontier wanted the old forms of life they would still have them.

2.—No, except in rare instances. In the extensive research made by Prof. Henry Foster Adams, University of Michigan psychologist, he had teams of ten each judge each other on over sixty mental characteristics. Each person made his judgments of the other secretly. But out of these fifty thousand judgments when the other team mates were shown the ratings with no names attached they could easily recognize which one was meant. They would exclaim, "O, the boaster is Windy Bill," or, "That modest, retiring one is Kathleen," or, "That studious, ambitious one is Phillip," etc. Yes, your friends know you for just about what you are.

3.—Beyond question. Popenoe and Johnson, in their fine text book, "Applied Eugenics," which should be used in every high school and college, urge that both applicants be required to appear for the license and that one party must come back for it at the end of three days. They found in Los Angeles County, Cal., where there is such a provision, that one thousand couples every year fail to return the third day. Little doubt that these represent mostly freak marriages, fraudulent, or drunken marriages. The delay imposed gave time for the priceless second thought.

How to Form GOOD HABITS

You can make or break any habit. Good habits are powerful allies. Because of their great importance to every one, Dr. Albert Edward Wiggam, distinguished scientist has written a splendid little 28-page booklet on this subject. It includes principles of habits, their formation and control as written by the late great Harvard Professor William James. Booklet sent upon request accompanied by self-addressed stamped return envelope. Include 10c in coin or stamps to cover actual costs. Just ask for HABITS. Address, Dr. Albert Wiggam, in care of this newspaper.

Married Flirts

By MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GYPSY MORELL and TOM WEAVER are married on the same day as LILA HOTALING and DEREK BLISS, but Lila expects to live in luxury while Gypsy keeps her job teaching in a settlement school.

Gypsy has to struggle to keep expenses within Tom's income. Another problem is Tom's jealousy of wealthy MARKO BROUGHTON who once asked Gypsy to marry him and whom they meet at the Blisses' home.

When the doctor tells Gypsy she is to have a baby she gives up her job. Summer comes on and is intensely hot. Gypsy and Tom move to a cottage on Long Island owned by a friend.

The baby is born in late September and the Weavers return to their apartment. Gypsy finds housework with the baby to care for, exhausting. They spend the Christmas holidays with Gypsy's parents in New Jersey. New Year's night Tom and Gypsy are summoned home from a party by news that the baby is ill.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIII

IT WAS a nightmare—a hideous, black, absorbing nightmare. The rush home through the silent streets, slippery now, fast glazing under the moon; the first sight of the Morell house lighted throughout, with the doctor's coupe parked at the driveway. Gypsy scarcely waited for Tom to put on the brakes. She was out of the door, halfway up the stairs by the time he had fairly stopped the car.

"David . . . mother, how is he?"

The big guest room, with its rose-garlanded paper, its peeling creamy woodwork, was one blaze of lights. Gypsy saw only the tiny figure in the bassinette with Doctor Bannerman bending over it. There was a peculiar smell in the room. Clytie hovered near with a kettle. Someone had made a sort of tent with sheets over the big, wide flat bed with the pineapple posts.

The doctor straightened at Gypsy's entrance.

"Nothing but a little croup," he said easily. "Frightening at first, of course. Your mother had quite a turn. . . ."

Mrs. Morell began volubly to explain. Her children, she said, had never had croup. She was terrified when she heard young David's heavy breathing—when he began to choke.

"But he was perfectly well — he was fine when I left him," Gypsy kept saying in her bewilderment. Some one brought her a chair; her knees were trembling with the reaction. The baby slept quietly now, one crumpled roseleaf hand thrown above his head. Lights were turned down and the watchers in the room moved softly, speaking in whispers.

Tom told Gypsy to go to bed; he'd watch David himself. But she was stubborn. She wouldn't sleep, she told him. What was the use? She refused even to take off her frock but sat, wrapped in her woolly robe, her eyes on the crib.

She had been dancing, laughing, an hour ago. She had felt like a girl, carefree, minus responsibilities. Now she wondered at that other light-hearted self. How dreadful, how incalculable life was, always striking at you in the dark. Why, David might have died, fighting for his breath, if Mums hadn't heard him! She trembled at the thought.

She must, at last, have dozed off because when she opened her eyes again the room was very chilly and Tom, straight and tall in his dressing gown, stood beside her.

"Darling, you'll make yourself ill. Lie down in the other bed in Bea's room and I'll watch here. He'll be all right. The doctor said there were even chances he'd not be disturbed again tonight."

She was stiff, cold, aching in every limb. It was good to be cared for and comforted. The sheets between which she crept were deliciously warm. She was asleep in five minutes.

David was happy, rosy, untouched the next morning. The brief and frightening attack of croup vanished without leaving a trace—upon the baby, at least. But it had quite a lasting effect on his young mother. She discovered that the love she felt for him was tinged with fear—fear she might lose him, that something might strike, out of the dark, at his smallness and helplessness.

Yes, motherhood had changed her more than a little. It had sobered and sweetened and saddened her. It made her all at once more womanly, more gentle, more thoughtful while the experience of being a father, she considered gravely, had altered Tom not at all. When they were together, in their own little home, and Gypsy's glowing face and bright eyes were turned up to him, Tom forgot everything except that she was his, infinitely dear and adorable. When he unlocked his own door at night it was Gypsy he wanted to see, first of all. The sound of her light laughter was the sweetest music he knew and he was still filled with wonderment at the thought that she had chosen him out of all the world. The baby came second; Gypsy was first always.

While this did not make any real difference between them, Tom was conscious that under Gypsy's love for him ran always, without change or cessation, her passionate concern for the boy. David completed the circle . . . he and Gypsy and David. Well, that was as it should be, he knew that. And yet . . . and yet . . . Gypsy had been more completely his before David's coming.

Perhaps it was natural, as the months went on, that he came to spend a little more of his time at the office. For one thing, there were the new demands that David's needs placed upon the Weavers' slender income. And for another, Gypsy was wrapped up in the baby's welfare. She did not feel free to go about as she had before. She was often actually too tired to go to the movies in the evening. She even urged Tom to go by himself or with the Matsons, another young couple who lived on the same floor.

At first Tom protested. No, he'd rather stay at home. He'd much rather be with her. But Gypsy was sometimes too weary to talk. She would make an excuse to creep off to bed early. Small wonder that Tom dropped into the habit of going out without her.

Sometimes she was frightened at her own weariness and dullness and her absorption in the baby. Tom would tire of her, she would tell herself wildly, glancing at her image in the mirror. She had nothing to talk about these days. The young mothers she met in the park were deep in the mysteries of formulas and pureed carrots and orange juice. How could she, after an afternoon of this conversation, be bright and amusing for her husband? And wasn't David worth any self-sacrifice?

One evening in March they went to dine with Tom's boss, a rubicund gentleman who owned a charming house in Scarsdale. It was all very pleasant—food, host and guests. But Gypsy felt quite out of it. Her frock was unfashionable and her small talk rusty. She hadn't been to any of the new plays, she didn't do the night clubs. Her hostess was smooth, manicured, beautifully dressed and jeweled. Gypsy considered, with humorous despair, asking them to her home and gave up the project in five minutes. No, until David was a little older—until they had more room and a better servant they would have to abstain from entertaining.

The next day Gypsy made a lot of new resolutions. She would "fuss more" over her own looks, would never neglect cold creaming rites at night, would give herself a daily manicure. Tom had seemed to find that young copy-writer very charming last night. She, Gypsy, had been considered a most delightful companion once upon a time. Where had all her amusing repartee vanished?

When the telephone rang late that afternoon and Tom's voice came to her she was pleasantly excited. Often when he called this late it was to announce that some newspaper friend had given him second night tickets to a play.

"Yes, darling!"

But her voice dwindled; the ring of pleased expectancy died out of it. He had to work? Oh, that was too bad! She had been mentally freshening up her best black frock, doing her hair.

Tom was sorry, he said. There was a big new account in the office. He hated leaving her alone but honestly he had to work on this stuff. She was a good sport! It was all right, then?

Gypsy put the telephone down with a sensation of disappointment and defeat. The long evening stretched out before her with a lonely and solitary dinner to boot. Well, it was too bad, but it couldn't be helped.

She got David ready for the night, a lovely, laughing scrap of babyhood in his ribbed nightgown. But after he had been tucked away in his crib, the light turned out and the windows opened, a feeling of deep forlornness swept over her. She stood at the kitchen window, her forehead against the cool pane, gazing down at the lighted streets below. Far to the west she could see the lights of the gay street, Broadway. An advertising sign twinkled on and off, red and yellow, red and yellow, half a block away. Night sounds, sounds of the city throwing off its daytime mood of seriousness, making ready for play, came to her faintly. The hooting of taxis, the scrape of brakes. A radio blared out across the way. Dinner music. Somewhere down in the city men and girls were dancing to the strains of that music, were dining and smoking and laughing.

"I—I feel like Cinderella," Gypsy said to herself, trying to smile. But tears pricked at her eyelds. She swallowed hard. Why, she was being just a baby! She'd had to eat her dinner alone, before this. What was the matter with her?

The chop and the baked potato and the spinach all tasted like dust and ashes to her. She picked up a magazine and tried to read but the type all swam together. The stories were trite and uninteresting. What was she doing, in this strange little apartment, high up above the uncaring city, alone? She needed laughter and good talk and the kind faces of friends.

She piled the dishes in the sink, resolving to wash them later. Slipping quietly past the bedroom in which David slept, she washed and powdered and donned her black frock. If she had to be alone, at least she could make herself fresh and presentable. Nothing would happen . . . nothing ever happened to her any more. Her life was at a standstill.

The doorbell rang resoundingly, as if in answer to this thought. Flashing to answer it, she cried in amazement. "Why, Hunt! Where on earth did you drop from?"

existing economic fabric. Under the present system the supply of credit goes to the producer, never to the consumer as such. But this ignores the fact that the consumer is the pivot of the system. All production is for the purpose of consumption. Without a consumer there would be no object in production. Starve the consumer, cut off his purchasing power, and you attain the same result. And that is the situation in the modern industrial world, and it has directly led to the present depression; and even if in process of time we do painfully climb out of the depression and enter upon another boom, nothing is more certain than that there will be another clump in aggravated form, for in the new power age, with machines doing the work of men, more cheaply and more efficiently, human labor will be progressively displaced by mechanical power, which means inevitable unemployment, with shortage of purchasing power, and consequently a glut of goods. Again we shall have the Bed of Procrustes, with producers and consumers alike as the victims, the bed being a financial system devised in the pre-industrial era, which takes no account of the changed conditions brought on by the introduction of solar energy into industry.

Can no statesman arise to bring consumption up to the level of production by the increase of purchasing power? And yet there are economists who are ready to show that this very thing can be done, through the use of national credit to stimulate consumption. The New English Weekly in powerful weekly articles has for the past six months preached this to President Roosevelt as the only way to solve the problem of distribution, by the distribution of credit to the consumer and not to the producer. Premier Bennett describes such proposals as those of "Quack Doctors." A suffering world is beginning to wonder whether, judging from results, the physicians now in charge are not themselves the quacks, in their stubborn clinging to gold as the basis of the world's wealth, instead of the food, clothing, lumber, mines, etc., produced by the labors of mankind and the brains of science which are the real wealth of the world. Blind leaders of the blind, they shall both fall into the ditch.

Edgerton. HERBERT BOYD.

COME ON YOU SHREDDED WHEAT!

EVERY morning, all over Canada, children look forward eagerly to their oven-crisp, golden-brown Shredded Wheat Biscuits with milk or cream . . . served hot for chilly days, cold for warmer days. You don't have to "tempt" them to eat. And what a comfort to feel that they are enjoying the vital elements that Nature puts in whole wheat, in a most delicious and digestible form to make them sturdy, keep them well. Ready cooked . . . ready to serve.

Women Members Highlands Golf Club Organize

Mrs. T. Harold Fielde Elected President at Annual Meeting

Already looking forward to long hours on the links and greens of the Edmonton golf courses, clubs are re-organizing for the opening of the season. The Women's section of the Highlands Golf Club held their annual meeting in the Hudson's May Palm Room on Monday afternoon, when reports from club officers for the past year and conveners or committees were heard.

Dr. D. B. Leitch presided at the meeting and Mrs. R. C. Marshall, president of the social committee, gave an account of the year's activities. Mrs. Douglas Harper, the treasurer, gave a satisfactory report of the financial status of the organization, and in the absence of Mrs. F. J. Davidson, captain of the sports committee, Mrs. Robert Muir gave her report.

Mrs. T. Harold Fielde was elected president of the women's club, and president of the social committee, with Mrs. Reginald Jennings, Mrs. H. C. Summers, Mrs. E. H. Molstad, Mrs. D. B. Leitch, Miss Florence Jane Teets, and Miss Violet Chapman to assist on her committee.

Mrs. Robert Muir will captain the sports committee, with Mrs. Harvey Baker, Mrs. M. M. Dunsworth, Mrs. H. Husband and Mrs. T. Pinch, elected as assisting members.

W.I.L. Will Issue Peace Bulletins

In conjunction with all branches of the League of Nations in all countries which are endeavoring to contribute to world peace, the Edmonton branch of the Women's International League for Peace plans to issue a series of monthly bulletins dealing with points suggested for study by the League, as guide.

Many subjects suggested have already been dealt with in radio addresses, and it is the plan of the local branch to supplement these rather than to repeat.

It is hoped that existing organizations will make use of these bulletins, which will be as concise and comprehensive as possible, to further their understanding of international relations and Canada's part in maintaining world peace.

Further information and a sample bulletin may be had from the secretary, Mrs. H. L. Seymour, 10931 83 avenue.

Travels to Egypt and the Continent

Planning a delightful trip to ancient Egypt, sunny Italy, France, and England, Mrs. J. Arthur Emery will leave Edmonton shortly after the Easter festival to spend several months abroad. Princess Galitzine will accompany her. En route east Mrs. Emery plans to visit her sister, Mrs. Clair Irving Long, in Minneapolis, before proceeding to New York, from where she will sail.

Social - Personal

FOR fifteen happy years Dickie's song from the cage in the sunny window has been a joy with the waking morning, and a vesper at evening. Although for the past two years he has not been quite the glad hearted bird of his younger days, he was always there, looking like a ball of gold, balancing on his swing, or springing from perch to perch—scolding if his seed cup wasn't full to the brim or if some one had forgotten to put his little glass bath into the cage. Perhaps a bird doesn't command the strong affection that a dog does, but a bird is such a gay thing, and very dear. So when Dickie tried very hard for a few minutes to hold on to the high perch which was always his favorite, this morning, and then fell to the floor of the cage with one wing outspread, his little head limp, his singing voice silent, there was a great sadness in the house.

It wasn't that Dickie had any especial tricks. He was just a canary, as canaries go, he wouldn't eat from one's hand, or sit on one's shoulder or fly in and out of his cage at will, as some birds do. He would "give a kiss" . . . when he was cross at night and someone disturbed him, for he would fly up with his wings outspread and his eyes afire with anger, but that was called "a kiss". He used to like to fly about the room, but he was always far more happy to go back to his cage.

When quite a small girl picked him out from a number of other baby songsters in a great wicker cage 15 years ago, he was chosen because he didn't have a tail. Because he began life with an "affliction" he was the more dearly loved. But when he was taken away and cared for he grew a perfectly beautiful tail, and his feathers were sleekest gold. An adventure with a cat, when he was rescued just in time, made him the more dear . . . just as the time when he flew away to the tree-tops and woudn't come down made him seem very precious. Now that the cage stands empty, the seed cup half full, the swing, for once quiet, one knows that for a long time there can never be another Dickie to take his place.—E. R. B.

Club Activities

"STUNT NIGHT" ARTISTS GUESTS OF ROBERTSON W.A.

All who assisted at the "Stunt Night," popular entertainment provided by the Women's Association of Robertson church recently, were guests at the special meeting arranged on Monday afternoon, and held in the church. Regular reports were heard which Mrs. W. T. Whitelaw, the secretary, reported an active season, and Mrs. W. L. Mitchell, the treasurer, gave an account of receipts from the "stunt night" showing a net profit of $136.48.

Mr. H. S. Craig of the Board of Managers was present and spoke to the meeting requesting that the association should undertake the building of a new entrance and stairway.

Circles 12 and 14 presented a shower of holders to the W.A. and it was announced that Circle 13 will hold a tea at the home of Mrs. H. MacCrostie, St. George's Crescent on Friday, April 13.

A paper on Canadian authors, given by Mrs. A. A. Campbell, was intensely interesting and enjoyable, adding greatly to the appreciation of Canadian books and poetry of the members and to their information. Mrs. Campbell read excerpts from the works of three of the outstanding Canadian women poets.

Mrs. K. C. McLeod was the soloist and following the meeting tea was served. Pink roses centred the tea table where Mrs. K. C. McLeod and Mrs. H. G. Hornsby presided. Mrs. A. D. Love was in charge and those assisting were Mrs. Frank Pepper, Mrs. G. S. Armstrong, Mrs. J. O. Stein, Mrs. C. G. Geggie, Mrs. A. C. Grant, Mrs A. F. Anderson and Mrs. A. P. C. Belyea.

MR. LORNE WADE WINS DICKENS ESSAY CONTEST

Essays Prove Fine Understanding of Great Author

To Mr. Lorne Wade of Consort is awarded the first prize of $10 in the essay contest conducted by the Dickens Fellowship of Edmonton recently, in which there were eight money prizes awarded.

Proving not only an interest in the works of Charles Dickens but a fine perception and appreciation of his writings and detailed information, entries in the competition were of an exceedingly high order. "Why Dickens is so widely read today," was the subject of the essay.

"It is most satisfactory to find that readers throughout Alberta not only read Dickens but possess a well-balanced and critical appreciation of his merits," states Mr. H. R. Leaver, president of the fellowshop.

The prize list is as follows: 1, Lorne Wade, Consort, $10; 2, Mrs. W. Parker, Stony Plain, $5; 3, Mrs. A. T. Thorsby, Ryley, $3; 4, Loraine Aseltine, Lomond, $2; 5, Mrs. James Nichol, Edmonton, $2; 6, Mrs. Ruby Greenwood, Edmonton, $2; 7, Miss M. Galloway, Vermilion, $2; 8, Miss I. K. MacLennan, Red Deer, $2.

BEVERLY PAYS HONOR TO ITS HOCKEY TEAM

Champion Bush Mine Tigers Guests at Banquet, Dance

Beverly citizens turned out en masse Thursday night to the banquet in the United church which was held in honor of Mr. K. S. Campbell and his Bush Mine Tigers, winners of the Coughlin cup, emblem of the Commercial league hockey championship. Mayor Gerry, accompanied by Mrs. Gerry, presided and proposed the toast to the Bush Mine Tigers. This was responded to by Mr. Cecil Hightower, president of the hockey club. Manager K. S. Campbell, Secretary F. Glossop, Captain Harold Jinks and Vice-captain Paul Guenette also spoke expressing their appreciation of the support they had received during the season and of the fine public recognition of their success in the banquet and entertainment. Mr. H. Haverstock proposed the toast "To the Ladies" and Mr. P. B. Lawton made a very suitable response on their behalf.

Those invited were Mr. C. Hightower, Miss F. Hightower, Mr. and Mrs. K. S. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. P. Howatt, Mr. F. Glossop, Miss R. Dando, Mr. H. Jinks, Miss L. Jinks, Mr. P. Guenette, Miss N. Campbell, Mr. P. Haverstock, Mr. G. Campbell, Miss B. Wilkinson, Mr. and Mrs. R. Muir, Mr. H. Soley, Miss R. Clarke, Mr. A. Soley, Miss M. Jerry, Mr. and Mrs. F. Johnson, Mr. H. Hanson, Miss P. Walters, Mr. F. Pilip, Miss A. Pilip, Mr. W. Danilowich, Miss A. Yopek, Mr. T. Mottershead, Miss H. Yopek, Mr. A. Floden, Miss B. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. H. Haverstock, Mr. and Mrs. A. Guenette, Mr. and Mrs. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. W. Jinks, Mr. and Mrs. Soley, Mr. and Mrs. J. Campbell, Mrs. Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. Danilowich ,Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Floden, Mr. and Mrs. Pilip.

A feature of the banquet which proved of special interest was a two-tier fruit cake made by Mrs. S. Jersak. Its gleaming white surface was decorated with hockey sticks and pucks. A miniature goal, guarded by a very realistic tiger crowned it. All the players initials were etched in green icing around the sides and the slogan "Good Luck, Bush Mine Tigers" was also carried out in the club colors.

More than 300 guests and fans were catered to by a most efficient ladies' committee in charge of Mrs. F. Meakin. Members of the committee were Mrs. Beauchamp, Mrs. Cammidge, Mrs. Collins, Mrs. Dawson, Mrs. Foster, Mrs. L. Golby, Mrs. H. Hightower, Mrs. W. Hightower, Mrs. Hood, Mrs. Jersak, Mrs. T. E. Kinch, Mrs. Lammie, Mrs. Milburn, Mrs. Minns, Mrs. Norman, Mrs. Simpson, Mrs. Weir.

After the banquet speeches, the Mayor escorted the guests to the Municipal Hall where Mr. W. E. Curtis acted as chairman for the concert. Mr. W. Hoyle presided at the piano in his own inimitable manner and led a round of community singing. President C. Hightower introduced the players and other officers of the club to the audience. Miss Marie Jordan and Master Lorace Kirk of the Jordan School of Dancing contributed a number of songs and dances. Miss Flo Clarke sang three beautiful numbers. Her sister, Miss R. Clarke, accompanied her on the piano. The Misses Vera, Margaret and Anita Biollo were a trio of lovely singers. Mrs. J. Booth contributed a fine solo. Miss Peggy Dalziel and Miss Nancy Anderson performed two popular dances in their usual vivacious manner and Miss Thelma Booth was a dainty solo dancer.

An old-time septette consisting of Messrs. K. S. Campbell, Glossop, Martin, Collins, Elliott, Holloway and Dawson rendered "Sweet Adeline" and other former favorites with great verve.

At the conclusion of the concert Mr. J. L. Collins took charge of the dance floor.

A draw for vouchers resulted in Mr. S. Elliott, Miss Marguerite Booth, and Mr. Fojollow winning respectively $5.00, $2.00, $1.00 vouchers. Mr. W. Hightower and Miss M. Morris were in charge of the canteen.

Weddings

BOGNER—BOCH

TROCHU, March 27. — A pretty wedding was solemnized in the German United church, Trochu, Sunday afternoon, March 4, when Miss Elsie Boch, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Boch, of Trochu, was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. Bogner, sixth son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Bogner, also of Trochu, Rev. J. Redburger, of Biesiker, officiating.

After a short honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Bogner will take up residence on their farm near here.

Mr. William McRea Honored At Ninety

In honor of Mr. William McRae, who celebrated his ninetieth birthday, Sunday, March 25, Mr. and Mrs. J. Coxford entertained at their home at 9026 106 street, when many friends and neighbors were present to offer their congratulations and to present to him a gift.

Mr. McRae was born in Ross township, Ontario, March 25, 1844, and spent a number of years in the lumber industry in Arnprior, Ontario. In 1898 he came west to Clover Bar, where he farmed until recently, when he moved into Edmonton. He now makes his home with Mr. and Mrs. Coxford, and has relatives in Westlock, Ontario, and California.

A bowl of beautiful roses centered the table, the gift to Mr. McRae from Mr. and Mrs. Timbres.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Those invited were Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Timbres, Mr. and Mrs. C. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Walters, Mr. and Mrs. G. K. Guild, Mr. and Mrs. J. Parkes, Mr. and Mrs. J. Burger, Mr. and Mrs. H. Burger, Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Bijou, Mr. and Mrs. A. Audley, Miss W. Audley, Mrs. M. McLeod, Mr. A. Pearce.

Don't Cry Over Broken Romance

"I just can't be bothered about a broken romance," says Evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, in commenting on her recent divorce. That is the most intelligent attitude I have ever known a woman to take toward a marriage that has gone sour, and if more ladies, whose love dreams have turned into nightmares, would follow her example the world would be a drier and more cheerful place in which to live. For most of us have acquired rheumatism in our shoulders from having them soaked with the tears of our sisters and our cousins and our aunts and our female friends generally whose marriages have gone blooey.

Dorothy Dix

Why a woman should shed tears over losing a good-for-nothing husband who has brought her nothing but misery and disillusionment, nobody knows. Nor can any one conjecture why any woman should pass into a state of melancholia when she makes a getaway from the alleged holy estate, which has been nothing but a pergatory to her. These are unsolvable mysteries. They are merely things that happen.

All of us know women married to drunkards whom they spent their lives fishing out of the gutter, or to lazy loafers who played pool while they went out and earned the living for the family. We have known women married to philanderers who flaunted their infidelities before their faces and kept them wild with jealousy.

One would think that when one of these women with a curse of a husband lost him in any way whatever she would consider it a good riddance of bad rubbish and rejoice thereat and strike upon the cymbals to celebrate her luck. But does she do it? Not at all Instead, she beats upon her breast and cries out that she is of all women the most miserable.

In all good truth there is nothing else on earth that women need more than to snap out of this silly sentimental depression, and, instead of salting down the tattered remnants of their romance in brine, to have gumption enough to see that they are not worth preserving and chuck them into the garbage can along with the other litter.

Just think how much happiness this would bring about. Think how many vinegary old maids, who have had all the milk of human kindness in them turn to clabber by being jilted by a faithless lover, would be eliminated if only they had enough vision to see that Fate had really given them a love pat instead of a blow.

Think how much misery they would save themselves and others if, instead of bewailing their misfortune, they would exclaim: "My, what a lucky break I've got. How fortunate that Algernon forsook me before marriage instead of afterward when I might, perhaps, have been left with a house full of children that I would have had to work for and support. Why should I cry over a man who doesn't love me and doesn't want me? I should worry."

And what floods of woe it would save if, when a married man elopes with a platinum-haired blonde or a flapper young enough to be his daughter, his wife had sense enough to look upon the "other woman" as a benefactress instead of a robber. For really a wife should be grateful to the woman who takes a phildering husband off her hands. What joy it would add to the life of many a forsaken wife if instead of cherishing her wrongs and regaling her friends with a sad, sad story she would say:

"Thank goodness, that's over and he is gone at last, and I won't have to be tortured with jealousy any longer or lie awake at night wondering where he is spending his time and what woman he is having an affair with. Now I can settle down and enjoy my alimony in peace and get the line out of my face. A husband you can't trust is a grief, and anybody who wants him is welcome to mine."

And think of the peace that passes all understanding that would come to the middle-aged women who are starving themselves to death trying to maintain a boyish figure and dyeing their hair and having their faces lifted understudying flappers and wearing themselves to skin and bones attempting the role of vamps in order to hold their husbands, if they could reach the pinnacle of philosophy occupied by a woman who declared that she never worried about her husband getting tired of her because no man could get tired any quicker than she could. She could beat him to it every time.

Wouldn't it make enormously for the happiness of women if only, like Sister Aimee, they just couldn't be bothered about crying over broken romances?

DOROTHY DIX.

Care of Eyes Prevents Puffs and Dark Circles

By GLADYS GLAD
"America's Most Famous Beauty"

The charming Claudette Colbert, whose gracious beauty has caused many a male heart to turn flip-flops, has just about the largest and darkest orbs in the entire movie mecca. Claudette's eyes are very dark and brilliant. They form a most pleasing contrast with her creamy white skin. And she always gives them the best of care, in order to preserve their limpid brilliance.

Like Claudette, there are quite a few gals in this world who possess basically beautiful eyes. But unlike La Colbert, a good many of them neglect their orbs and eventually ruin their loveliness. The gal, for instance, who permits puffs and dark circles to form beneath her eyes, certainly isn't helping to make her orbs appear more beautiful. For puffs and dark shadows are not only aging, but certainly detract greatly from eye beauty.

Puffs and dark circles under the eyes usually result from lack of sleep, eye strain or ill-health. The first thing to be done in eradicating them is to discover the exact cause, and to correct it. Every woman should obtain at least eight hours of sleep every night. It is weariness and fatigue that make the eyes look old and tired. Rest will do more to make the eyes look bright and young than anything else.

Too much sleep, however, can also cause dark rings under the eyes. If you are afflicted with such puffs and circles, just try two weeks of honest regularity. Get sufficient, but not too much sleep, spend plenty of time in the sunshine and fresh air, exercise to stimulate your circulation, and eat regularly and carefully. Then see whether your eyes don't look better!

CLAUDETTE COLBERT

Eye strain, too, may cause dark circles and puffs under the eyes. Consequently, the eyes should be rested frequently during the day. And when there is a condition of chronic eye strain, a competent oculist should be consulted. If you do obtain sufficient sleep each night, and you should consult a competent physician. Kidney trouble heart trouble and other internal disorders may cause the appearance of the puffs or dark circles. And until the exact cause of these eye disfigurments is discovered and corrected, it is well nigh impossible to eradicate them.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Milia

Harriet: Whiteheads are caused by sluggish tissues, improper cleansing methods, and internal disorders. The quickest and most effective method of eradicating them is by expert use of the electric needle.

Bleach

Frances: The bleach is apparently too strong for your skin. Use a soothing cream on your skin until the irritation subsides. And substitute a milder bleach for future use, such as lemon juice or peroxide.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

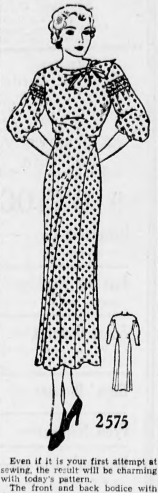
What New York Is Wearing

By Helen Williams



Even if it is your first attempt at sewing, the result will be charming with today's pattern.

The front and back bodice with drop shoulders cut all in one with the centre skirt. Merely side panels to be joined to the skirt. The lower sleeves are easy enough shirred into the drop shoulders.

It's just the model for the bright spring silk prints. It can be worn with a belt, if you find a belt more becoming. Pattern provides for long sleeves as wee back sketch. It is also lovely sleeveless for summer silks and cotton prints, as the drop shoulder covers the upper arms.

Style No. 2575 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18 years, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards of 39-inch material.

Patterns will be delivered upon receipt of TWENTY cents (20c) in coins, carefully wrapped, or stamps. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE, NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

Our LATEST FASHION BOOK will be sent upon receipt of FIFTEN cents in coins. Address all mail orders to Pattern Department, Edmonton Bulletin.

Smack Your Lips Over These Griddle Cakes!

By SISTER MARY

Yum-yum! Pineapple griddle cakes for breakfast, lavishly buttered and smothered in this year's maple syrup, smooth and fragrant! What could be more luscious?

Sister Mary

From the cook's point of view, too, griddle cakes are a high spot on the bill-of-fare. That's because they are easy to make.

Numerous preparations, all ready for baking except for the addition of liquid, are on the market. One needs only to follow the directions on the package and griddle cakes are made so easily and quickly it seems like magic. However, if you prefer to "stir up" your own griddle cakes, the following recipe is excellent.

GRIDDLE CAKES

Two cups sour milk, 2 eggs, 2¼ cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 tablespoon brown sugar, 2 tablespoons melted butter or other shortening.

Sour milk makes more tender cakes, but if not at hand, sweet milk can be used. With sweet milk use four teaspoons baking powder in place of soda.

Sift flour once and measure. Add salt and soda and mix and sift several times to insure the soda being thoroughly mixed through the flour. Add sugar. Make a well in the centre of the dry ingredients and add milk and egg which has been slightly beaten. Stir vigorously, mixing as rapidly as possible and adding the melted shortening at this time. Bake on a hot griddle first on one side and then on the other.

Cheese griddle cakes are rather unusual and very good. To make them add two-thirds cup of grated cheese to the dry ingredients, mixing well before adding the liquid ingredients. Bake as usual.

Nut griddle cakes also are delectable. Add one cup finely chopped salted nuts to the dry ingredients, reducing the amount of salt in the recipe to one-quarter. Mix lightly and add liquid ingredients and bake as usual. If unsalted nuts are used, increase the amount of salt in the recipe to ¾ teaspoon.

Fruit griddle cakes serve as dessert and are novel. For apple griddle cakes, add 1½ cups very thinly sliced apple to dry ingredients and mix lightly. Add liquid ingredients, mix and bake as usual. Choose tart, quick-cooking apples. As each cake is removed from the griddle, sprinkle it with a mixture of 1 part cinnamon to 3 parts brown sugar.

Pineapple griddle cakes are a bit different in their preparation.

PINEAPPLE GRIDDLE CAKES

Two-thirds cup pineapple juice 1 1-3 cups sour milk, 1 cup crushed pineapple, 2⅓ cups flour, 1¼ teaspoon soda, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 3 tablespoons granulated sugar, 2 tablespoons melted butter.

Beat yolks of eggs until light and add to milk, pineapple juice and crushed pineapple. Add with melted butter to dry ingredients and mix lightly. Fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Bake on a hot griddle. Serve with maple syrup or pineapple sauce.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKAST: Chilled tomato juice with lemon, cereal, cream, scrambled eggs, toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Brown onion soup, lettuce and mayonnaise sandwiches, pineapple griddle cakes, milk, tea.

DINNER: Corned beef with potatoes, cabbage, carrots, beets and turnips, rye bread, rhubarb dumplings, milk, coffee.

Your Children

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

CONDUCT IS GOVERNED BY HOME INFLUENCE

How important a part parents play in the behavior of their children is told by Olive Roberts Barton in this article, another of her series on Child Training.

By Olive Roberts Barton

Jimmy at six or over presents another new problem to his mother. Before, when he misbehaved, she knew instinctively that people made allowance for it because he was so little.

O. R. Barton

Now that he is older, certain things are expected of him, and she knows it. She is very likely to feel a sensitiveness about his ill conduct because she senses that it reflects on herself.

No apology is necessary for this statement, I believe. Mothers are mothers the world over and we're pretty much the same. If we have never thought of our attitude toward our children's misdemeanors in this light, it is just as well we begin to think now. All parents either suffer or are proud, depending on the event, through their own ego largely.

So when I speak of "good" behavior, I am not emphasizing the things that "we" think make Jimmy good. I am speaking of normal, happy conduct. It is nice to have an orderly, well-mannered and studious child, but if he is none of these things it certainly does not mean he is bad by any means.

GUIDING THE CHILD

In encouraging good behavior, it is necessary to go deeper than that. The "good" child is one who is not mean, who has the moral courage to tell and act the truth, who plays fair, and who has in him incipient sympathy and kindness and generosity. Virtues, such as the latter, cannot be expected of him now as they should be later. He can be guided toward them and reminded. This is necessary, but he will fail us many times.

At first the kindnesses have to be fixed through "self." That is with the preschool child, when self-importance is developing and praise counts for so much.

But by six it is well to have Jimmy take a little different view of matters. He can aid a child, or look after a hurt dog or make a present for somebody, or help his mother, not because it makes him feel noble but because it is the manly thing to do. Of course I say, Jimmy, but always remember, please, that I mean Jean too.

Perhaps he won't get out of his system entirely the emotional kick of doing good. He may never get it out, as too few of us do. But it is one thing that I think has been too little emphasized in child training and I consider it high time to overcome it.

AVOID USE OF FORCE

It has been said that most people are "emotional babies" through life. This is why. We either get a kick out of being decently kind or generous, or else we develop mental conflicts because we have to do something it is not in our nature to do.

"Habit" is the word to concentrate on, not "duty." If we keep holding duty over Jimmy's head he will probably get sick of it, as such. But quietly and persistently turning his mind toward gracious habits, without too much talking, too much forcing or too much emotionalism, will do wonders. Environment counts for much. The child who lives in an atmosphere where the family is thinking of others and who is permitted to share in the general helpfulness, will most likely be conditioned to the same kindliness without a word being spoken.

Jimmy is very young. He is just beginning. We cannot expect too much of the little fellow. He'll be very busy with life so suddenly opened up. He will be curious, and energetic and in such a hurry he will be thoughtless. But other influences can be at work without his knowledge—the influence toward goodness. Let us not be too superficial and polish the surface only. Better to have the fibre precious.

Next—Interest.

What's What

Question—Two months ago, I married secretly. Christmas I presented my husband to my family and, after much protestation, all is well at last. Now Ralph wishes to write to his people, who live out West, informing them of the marriage. The point is, would it be proper for me to inclose a few words personally, and if so, kindly give a brief outline of what should be said. Should I address them as "Mother and Father" or "Mr. and Mrs."? I am a total stranger to them. BRIDE.

Answer—You should understand that the secrecy of your marriage must be distasteful to your husband's family; it is possible that it may alienate him from them forever. You are utterly unknown to them; it would be bad form for you to enter into correspondence with Ralph's parents unless or until they write to you. At present, you cannot be surprised if they should regard you as an interloper. No girl should consent to a hidden marriage; it means unhappiness for her as well as for the relatives on both sides of the house. A wedding may be as informal as the contracting parties wish, but, even for the protection of the bride, it ought to be an open ceremony.

Question—How should a mother and daughter sign Easter cards? C. B.

Answer—It is much more satisfactory to mail separate cards, but if a joint greeting is preferred, the mother's name comes first—"Charlotte Benson and Ada." Since Easter cards go only to intimates, no prefix is required.

The Housewife's Idea Box

To Open Fruit Jars

Very often the covers of fruit, mayonnaise and other jars are very difficult to open. First invert the jar and knock the cover on a flat surface. If it does not come off easily then, place a piece of sandpaper over the cover and under your hand and then turn the cover. It usually comes off easily.

A clean straw placed through the air vent in the top of a fruit pie will prevent the juice from boiling over.

Who Are You?

Capp

"Never unprepared" is the motto of the Capp family.

This is a shortened form of the trade name Capper—a maker of caps. In olden days it was spelled Kapper and Kapp. The Cap or Kap family is of Scotch origin, and its members trace their lineage and arms back to the glorious days of Robert Bruce. During the period of religious turmoil in the British Isles the Capps were forced to leave their native Scotland and took up residence in the Palatinate of Germany, where they lived many years before the family was introduced into America.

The first of the Capp family in this country was Andreas Capp, who, with his wife, Regina Sophia, and many of their friends left Germany and migrated to the Western World, settling first in New York State near the Hudson River. They became dissatisfied with their home there and purchased land in Pennsylvania, and in 1728 made their long trek through the wilderness, assisted by friendly Indians.

SWISS PRESS RESENTFUL OF RUSS. ENTRY

GENEVA, March 27.—With conversations supposedly going on to get Russia to join the League of Nations, the Conservative Journal of Geneva yesterday declared that the day Soviet Russia is allowed to enter the league, Switzerland should resign.

The statement created something of a sensation in international circles here.

Condemning what it calls pressure to have all nations recognize Russia, "which represents brutal force," the newspaper said the Soviets' admission to "the idealistic institution founded by the late Woodrow Wilson would be a fatal blow."

Marketing Act Not Applicable To Wheat Export

OTTAWA, March 27.—The Natural Products Marketing Act, for which a bill was introduced in the House of Commons yesterday, will not be used to regulate the exports of wheat, it was learned.

Separate organizations will be provided outside the act if it is necessary to control the flow of wheat to export markets in such a way as will enable Canada to comply with the quotas contained in the world wheat agreement.

Men Leave Camps For Farm Work

CALGARY, March 27.—Unemployed have already started to move out to the land from camps, Alberta relief officials announced last night. One reason for the early exodus, which only started in June last year, was farmers were encouraged by increased prices for hogs and were making preparations for feeding stock their surplus grain by building pens and bins and chopping feed.

HOLLYWOOD GOSSIP

INTIMATE GLIMPSES AND INSIDE STUFF ON THE MOVIE COLONY

By DAN THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, March 27—Fifty thousand dollars may be a lot of money to many of us, but it isn't enough to make Ruby Keeler give up her career.

Al Jolson offered that sum to Ruby if she would forego her career and just be Mrs. Al. But Ruby still hasn't said "yes." In fact, her activities shout a loud "No."

She now is hard at work on another musical production, "Dames," in which she is co-starred with Dick Powell. As soon as that is finished, she and Dick go into "Flirtation Walk," a story with a West Point background.

NEW ANNA STEN STYLES

If Samuel Goldwyn hasn't accomplished anything else with his production of "Nana," he has been responsible for several 1934 feminine styles. Reports from New York reveal that this film, laid in 19th century Paris, has started several new Anna Sten modes.

One shop there is featuring a duplicate of the black evening dress worn by Miss Sten in the picture. Another is featuring two of the hats she wears. And a beauty salon has started the "Nana" coiffure.

CHEST IS DEFLATED

A short time ago Herbert Mundin received a letter from a Milwaukee girl asking for his picture. He sent it. A few days ago it was returned with a note saying, "Excuse me, Mr. Mundin, I had you confused with John Boles."

MAE WEST'S BOGEY

When Mae West says she has a superstition, she means it. One of her aversions is the number 13. She firmly believes that it brings bad luck to her. So when she arrived at the studio to start the new picture and found everything set up on stage 13, she turned right around and went home again. Nor would she go back until the set was shifted to stage 14.

Mona Barrie was telling about a "truth party" given recently by one of her friends. Everyone had to tell the absolute truth during the entire evening. "What an atrocious hat you are wearing!" was the hostess' greeting to the first arrival, who immediately turned on her heels and went home.

"What happened to the other guests?" we inquired.

"I don't know," Mona replied. "I was the first arrival."

2,023 Patients In Mental Hospitals

Provincial mental institutions are housing a total of 2,023 patients according to information brought down in the legislature by Hon. George Hoadley, minister of agriculture and health at the request of Peter A. Miskew, Liberal, Victoria. The staff at the institutions aggregate 405.

Of the 1281 patients at Ponoka, 719 are male and 562 female. All the 434 patients at Oliver are male while the 99 patients at Claresholm annex are females. At the Red Deer training school there are 107 males and 102 females.

The staff of 261 at Ponoka includes a public health department staff of 218; public works staff of 10; power house staff of 21 and 12 on the farm.

The staff of 75 at Oliver includes a health staff of 59 and public works staff of 16. The total at Claresholm includes 15 from the public health department and three from the public works. At Red Deer the total of 51 is divided between 43 public health and eight public works.

AMENDMENT TO MARRIAGE ACT

By an amendment to the Solemnization of Marriage Act, introduced into the legislature by Hon. George Hoadley, minister of agriculture and health, provision is made to require an intending husband to make and deliver to a license issuer before the issuance of a marriage license; or in the case of a marriage on publication of banns, to a person solemnizing the marriage, before solemnization thereof, either an affidavit to the effect that he has never contracted social diseases or a medical certificate declaring him to be free from social diseases.

The bill prescribes a maximum of $3 for the fee payable to a marriage commissioner for the solemnization of marriage.

The U.F.A. convention held here last January passed a resolution in favor of such action.

AMUSEMENTS

EMPRESS

Bringing to the screen for the first time in motion picture history the dread terror that has swept the nation, coincident with the kidnapping of children, "Miss Fane's Baby Is Stolen", opened yesterday at the Empress theatre, before an audience that alternately laughed and cried in receiving the "snatch" epic.

A glamorous mother's terror was pictured through the eyes of alluring Dorothea Wieck, portraying a Hollywood actress, whose child, Baby LeRoy, is torn from her.

Alice Brady, co-starred with Miss Wieck, stands out as a dramatic character in the cast of thirty famous players, enacting the role of the heroic farm woman who suddenly finds herself confronted by a trio of ruthless kidnappers.

Jack LaRue, Dorothea Burgess and Alan Hale are the kidnappers against whom Miss Brady finds herself pitted in a gallant attempt to save Baby LeRoy from death.

William Frawley, George Barbier and little George "Spanky" McFarland have important parts in the gripping picturization of a nation's bewilderment over the "kidnapping of the century."

RIALTO

"The Road to Life" showing at the Rialto theatre today is the story of hundreds of boys, orphaned by the war, and homeless, who roamed about Russia stealing to get themselves food and smokes, and sleeping huddled in abandoned cellars. Apparently in 1923 the situation was so bad that the Government took special measures to remedy it, and the success of their experiment is shown here. The "Wild Boys" of the picture are all played by boys who really did have the experiences described, and we believe most of the other characters are appearing for the first time before the camera.

Social service workers in Russia evidently work on the same theories that are used here. They tried using faith and confidence instead of suspicion on these young vagrants, and they made them forget their wild ways by getting them interested in some kind of work. The language used is, of course, that of the country of production, with titles in English thrown on the screen from time to time. One of the charming features of this picture is the use of Russian songs—folk songs of the past, and dynamic, thrilling work-songs of New Russia.

STRAND

In many respects a well-staged coming out party is similar to the ceremony of launching a battle cruiser. The only real difference is this:

Whereas it takes only one bottle of champagne to slide a battleship off the ways, the job of sending a social bud "out" into the world requires as many as 100 cases of the sparkling wine.

This comparison was drawn by Alice Leone Moats, New York social registerite and author of "No Nice Girl Swears," who was technical adviser, during the production of Jesse L. Lasky's "Coming Out Party," Fox Film coming to the Strand theatre on Wednesday.

Miss Moats believes the cost of launching a deb is ridiculously high and hardly worth the trouble it takes. She estimates that it figures about $20 a person for a swanky send-off—an alarming cost per head when only a fairish coming out party has 1,000 guests.

Indeed, there are some fond and necessarily rich parents who would feel disgraced by so meagre an attendance as 1,000 guests. At the Barbara Hutton debut in Philadelphia 5,000 attended—a gathering commensurate with Miss Hutton's social importance and wealth.

Policewoman Ill In City Hospital

Her condition unchanged, Mrs. Martha Frykdahl, plainclothes woman of the city police department, was reported by hospital authorities at noon Monday as still in a critical state.

She underwent an emergency operation late last week after her appendix had burst during her hours on shift at police headquarters. Friends in the department have made several trips to the hospital to see her, but because of her serious condition visitors are forbidden.

The patient is in a semi-conscious condition.

Insect pests, notable the corn borer, influence the tonnage of sweet corn available for canning in Canada, but wherever this pest may reduce production in one area, the decrease may be replaced by increased plantings elsewhere.

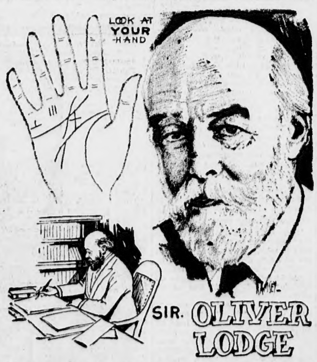
Your Fate Is In Your Hand!

By JOSEF RANALD



Are you a mystic? Perhaps, like Sir Oliver Lodge, scientist and spiritualist, you have a cross in the centre of your palm between the lines of head and heart. This sign, denoting a natural inclination toward mysticism and occultism of all kinds, is clearly shown in Sir Oliver's hand, and is called THE MYSTIC CROSS.

This great scientist, whose work in physics is unsurpassed in modern times, was born in 1851 in England. His unusual scientific talents showed themselves in him at an early age. At 6 he was fascinated by the whys and wherefores of the mechanism of engines. Overcoming his father's disapproval of his learnings, he studied hard to cultivate his inborn inclinations. A pioneer in wireless communication, he developed and improved various theories which made wireless telegraphy possible long before the days of Marconi. As a result of his researches in wireless and electromagnetic waves, he was made a Fellow in the Royal Society in 1900, and, later, was knighted by King Edward. The highest aspects of religion then drew his interest as he tried to reconcile them with scientific doctrines. In 1908 he first startled the world with his belief in communication with the dead—a theory by which he is probably best known to the lay public. The death of his son, Raymond, in the war was followed by a remarkable book, "Raymond," which purported to be an account of messages received from his dead son. This book was widely read, and created much discussion.

NO PRESENT STATE MEDICINE POLICY IS PLANNED

By W. A. de Graves

MEDICAL men of Edmonton and district, Mr. Speaker, augmented by not a few university students and a professor or two, Sir, will fill the legislative galleries, probably on Wednesday, Mr. Speaker, if a prediction made in the House by the Honorable the Conservative leader, comes true, Sir.

The Honorable leader, Mr. Speaker, was asking that nothing be done in the matter of the debate on state medicine for Alberta until the public generally had been advised, Sir, for he had been informed by many medical men of this city that they wanted to be on hand, Mr. Speaker, when our legislators dealt with this matter.

The Capitol

The whole question came to a head, Sir, on Monday afternoon when the Honorable the Minister of Health rose to give the report of the committee named at the last session, Mr. Speaker, when it had been decided, Sir, to get a report "upon State Medicine and the incidental necessary financial arrangements." The minister, Mr. Speaker, was clear and concise, and he made it very plain that the committee was not saying how it should be done, Sir, but only showing how it could be done. The committee, Mr. Speaker, had not been told to consider the cost of such a scheme. It had only been asked, Sir, to draft an adequate scheme, and the question of when and how it would be brought into operation, if ever, Mr. Speaker, was for this legislature or some future legislature to decide, Sir. But the committee, Mr. Speaker, in putting forward their report, did feel that they were drafting and placing before this legislature what they considered was an ideal scheme in connection with the health of the people of Alberta, Sir.

FOR one thing, Mr. Speaker, if this scheme is followed out it will reduce taxation, Sir, and the Honorable minister believed, Mr. Speaker, that for this reason at least it would appeal to Honorable members. It would mean, Sir, that the province would be relieved of the $400,000 annual grant to hospitals, Mr. Speaker, and in addition, Sir, cities and towns and municipal districts would be relieved of the expenses of hospitalization, for briefly put, Mr. Speaker, it meant that every income earner in the province, regardless of his income, Sir, would be required to contribute to

ROBERT ENGLISH QUITS HIS POST WITH PROVINCE

Official of the provincial government since 1921, and before that a leading official with the civic administration, Robert English, deputy minister of municipal affairs, has resigned, according to an announcement by Hon. R. G. Reid, provincial treasurer and minister of municipal affairs. Mr. English's resignation was conveyed in a letter which was placed before the cabinet and after due consideration, accepted.

Mr. English's assistant, A. Souter has been appointed acting-deputy minister.

More than one-half of Mr. English's life has been spent in the public service.

For many years he was connected with Edmonton civic administration as secretary to the city commissioners. In 1921 he resigned that post to join the department of municipal affairs.

Rapid and consistent advancement was made and after holding the post of acting-deputy minister for some time, his appointment was confired several months ago.

He was prominent in the judicial inquiry conducted into the municipal district of Inga in 1931, and was connected with the administration of all municipalities involved in financial difficulties.

Mr. English is at present at Vancouver. His future plans are unknown.

"I am sorry he has resigned. He was a valuable and efficient public servant," declared John J. Bowlen, Liberal member of the legislature for Calgary, on hearing of Mr. English's resignation.

DENY FARMERS GAS AT WELLS IS COMPLAINT

Legislature Hears Plea for More Rescue Work Mine Facilities

Complaint that only a few of the smaller companies were selling gas at their well-heads in Turner Valley was made in the legislature on Monday by Hugh J. Montgomery, Liberal, Wetaskiwin, during discussion of lands and mines department estimates. "It is almost impossible for farmers to obtain gas at the wells", he stated.

He recalled that when the gas conservation act was being passed, it was stated that all companies would supply the product for farmers at the well.

Hector Lang, Liberal, Medicine Hat wanted to know why the product was more costly at Turner Valley than it was across the line in Montana.

Hon. R. G. Reid, minister of lands and mines said that the product obtained in Montana was of an inferior grade, known as distillate.

In order to compare with the naphtha obtained at Turner Valley wells it would be necessary to go as far as California. The Montana distillate was of a low combustion quality, adaptable only to some engines, while the Turner Valley gas could be used in practically all engines.

J. J. Bowlen, Liberal, Calgary, asked regarding the visit of a recent delegation from High River owning surface rights.

NO SURFACE RIGHTS COMPLAINTS

Premier Brownlee said that a delegation had visited him last week. He recalled that when the naphtha resources bill was set up regulations for settlement of claims for damage by owners of land and drillers, were provided. It was provided that if any farmer was unable to work out an agreement to his own satisfaction, he could make application to the Board of Public Utilities Commissioners to obtain an order to determine the amount of compensation the driller was to pay for damage to property. So far as he knew there had been no complaints against regulations by owners of surface rights.

Some surface rights owners felt that they should get compensation for damage and a revenue on the well product.

After hearing the delegation, the government said it would deal with the situation in a survey, at the earliest possible date to see if any way could be found to deal with the matter in a more satisfactory manner.

PLEA FOR RESCUE WORK

An urgent plea for increased attention to mine rescue work, was made by Chris Pattinson, Labor, Edson, in discussing the Miners' act vote.

He urged that equipment and apparatus be placed at all bituminous mines as they are the more gaseous. He urged that all certificated men keep up their training as in times of emergency mine rescue work was vital.

Tightening up of land leasing regulations was urged by Mr. Montgomery, who cited an instance of a quarter section being leased for four cents an acre when it could have been leased for $50 for the whole farm.

Mr. Montgomery also asked regarding the likelihood of a more kindly attitude being taken by U. S. officials regarding imports of Canadian whitefish and the minister answered that the situation was more hopeful now.

NO DELIVERY OF MAIL ON GOOD FRIDAY

Good Friday, March 30, being a statutory holiday, there will be no delivery of mail by letter carriers on that date, according to an announcement made by Postmaster A. R. McKenzie. All wickets will be closed throughout the day and the post office lobby will be open from 7 a.m. to 10 a.m. only.

On Saturday, March 31, there will be a delivery of mail by letter carrier in the afternoon and all of the wickets, with the exception of the money order wicket, will be open as usual.

On Easter Monday, April 2, there will be a delivery of mail to the business sections only during the forenoon. The registration, general delivery, information, postage stamp and weighing wickets will be open from 8 a.m. till 12 a.m., and the money order wicket will be closed all day. The post office lobby will be open from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Information is given that no mail will be handed out at the post office to patrons or messengers of patrons who usually receive their mail by letter carrier.

CANTATA PRESENTED

CAMROSE, March 27.—Camrose United church choir, led by J. W. E. Markle, presented the sacred cantata, "Olivet to Calvary," Sunday evening before a large congregation. Mr. Markle rendered several tenor solo numbers and was assisted by soloists Charles McCleary, George Lambert, Mrs. H. H. Freeman, Mrs. J. Appleby and D. M. B. Omond.

YOUTHS REMANDED

CAMROSE, March 27.—Charged with breaking into the Camrose Furniture company and stealing a club bag, two youths, Bernard Nugent and Frank Sissons, both of high school age, were remanded for trial on April 3 by Magistrate L. R. Jackson and released on bail of $1,500 each.

The big real estate boom was on in Western Canada and people stayed in line for days to get a chance to buy lots on the Hudson's Bay reserve in Edmonton. These pictures were taken on May 13, 1912 and they show the long line, which stretched for blocks, waiting for a chance, not for a lot, but for a ticket which would give them a chance to buy a lot. Friends brought them food and they slept in chairs or on the ground and high prices ruled for tickets well up in the first hundred.

Those were the days of real sport.

The pictures were sent in by J. W. H. Williams, of the Northern Investment building, Edmonton.

Send in your old-time photographs to the "Way Back When Editor" and if published The Bulletin will pay $1 for each one used. All pictures will be returned to owners undamaged.

PROTEST CLOSE OF HATCHERY, LESSER SLAVE

Solons Debate Distribution of Trees, Also Plea for Fire Rangers

Protest against the closing of the Lesser Slave Lake fish hatchery and advocation of its opening next year, was made in the legislature on Monday by L. A. Giroux, Liberal, Grouard, during discussion of lands and mines department estimates. The hatchery was closed last year as part of the government economy drive.

Mr. Giroux took advantage of the occasion to enter his protest when the house, in committee of supply, reached a vote of $2,500 for this hatchery.

"I emphatically protest against the closing of this hatchery and the loss of all the work it has done, for the amount of $10,000 involved," he declared. Unless something is done our money in the investment there will be lost. We will not save, as our revenue will be reduced and unless we keep it up, there is no use having it open."

Hon. R. G. Reid, who was piloting his estimates through the house, did not think the lake would suffer. Fry and eggs liberated there ran into many millions.

Mr. Giroux appreciated the work done but urged that the hatchery be opened again next year.

IS RESTOCKING LAKE

Frank R. Falconer, Liberal, Athabasca, added his voice to that of Mr. Giroux. He understood other northern lakes got their re-stocking from Lesser Slave and he hoped the hatchery would be re-opened. The Minister said the depletion of fish in Calling lake was due to too much fishing and he had no knowledge of any depletion of supply in most of the northern lakes.

FREE DISTRIBUTION DEBATE

Distribution of trees was given some attention by Hugh J. Montgomery, Liberal, Wetaskiwin. The Minister said that in co-operation with the Dominion government 695,000 caragana had been distributed. Other trees had come to the government for distribution from stock at the Cooking Lake forest reserve, where there was a small nursery.

Last year distribution had been made to farmers and others who could improve the appearance of their premises. Last year 145 individuals; 15 municipal districts and 10 schools received trees. There were 7735 white spruce; 360,000 lodge pole spruce; many Scotch pine and other varieties.

This year there would be available for distribution 100,000 white spruce; 2,300 lodge pole pine; 800 jack pine; 3,000 Siberian lark; 11,000 ash and no caragana.

Hugh C. Farthing, Conservative, Calgary, said some objected to farmers receiving the shrubs and others did not. He cautioned against the government going into the tree-distribution business to the extent of injuring nurseries in business and in support of this, he cited an instance of a nursery suffering.

A. B. Claypool, U.F.A., Didsbury, asked if there was any way in which there could be a distribution to others besides schools. The Minister replied that a distinction was drawn and trees were given institutions when there was no possibility of the work being done by others.

FIRE RANGER PLEA

Mr. Falconer made a strong plea on behalf of fire rangers. He pointed out that they were on the payroll for only six months, as a rule, with few chances to earn anything extra. This meant that they lived on from $50 to $60 a month. He urged that, as they were half time employes, they be excluded from coming under the voluntary salary deduction scale.

Hugh J. Montgomery asked if sales of stray horses were advertised and if owners, on establishing identification, received their share of the sale. He was informed the owners participated. He claimed a recent sale of horses picked in the Clearwater forest reserve had not been very well advertised.

Gleaned From Today's News

MacKenzie Air Service reported Matt Berry at Coppermine river, Tuesday, and Stan McMillan on his way back south from Fort Simpson.

Canadian Airways reported Pilot R. Heuss at Norman, Tuesday, on his way south from Aklavik; Walter Gilbert and W. R. "Wop" May at Fort McMurray; Lewis Leigh at Stony Rapids; Con. Farrell headed for Stony Rapids from McMurray.

No trace has been found of a car, property of L. H. Cobbledick of 10135 122 street, which was stolen between 8 and 11 p.m. Monday from its parking place on 102 street half a block south of Jasper avenue. The missing machine is a Chevrolet coach license number 1463.

W. R. Howson, M.L.A., Liberal leader, and W. Harry Ross, M.L.A., recently-elected Liberal member for Calgary, will be the special speakers at public educational meeting sponsored by the South Side Liberal executive in the Calgary Trail community hall on Wednesday, March 28, at 8 p.m. Musical numbers will be a feature of the program.

Explaining some of the methods used by science in the detection of crime and dealing specifically with the value of ballistics in tracking down criminals, Henry Brace, superintendent of insurance for the province and government fire commissioner, addressed the Kiwanis Club at its gathering in the Macdonald hotel, Monday noon. Taking as his subject, "Science's Aid in the Discovery of Crime and Criminals", Mr. Brace showed a number of photographs of bullets and weapons used by criminals and produced at famous murder trials. He explained markings on bullets and other characteristics by which the weapon used was discovered.

NEW STATION TO BROADCAST GAME

The Memorial Cup elimination games at Winnipeg Thursday and Saturday nights between Edmonton Athletic Club juniors and the winner of the Port Arthur-Kenora series will be broadcast locally over the new Taylor and Pearson station, CFTP, on a wave length of 1,260 kilocycles, 238 metres.

Installation of the new equipment for the station has been rushed for the broadcasting of these games after which the station will remain silent until the formal opening with sustaining programs on or about April 4.

Thursday night the station will go on the air at 6:30 p.m., Mountain Standard Time, with a musical program and at 7:30 p.m. the controls will be switched to the rink side at Winnipeg with Charlie O'Brien, staff announcer of CJRC, Winnipeg, at the mike. The broadcast is sponsored at this end by Taylor and Pearson and Mike's News Stand.

Saturday night's game will be broadcast with a similar arrangement.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Now that Americans have tossed prohibition overboard, legal drinking in Canada, which during the past has brought many thousands of thirsty tourists over the border, is due to leave them unmoved this coming holiday season.

"How is the many million dollar tourist traffic to be continued?" asked The Bulletin's Inquiring Reporter today. The answers follow below:

HOWARD BLATCHFORD, cashier: "A stimulation for the tourist trade in this part of the country would be the immediate completion of the highway to Jasper National Park."

BERT MILLAR, Mike's News Stand: "A substantial reduction in the cost of beer and hard stuff would regenerate the failing tourist traffic, but the drop would have to be lower than U.S. price levels."

STEVE STEVENSON, wire operator: "Given great improvement in highways and some international publicity, the fame of our national parks would continue to draw the tourists."

HOWARD NICHOLL, student: "A string of high class auto camps dotted on the trunk highways from the border to the parks would help the trade a lot."

EDDIE WARD, salesman: "Americans will be surprised to pay more for light liquid refreshment in Canada, but the killing shock will come when they shell out the extra nickels and dimes charged in the National Park taverns. A re-adjustment in prices in the parks would help."

BILL EDMONDS, grocer: "Your special edition on Bear Lake, Saturday can do a lot to bring in people, not so much tourists, but men with money for development of the northland."

HARRY MALIN, traveller: "It would help if the national park superintendents were able to issue special beer permits for use in auto camps of the national playgrounds."

WALTER WILLIAMS, mechanic: "If the radio commission programs from Jasper and Banff could be put on an international exchange with the U.S. networks instead of the present trades, the tourist rate might be increased."

CHARLES TODD, student: "Treat 'em to a keg of good Alberta beer at the first service station across the line. The difference from the U.S. 3.2 dishwater to our own provincial brew would keep 'em here for life."

J. Bartleman, H. B. C. district manager for the fur trade, returned to the city Monday aboard a Canadian Airways plane piloted by C. H. "Punch" Dickins, following a flying inspection trip of various company posts. O. Hagen, Great Bear lake miner, was another passenger.

A cadet division of the St. John Ambulance Brigade Overseas has been formed in the city. A non-military movement this is the first organization of its kind to be formed in Alberta. It is open to boys from 11 to 16 years of age holding the junior first aid certificate of the S.J.A.A. Those not holding the certificate are permitted to join provided they sit for the examination and obtain the certificate within one year. Trustees of the Whyte Avenue Presbyterian church have given the organization permission to meet in that building. E. Allen, 10727 78 avenue is secretary and all inquiries should be addressed to him.

Revenue of the city licenses department to date this year totals $38,449 as compared to $37,638 for the corresponding period last year, Inspector Thos. McCallum has reported to city commissioners. Licenses issued are listed as follows, figures to date this year and for the same period last year being given in that order: General licenses, 1,664, 1,705; bicycle licenses, 1,025, 770; dog tags, 1,242, 1,383.

St. George Society Planning Social Events In City

Several social events have been planned by the Edmonton branch of the Royal Society of St. George for next month, one of the major events being the annual banquet which will be held Monday, April 23, in the Corona hotel.

The final whist drive and dance of the season will be held in the Acacia Hall, South Side, on Thursday, April 5.

The annual church parade of the organization will be staged at Holy Trinity church on Sunday, April 22, at 7:30 p.m., and all members of the Society and their friends are cordially invited to attend.

The parent Society of London, Eng., will hold its annual banquet on the same date as the Edmonton branch. This event will take place in the Connaught Rooms, Great Queen St., London, W. C. 2, when the chair will be taken by the Rt. Hon. Lord Queensborough, C.B.E., while the principal guest will be the Rt. Hon. Sir Austin Chamberlain, K.C., M.P.

Debate Postponed That Interested May Be Present

Unannounced Motion on Report of Legislative Probe Brings Request For Continuance Until More Propitious Occasion.

Stressing the difficulty of creating adequate medical and health services for all the people of the province in relation to the ability to pay for same, Hon. George Hoadley, minister of agriculture and health, in the legislature on Monday, in moving receipt of the final report of the legislative committee inquiring into the whole subject of state medicine said that at present there was no intention of the government embarking on a $10,000,000 a year state medicine policy.

The Minister had hardly concluded speaking when D. M. Duggan, provincial Conservative leader, rose and said that as it was not generally known this debate was being brought on and as many desired to hear it, it would be a gracious act to postpone further discussion until a later date. The Minister agreed and adjourned debate. It is expected that when discussion is resumed, the first speaker will be Chris Pattinson, Labor, Edson, and that he will be followed by Hon. Irene Parlby.

"I do not wish to convey to the House the idea that this report is final in that it represents the last word on the subject. Rather it is the first word in the opening up of a broad vista of possibilities and indicating in some degree the tremendous scope of the subject."

One section of the report dealt in detail with the available medical services of the provinces and the extent to which they are adequate.

He stated that the physician population of the province was one to every 1300 or 1400.

"While this ratio does not reach the one physician per 1000 of population set up as the ideal, it seems to me a good number for a young province," he declared.

ONE NURSE FOR EACH 740

He informed the house that there is one graduate nurse for every 740 of population, which ratio "seems almost adequate to meet the needs of the province". There are 413 hospital beds in excess of our population requirements, based on the "ideal" ratio of one bed for each 250 of population. He found that there were 144 fewer dentists than the province required and that if people were able to pay for their medical services, there could be employed more than 100 more dentists than are at present practicing.

On the other hand, the Minister also declared that the existing medical facilities were not being utilized. It was also emphasized that from 35 to 40 per cent of all hospital accounts were in the non-collectible class. In medical accounts as a whole, it was shown that from 50 to 75 per cent were uncollectible.

"It is the opinion of your commission that adequate medical services will never be available to all the people of Alberta until income-earners through a system of compulsory contribution, contribute a monthly sum sufficient to provide adequate medical services for all the people of Alberta", he said in quoting from the report.

TWO PLANS PREPARED

The commission prepared two plans for dealing with provision of health services. One was drafted for use in the light of prevailing conditions and the other the "ideal" scheme to be carried into effect in the period when financial conditions warrant.

Under provisions of the immediate or early scheme for assisting in providing medical services, he said that the commission recommended increased accommodation for tuberculosis patients. He also said that the scheme would provide for the extension of public health nursing services and in developing the preventive health centres such as are functioning at Red Deer and High River.

When the final "ideal" scheme was rendered effective, the province would be relieved of making its annual $400,000 grant to hospitals, as well as grants to various other health services, while other administrative bodies would be also relieved of payments of a similar nature. There would be, under the scheme, contributions from every income-earner in the province, a provision that would apply to each income-earner in a family. In the "ideal" scheme a worker would be asked to pay $2.01 a year or $24.12 a year.

Any individual, not an employee, and regardless of the number of dependents, would pay $2.82 a month. Thus, by contributing, the income-earner would be entitled to general medical services.

OVER HUNDRED EDMONTON FANS GOING TO 'PEG

Edmonton Athletic Club juniors will have well over 100 enthusiastic supporters behind them when they tackle either Kenora Thistles or Port Arthur in the Western Canada juniors hockey finals in Winnipeg on Thursday and Saturday of this week.

Early Tuesday morning Gordon Williamson, local sporting enthusiastic, announced that the required number of fans had been secured to make the excursion trip to the Manitoba metropolis at the low rate offered by the Canadian National railways.

Three extra coaches will be attached to the C.N. train when it pulls out of the Edmonton depot sharp at 7:25 p.m. Wednesday. The fans will arrive in Winnipeg at 5:30 p.m. Thursday and seats have been reserved for them at the big Amphitheatre rink there.

Everything is now set and if real bang-up home town backing will help, the E.A.C. kids should win the Abbott cup and the right to represent the west in the Memorial cup finals at Winnipeg next week.

INJURED YOUTH IS IMPROVED

Slight improvement was reported Tuesday morning by hospital authorities in the condition of 10-year-old Gwyen Price of 10926 86 avenue, who sustained a fracture of the skull when he ran head-first into a car driven by A. M. Taylor of Calgary at the intersection of 86 avenue and 109 street at 1:45 p.m. Saturday.

Taylor was absolved of blame following investigation by police who found that the youngster, standing in the car tracks at the centre of the intersection, had suddenly darted into the side of the passing auto. Taylor swung the car around in an unsuccessful effort to avoid the impact, but the rear end of the car contacted the victim.

For the first time since the accident, the victim regained consciousness for a short time Monday. He underwent an emergency operation Sunday by Dr. H. H. Hepburn to relieve the pressure of broken bone on the brain.

AUCTION SALE OF JEWELRY REPAIRS CONTINUES

Continuing at 2:30 P.M. tomorrow and Thursday, the sale by Auction of Repairs both on Watches, Clocks and Jewelry left with us prior to 1932, will be held at Messrs. Jackson Bros. Jewelers. Despite the large number disposed of yesterday afternoon, there is still a considerable quantity left. As previously intimated this sale is being conducted under a court order and does not apply to repairs left with us of recent date.

We wish to notify the public that the securing of new capital places the old firm of Jackson Bros. Jewelers Ltd. in a stronger financial position than ever before, and it is our intention to remain in the jewelry busines in Edmonton and to carry on the best traditions of the oldest jewelry business in Canada west of the Great Lakes.

THE TINY MITES

Story by HAL COCHRAN — Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

The rope the ants shot into air gave all the eagles quite a scare. It landed right close to the nest and Duncy yelled, "Hurrah!"

He then turned to the birds and cried, "Don't fly away and try to hide. No harm will come to you if in the nest all of you stay.

"My friends are trying to rescue me. I'm stranded way up here, you see, 'cause I can't fly like you birds can. This is my only chance. you can slide down to the ground.

"The slide will be a thrilling trip, so fix the rope so it won't slip. If tied around a heavy rock, it should be safe and sound."

"Don't worry," shouted Duncy. "You can rest assured that's what I'll do." And then he found a rock that he felt sure would be all right.

He worked for just a little while, and then he yelled down, with a

"You birds have really been real kind, but now I'll leave, if you don't mind. I'll soon be with the Tinies. I'm so happy, I could dance."

"But, wait! Before I go I'll do a real good turn for all of you. I have a couple cookies in my pocket. What a treat!"

He held the cookies out and then the birds seemed all pepped up again. Wee Duncy said, "My goodness, how those little birds can eat!"

Then Scouty yelled, from far below, "Hey, Duncy, we sure hope you know a way to tie that rope, so smile, "My end is okay, now, lads. Pull your end up good and tight."

When this was done, he wrapped his feet and arms around. "This will work neat," he shouted to the Tinies. "Here I come! Look out for me!"

And then he started through the air. It gave the Tiny girls a scare, but Scouty said, "Aw, do not fret. He's safe as he can be."

France Now Working For Tri-Power Defence Pact

PARIS, LONDON IN CONSTANT EFFORT FOR ARMS AMITY

Belgium, As Third Party to Little Entente, Being Consulted at Paris Today—London Considers Proposals.

PARIS, March 27. — France's hopes for a tri-power defense alliance of France, Great Britain, and Belgium will be broached at a conference today between Foreign Affairs Minister Louis Barthou and Count Charles de Broqueville, the Belgian Prime Minister.

An apparent breakdown of the disarmament conference and what Paris statesmen call the steady rearmament of Germany are worrying the French, launching diplomatic calls to Great Britain and the Little Entente.

French and British representatives may confer before the disarmament conference meets again April 10 and thresh out the French suggestion, made in a recent secret note, for the revival of the old entente cordiale, which brought Great Britain into the Great War.

Further explanations of exactly what France wants Britain to do in case this nation is attacked will be furnished London.

London Busily Considers Plan

LONDON, March 27—How far Great Britain is willing to go in coercing nations to live up to a disarmament treaty was considered last night by cabinet leaders.

This issue, raised by France in an arms note last week, opens a new and possibly a deciding chapter in months-long disarmament negotiations.

The British government was said to view the subject with an open mind but requires further communications from France before taking any definite stand.

The attitude of the United States and the extent to which nations would disarm if Britain obligated herself to take military and economic measures against a violator of a treaty were viewed as deciding factors.

The question of military and economic sanctions heretofore had only been raised as a possible retaliation against an aggressor in the event of a breach of peace.

Britain has frowned on such undertakings because of probable difficulties in determining an aggressor.

Britisher Is To Become Native King

From the son of a British pickle maker to ruler of an Asiatic kingdom! That, according to a report from London, is soon to be the destiny of Dr. Khalid Sheldrake (above), a medical missionary in Sinkiang, chosen by native chiefs to be king of the province. The province, which Sheldrake has named Islamestan, has an area of 400 000 square miles and a population of perhaps 2,000,000.

What Council Did

Received a notice of motion from Ald. Rice Sheppard to the effect that street railway fares be sold at the rate of five for 25 cents rather than in booklets of 20 for a dollar as at present.

Accepted a notice of motion by Ald. R. V. Bellamy that all applications for the extension of civic utilities beyond the city limits be referred to city council.

Supported the recommendation of City Engineer A. W. Haddow and city commissioners that the $1,500 tender of A. Crockett for refreshments concession at Borden Park be accepted. The contract is for a period of three years.

W. J. Maxwell's Brother Is Dead

WINNIPEG, March 27—Thomas Humphrey Maxwell, who came to Winnipeg from his Paris, Ont., home in 1868, died here yesterday in his 71st year. Part of the journey to Winnipeg was made via St. Paul, Minn., by wagon.

His widow, one brother, W. J. Maxwell, of Edmonton, Fred G. (Steamer) Maxwell, well known hockey player, and two daughters, including Mrs. J. T. Cuthbert, of Calgary, survive.

Woman Victim Of Purse Snatcher

A young and shabbily dressed purse snatcher who clipped a woman's handbag Monday night in the darkness near the intersection of Victoria avenue and 110 street, got only a pair of glasses for his action.

The young woman, victim of the robbery, reported to police that the snatcher had followed her for several blocks before he approached, grabbed her bag and ran between two houses to the lane at the rear. She valued her glasses at $20. The purse contained no money.

Under Sergt. Ben Duclos a squad of police armed with a good description of the snatcher, combed the area around Victoria and 110 street but found no trace of the thief.

He is described as young, five feet nine inches tall, wearing a light cap and dark overcoat.

To Offer Land For Settlement Scheme

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE, March 27.—Lochearn municipality will request the department of agriculture to accept suitable quarters of land, held by the municipality under tax sale proceedings, as the municipality's share of the relief settlement scheme. This decision was reached at the first meeting of the 1934 council.

The council decided to institute tax sale proceedings against all lands in the municipality liable for such action.

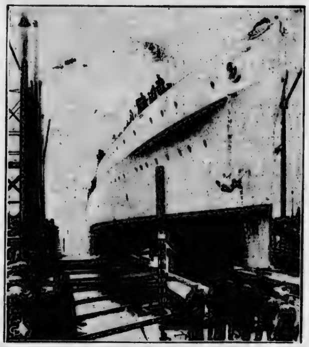
New British Cruiser

A large crowd, standing in the drizzle, watches the 5,200-ton British cruiser Arethusa take to the water at Chatham after she was christened by Lady Tyrwhitt, wife of Admiral Sir Reginald Tyrwhitt. In mythology, Arethusa was a nymph who guarded a sacred fountain.



DAILY TRUE STORY

A Button-Sewer-On Machine!

By Jeanette Lewis

Tom Hollis knew that there were many tailors who would sew buttons on your outer garments, and many laundries that would mend rips and sew buttons on your under garments, but why pay out a quarter here or a half dollar there when you could do it yourself?

Not that Tom was broke, he was getting along better than ever. He was simply frugal. He had been working in his home town in a chain store. He had become manager of it, and finally he had been sent to the city to be manager of one of the company's chain stores there, and the pay was much better.

During his hour off for lunch Tom grabbed a sandwich and cup of alleged Java off the arm of a much-worn chair and hurried across a couple blocks to a "Five-and-Dime."

He looked around and around, and finally saw some buttons on cards. This would be the place, he decided.

Allie Smith came up between the counters to him and said, "Ye?" and then she got a good look at Tom and she lost her bored expression. She smiled and said, "Can I help you?"

Now, of course Tom Hollis didn't know that the girl's name was Allie Smith. But he did know that she was mighty good loooking and that her eyes were "nice."

"I want something to sew buttons on with, please," he said.

"Needles—what sort?"

"I wouldn't know—what would you use for sewing buttons on your—er—coat?"

He didn't mean coat and Allie guessed it but she kept a straight face. She opened one of the collections of needles and indicated a good sturdy one with a generous eye.

"About that size," she said.

"And thread—what sort of thread, Miss?"

"To match your buttons—what color buttons are they?"

"Darned if I know—I never noticed."

"What color suit is it?"

"One is blue and one is brown."

"Black thread for the blue suit, brown for the brown," and she started to select some thread.

"And—er—for—er—" Tom hesitated.

Allie Smith smiled encouragingly at him. He certainly wasn't fresh.

"Would your aunt be sore if we went out some place tonight?" he asked.

"For shorts?" she asked.

"Yes, please," he admitted, modestly.

"White thread—and a smaller needle"

"O. K., white thread. How about buttons?"

"White buttons, of course. What size?"

"Do they come in sizes? I thought buttons were just buttons. I wouldn't know."

"Here is a card of assorted sizes—do you want scissors and a thimble."

"Guess I'm strong enough to break a thread and I always jabe the needle through with my thumbnail, what little I ever tried to sew."

"Yes, but the needle sometimes slips and jabs under the nail cuticle."

"I couldn't get a thimble on that thumb, Miss?"

Allie Smith laughed. She found a largest size thimble and with an effort fitted it over a large and strong forefinger.

"They have what they call Bachelor's Companions in the big stores, but they cost a lot and aren't any better than this. Of course they a man wouldn't have to bother," he said.

"I never heard of such a machine."

"The only kind I ever knew," said Tom, getting courage from change. "Say, if I don't have any luck sewing on buttons and mending up ripped places, perhaps we could do something about me being your boy friend."

"Could we?"

"We might—"

She had to turn to another customer. Tom had to hustle back to his job and let his assistant go out to lunch.

That night he did a pretty terrible job at sewing on buttons and at mending rips and the very next noon he was back talking with Allie Smith.

"I'm an awful flop at this button and rip business, Miss—say, would you go to a movie with me tonight and give me some advice about sewing on buttons?"

He gave her his card.

"Perhaps—I live with my aunt. Come at eight if you really mean it," and she wrote an address and her name on a slip and gave it to him.

Tom and Allie had such a gay time at the movies that they didn't think to go into technique of button sewing-on.

"We'll have to see each other again," he said, when he left her, "and you'll have to tell me why the hole in the elbow of my shirt all puckered up like a mushroom when I tried to darn it."

"Bring it over Sunday, Tom."

He called Sunday and he had daffodils for her aunt and some candy for Allie.

"Where's the shirt?" she asked.

"Gosh, I didn't have the nerve—it takes more crust than I have to take a shirt around to a swell girl like you and ask her to mend it—and you'd laugh at the awful job I did on it. Would your aunt be sore if we went out some place tonight, you know, for a supper and a little dancing?"

"Of course not."

So they went out and had a jolly evening.

One noon the shop windows were full of late spring flowers and the air was warm and the sun beautiful and the sky full of fleecy white clouds, so Tom stopped in at the Five-and-Dime and went up to Allie's counter.

"I wish a button-sewer-on machine, if you please," he said, gravely.

"Tom! You silly, they don't make them."

"Yes, they do—a great many makes—the name of the button-sewer-on machine that I want is the Allie Smith—only I would change that name to the Mrs. Thomas Hollis. What's the chances of my getting it?"

"The chances are swell, Tom—when do you want it?"

"Now. Immediately."

"Don't be silly, you couldn't possibly have it until—let's see, this is Wednesday—you couldn't have it until Saturday forenoon—if you can get off long enough to go down to City Hall then."

"I want a kiss," he murmured.

"That's one thing you can't get over the counter at the Five-and-Dime—but be at my aunt's place at eight tonight and you will get one—or more."

He was there at ten to eight and everything was entirely satisfactory.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE BULLETIN

By E. V. SHEPARD

FAMOUS BRIDGE TEACHER

A WEIRD CONTRACT

Never before do I recall seeing a no trump played for game with a void suit, as was the case last evening with the hand shown. It was weird. I have no doubt that South expected his partner to shift the no trumps to one of the minor suits which South had bid.

	♠ J 6 3 ♥ K Q 9 7 4 2 ♦ 9 6 ♣ Q 5
♠ Q 10 7 2 ♥ 8 5 3 ♦ Q 5 2 ♣ 7 4 3	N. W. E. S.	♠ 9 8 4 ♥ A J 10 6 ♦ 7 4 3 ♣ K 8 2
	♠ A K 5 ♥ None ♦ A K J 10 8 ♣ A J 10 9 6

Bidding went: South, 1-diamond; North, 1-heart; South, 2-clubs; North, 2-hearts, at which he would not have done well; South, 3-clubs; to show that his minor suits were equally long; North, 3-hearts; South, 3-no trumps, whereas he should have bid either one minor suit or the other; North, 4-hearts, which was as much South's fault as North's; South, 4-no trumps, possibly in the spirit of bravo, but probably expecting North to realize that his partner must be very short of hearts, or void of the suit. North was to blame for not realizing that almost never does a hand containing two long suits play as well at no trumps, but North allowed the make to stand.

The opening lead was the 2 of spades. Dummy's J won the trick. Never again did the declarer expect to be in dummy. He led the Q of clubs. East covered with the K, but that made no difference in final results as his K would in any event have been captured. South ran off his five club tricks, giving him the first six tricks.

Things looked well for the declarer, who now saw that he should win 5-odd, by giving opponents a single diamond trick, and expecting them also to take one heart trick with the missing ace, to save that 40 points.

The declarer led a low diamond towards dummy. West won with the Q. Why she did not lead a heart I have no idea. It was the last chance for her side to win a second trick, even if she did not know it. West led a spade and the declarer made a single slam, without having a single heart in his hand—a remarkable result.

As a double-dummy problem, the hand is able to fulfill its contract of 4-no trumps against any defence yet suggested by any of the four players at the table.

Before tomorrow see what North can make, double-dummy play, at either diamonds or clubs, against any opening lead and the best possible defence of East and West

DOG NUISANCE BY-LAW GIVEN SECOND ROUND

Regulation Similar to Calgary's Being Considered by Council

Designed to control and regulate the habits of dogs within the limits of the city, a bylaw patterned on that in effect in Calgary received first and second readings at city council meeting, Monday, but was laid over for further consideration at the next meeting when Ald. J. H. Ogilvie objected to third reading.

The drafting of the bylaw was undertaken subsequent to a proposal by Ald. J. W. Fry, with Ald. H. D. Ainlay supporting, that some legislation be introduced which would curtail the wandering habits of canines. Ald. Fry based his arguments on four points—that dogs were a menace to persons, property, health and morals.

Ald. Ainlay objected particularly to mongrel dogs, declaring that they caused a great amount of damage to property and were a general nuisance.

The present draft of the bylaw reads as follows:

"(1) No person who is the owner or harbourer of any dog shall allow his dog to run at large in the City of Edmonton unless such dog is under the immediate charge and control of some competent and responsible person; and (2) For the purpose of this bylaw, a dog shall be deemed to be running at large if it is upon any public street, lane or highway or upon the premises of any person other than the premises of its owner or its harbourer."

WANTS BYLAW ENFORCED

Speaking at considerable length Monday night in condemnation of the practice of dog owners in allowing the beasts to roam at will, Ald Fry concluded his address with the words: "I don't see how a city of this size and importance puts up with this dog nuisance. I hope you will see your way clear to supporting this bylaw."

Ald J. W. Findlay wondered whether the proposed regulations could be enforced.

It was the opinion of police officials that they could be enforced, Thos. E. Garside, acting city solicitor, advised council.

Ald. J. H. Ogilvie did not think that the moral angle mentioned by Ald. Fry was as serious as the latter made out. He did believe, however, that dogs proved to be a nuisance should be liable to be destroyed, and that a license fee of $15 should be charged for all unspayed female dogs.

"FENCE THEM IN"

In a witty speech on the question, Ald. R. V. Bellamy told council he was "sticking up for poor dog Trey." He appreciated Ald. Fry's earnestness, but was of the opinion that the dog bylaw at present in force was sufficient. It would be a difficult matter for all property-holders to fence their property to keep the animals in, since many home-owners were renting their premises. Even though the proposed bylaw did not state that dogs were to be kept chained up, the implication was that this was to be done. "I can just picture the tired business man coming home from the office and taking the dog out for an airing," he said.

WOULD REDUCE "STRAYS"

Aldermen should have a full understanding of the suggested bylaw before they took any action, emphasized Ald. Jas. East.

Undoubtedly there would be discrimination as between dogs if the legislation were put into effect, said Ald. Findlay.

Ald. Ainlay pointed out that the major difficulties appeared to be in connection with the enforcement of the bylaw. If the new regulations cleaned up sixty per cent of the stray dogs in the city, then they were satisfactory, he felt.

Certainly the bylaw would reduce the number of strays, Ald. C. L. Gibbs opined.

CHINESE-SOVIET TRADE PARLEYS

SHANGHAI, March 27.—With a view to building up more intimate trade relations, delegates of the Chinese government and the Soviet Union will begin negotiations within the next few days, it was learned here yesterday.

Good Market On Polecat Pelts

MAHASKA, March 27. — Homesteaders and school boys have joined in a campaign against the pestiferous polecat, whose pelts they are trading to Crowell, the storekeeper at Peers, for groceries. The skins have a value of 75 cents to one dollar in trade.

Leslie Ironsides, hauling baled hay up the McLeod river to Peers gave up when his sleigh broke through the ice three times. He hired trucks to finish the hauling. Roads here are rough but hard and trucks can go through but horses find travel difficult.

The Go-Getter club held a dance at Pella school, proceeds to be used for building of a new community hall.

POLICE GRUDGE IS ALLEGED BY IRATE CITIZEN

Roundly denouncing the city police department for allegedly conspiring against him and charging that Police Chief A. G. Shute "has a grudge against me," A. E. Wyley, convicted a short time ago on a charge arising out of a family squabble, aired his troubles before city council, Monday night. After listening to Wyley's story, council referred the complaints to city commissioners for private investigation with instructions that a judicial investigation be made into the affair if the evidence warranted such action.

Wyley told of trouble at home and blamed Chief Shute for much of it. He charged his wife had continually run to the police chief with tales of her woes.

Asked if he were the person involved in a police court case a short time ago, Wyley admitted that he was. "Chief Shute has a grude against me and should be man enough to face me," he said.

WHY NOT HIRE A HALL?

Ald. J. T. McCreath intervened at this point with the suggestion that the delegate present his charges in writing.

Wyley—There are lots of people who want to hear me.

Ald. J. H. Ogilvie—Why don't you hire a hall?

Disregarding several attempts on the part of aldermen to prevent further discussion of his private troubles, Wyley accused Magistrate Col. P. C. H. Primrose of sending an incorrect statement to the attorney-general's department with regard to his (Wyley's) court case, and further charged that the magistrate "convicted me to protect Shute."

BOBBY "GANGSTERS"

Chief Shute and his "gangsters" had raided his home, continued Wyley, who referred to the police department as a "combine."

Mayor D. K. Knott then refused to permit Wyley to proceed further with the presentation of his complaints. "This has gone far enough," he declared, adding that there were many angles to the story and that it should be heard in private.

Ald. C. L. Gibbs moved that the matter be referred to commissioners for investigation.

Ald. Ogilvie was of the opinion that a judicial investigation might be better and proposed that this point be left with the commissioners to decide. If they believed it necessary, a Supreme Court judge could be called in to preside at the probe.

Council decided that this was the proper procedure, and supported the composite motion of Aldermen Gibbs and Ogilvie.

The board was firm in its view that charges should be submitted to commissioners in writing.

RETURN OF TAX RULED OUT

CALGARY, March 27.—Executor of the $1,250,000 estate of the late William Edward Cochrane is entitled to a declaration as to what property is taxable and what duty is payable, but is not entitled to return of $200,000 paid in succession duties, Mr. Justice A. F. Ewing ruled yesterday in a written judgment.

Criticizes Civic Estimate Methods

Edmonton's current estimates for 1934 will be considered at a special meeting next Thursday at 8 p.m., it was decided by the aldermanic board at its regular session Monday evening.

Criticizing the present method of dealing with estimates, Ald. J. W. Fry observed that "the way of handling them is the biggest farce I've seen since I've been on city council." Last year, he reminded aldermen, the figures had been reviewed many times and much delay had occurred when council had argued over minor expenditures.

He charged that council was putting "the cart before the horse" when it considered estimated expenditure while ignorant of the city's approximate revenue for the year.

Checking the alderman on this point, Mayor D. K. Knott declared that the mill rate had to be set before the administration would know what the approximate revenue would be.

Considerable delay had also been caused by the large number of assessment appeals which had been submitted this year, he stated.

RALLIES YOUTH TO BANNER OF LIBERALISM

J. Dechene, M.L.A., Heard in Battling Speech at Club

That the people of this country will have to decide and very shortly, whether they will have a dictatorship or whether they will demand the freedom that is offered by Liberalism, J. Dechene, Liberal M.L.A. for St. Paul, said in an address to the Young Liberals' club, Monday evening. John Hart was chairman.

Mr. Dechene made reference to the Natural Products Marketing act for 1934, now before the federal government, which, he said, was a curtailment of the inherent liberty of action in trade of every Canadian.

In battling mood as he spoke to the young men assembled, Mr. Dechene challenged them to rally to the cause of Liberalism and to refuse to allow the gospel of despair to prevail.

Pointing to what he termed the failure of the present government of Alberta to deal with the real needs the speaker said: "Tonight they are going to pass a bill to compel fishermen on Cold Lake and Lesser Slave Lake to put lights on their boats. This is the kind of legislation they bring forward while thousands of our young men are in relief camps at 20c a day."

"There was despair as great as that of today in Canada in 1894 and 1895," Mr. Dechene told his audience, "but we knew the possibilities of this country if it were given the right kind of government.

"The Liberal victory of 1896," he said, "was the victory of the youth of the country. The young men of that time refused to be led astray by camouflage. They put Liberalism in power and carried the country forward, in spite of its small population, to the place of a great nation."

GREAT DECISION AHEAD

"Liberalism is the cause of youth," he declared, "because it shows you something ahead. Youth wants a chance and Liberalism shows you that you have that chance."

Stating that the choice between the freedom afforded by a Liberal regime and an imminent dictatorship will soon have to be made, Mr. Dechene said: "There is a bill before the provincial house which says that a farmer cannot sell his wheat to his own neighbor."

Lauding the provincial Liberal leader, W. R. Howson, M.L.A., he said that he had given all he had to the cause of Liberalism. "We've all done it," he said, "because if we don't we don't know where we are going.

"I don't want any C.C.F.-ism," the speaker declared. "No alphabet party is going to save this country. All we want is a fair chance to trade with our neighbors. We don't want to be ordered what to do with the calf in our stall or our other possessions."

STURDY LEADERSHIP

Pointing to the courageous manner in which Liberal leaders of today are facing present problems, Mr. Dechene said that Premier Pattullo of British Columbia, who was refused money to carry out works projects by the Dominion, would refuse to allow one ounce of gold or other natural resources of that province to pass beyond the provincial boundaries.

LOOK TO NORTHLAND

"Gather together the young men and young women of this province," he urged, "and teach them Liberalism. We look to you to pick up the burden which we have carried and to carry on when we lay it down.

"It is hard to find a job today. But it's not going to last. We're not built that way," he asserted. "We've done better than that and we will do it again."

Young men of this province should look to the north, Mr. Dechene said in conclusion, and urged that Alberta's boundary should be made to extend to the Arctic ocean.

"Let's go!" he challenged. "Go north. Develop this new wealth of our north for our country and for our people."

Times Against British Trade With Dominion

Financial stringency is against a brisk British export trade to Canada, asserted J. L. W. Goode, of Vancouver, British Trade Commissioner for western Canada, who arrived in the city from the west Tuesday and will be here for one week. He then goes on to Saskatoon.

Mr. Goode explained that while many merchants would like to stock certain lines of British goods, they are compelled by the necessities of the times to carry small stocks and find that it is easier to do this with Canadian manufactured goods, which can be replenished at frequent intervals.

A good demand exists for British textiles, but again the times have debarred bringing in the better lines of British woven goods.

In chinaware and certain classes of cutlery and proprietary goods such as perfumes, chemicals and so on, the British head the market, Mr Goode said.

Trans-Canada Work

TORONTO, March 27.—The east and west sections of the trans-Canada highway in Ontario will be completed this year, Hon. William Finlayson, Ontario minister of lands and forests, announced here last night. Work would be pressed forward on the incomplete sections, he said.

Exports of Canadian apples for the season up to March 8 to the United Kingdom showed increases of 109 per cent. on barrels and 10 per cent. on boxes.

MORE ABOUT

the cost, and if, Mr. Speaker, there was more than one wage earner in a family, all would have to contribute, Sir.

And the ratio of contribution would be two-ninths from the state, Mr. Speaker, two-ninths from the employer, and five-ninths from the employee, and if an income earner was his own boss, Sir, he would absorb his own two-ninths and an employee's five-ninths, Mr. Speaker.

As for collections, Sir, the scheme outlined called for the province to be mapped out in districts, and the people inside each district would vote as to whether they wanted to be a Health Service Unit, Mr. Speaker, and if they so decided, Sir, it would be up to the towns and municipalities to collect.

The committee, Sir, had made computations. Costs, Mr. Speaker, have been reckoned on an income earner cost basis, Sir, and it was the opinion of the committee that adequate service could be supplied at the rate of $24.01 a year for each income earner, Mr. Speaker, who was an employee, while those who were not employees, Sir, and who had to absorb both the two ninths of the employer and the five ninths of the employee, would pay $33.84 yearly.

For that sum, Mr. Speaker, they would be entitled to general medical service and consultant and specialist service, Sir. It would include also dental services, X-ray, Mr. Speaker, laboratory service, surgical appliances, and hospitalization, Sir. In fact a very full and complete line of medical and surgical service, Mr. Speaker, and in the opinion of the committee, Sir, adequate for all in Alberta.

AND those requiring medical services, Mr. Speaker, could name their own doctor in the district, but they could not go to a specialist, Sir, or get specialist services, without first consulting the family physician.

And doctors, Mr. Speaker, would be given this break. They will not have to worry about collecting their accounts, Sir, for all doctor's accounts would be presented to the board and paid by the board, Mr. Speaker, in accordance with a schedule of fees to be fixed along the lines of those now in the Workmen's Compensation Board, Sir.

It had been intended, Mr. Speaker, that the Honorable the Labor member for Edson who was also on the committee and who seconded the resolution to bring down the report, should continue the debate, Sir, but when the Honorable the Conservative leader had asked for the adjournment so that medical men, Mr. Speaker, could hear this report discussed, it was stood over, Sir, although both the Honorable the Lady Minister for Alix and the Honorable Conservative member for Edmonton, who is also of the medical profession, Mr. Speaker, were both ready to speak to the report, Sir. So that we can look for crowded galleries on Wednesday, Mr. Speaker.

LESSER Slave Lake also figured largely in the business of the House on Monday, Mr. Speaker, when the members resolved themselves into committee to vote supply to His Majesty, or in other words, Sir, to pass the estimates. To begin with there was no vote for the operation of the fish hatchery at this lake this year, and the Honorable member for Grouard was perturbed. Was the Honorable Minister of Natural Resources aware, Sir, that the work of years would go to nought because of this? Surely, Mr. Speaker, this was misguided economy, Sir! It was spoiling the ship for a haporth of tar, Mr. Speaker, for in the long run, Sir, this fine lake would be depleted of whitefish and revenues will consequently drop, so that you would save nothing, Mr. Speaker. The Honorable member had this from experts, Sir, and he would warn the minister and ask him to reconsider.

The minister was not surprised at the attention this matter was getting from the Honorable member, Sir, for in the course of a visit to this hatchery he had found the natives, Mr. Speaker, always referred to it as Mr. Giroux's hatchery. He would admit, Sir, that the member had much to do with getting it located, but he was afraid, Mr. Speaker, that the Honorable member's experts were misinforming him, Sir, for the minister's own experts had quite a different story to tell, and he was assured, Mr. Speaker, that the closing down would be of benefit, Sir. And it was the same with all other lakes in the north, where this very fine food fish is found, Sir. They were all well stocked with fry and eggs, Mr. Speaker, and instead of the stock being depleted the next two or three years would find an increase, Sir. But the Honorable member would have none of it, Mr. Speaker, and would quote his own experts again, Sir, so that it appeared to be a battle between experts, Mr. Speaker, with the Honorable minister's experts carrying the day, Sir.

LESSER SLAVE LAKE came into the limelight again, Mr. Speaker, when the Forest Reserves votes were going through the House. The Grouard member, Sir, would ask why the Lesser Slave Lake forest reserve had been struck out and was now just a timber reserve, Mr. Speaker? The minister again explained that this was also an economy measure, Sir, although there was a great deal of discussion as to whether it should ever have been a forest reserve, Mr. Speaker. The Honorable member could rest assured, however, that the situation was being well looked after, Sir. But again the Honorable member was unconvinced. There were splendid timber berths in this area, Mr. Speaker, and he assured the minister this matter should be looked into, for the Honorable member was sure, Sir, that when the Honorable minister was properly informed on conditions, he would take action, Mr. Speaker.

And would the minister say, Sir, if there was any reforestation policy being followed? The minister would, Mr. Speaker. For one thing, Sir, we are experimenting on a considerable scale, Mr. Speaker. Great oaks from little acorns grow, Sir, and red oaks from Manitoba were being experimented with and with success, Mr. Speaker. They were a hardy tree, Sir, suitable for Alberta, and oaks from Ontario were also being grown. This work was going on apace, Mr. Speaker, and there was every indication, Sir, that we will be able to make available a number of coniferous trees, Mr. Speaker, and that we would be able to change the whole rural aspect and extend the species of trees in this province, Sir, for the situation was very encouraging, Mr Speaker.

THE Honorable Conservative member for Calgary was interested, Sir. It was a fine thing to have lots of trees, Sir, and the member was all for trees, and more of them, Mr. Speaker, but was this free distribution of trees and shrubs to continue indefinitely and indiscriminately, Sir? There were nursery establishments in Alberta, Mr. Speaker, built up over the years at some expense, Sir, and if doctors, lawyers, clergymen and lodges, Mr. Speaker, not to mention all the other urban residents, are to get free trees and shrubs, what will become of these industries and their people, Sir? Give them a chance to liquidate their stocks before going on this free tree bust, Mr. Speaker.

The Honorable Minister again had the situation well in hand, Sir. Some mistakes had been made in the past, Mr. Speaker, in the matter of free distribution, and while the Minister, Sir, would not lay down any hard and fast rule, they would not occur again, Mr. Speaker. But the Minister was not going to say that where there is no possibility of the tree planting being done in any other way, free trees and shrubs would not be provided, Sir. Where small villages and school districts were trying to beautify their surroundings, Mr. Speaker, and where the work would not otherwise be done, free plants should be available, Sir, although the Minister realized, Mr. Speaker, that where the districts were financially able to look after this matter themselves we should not take away the means of livelihood of these nurseries, Sir, which had gone to expense and time, Mr. Speaker, to build up their enterprises.

And six o'clock came, Mr. Speaker, with some $448,825 voted for the Lands and Mines Department and some half of that for the Municipal Affairs Department, Sir. Not a bad afternoon's work, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

STOCKS RALLY QUIETLY AFTER EARLY SELLING

NEW YORK, March 27.—The stock market rallied quietly late today after leading issues had dropped 1 to around 4 points in an early selling rush. The decline followed overnight news that the President wanted a regulatory bill "with teeth in it." The close was heavy. Transfers approximated 1,600,000 shares.

Vancouver Deadlocks Playoff Series With 2-1 Victory Over Calgary

PATS and PANS by —BILL LEWIS—

With a full complement of players—save two—the Edmonton Athletic Club junior hockey team, junior champions of Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia climbed aboard the C.N.R. rattler at 7:25 p.m. on Monday bound for Winnipeg where they hope to win the western and Dominion championships.

It will be noticed that the club was at full strength—save two, Big Fred Layetzke, the "cool-as-a-cucumber" net custodian and "Galloping Gordie" Watt were the two absentees.

Big Fred has collected an unpleasant attack of influenza and his physician advised him to wait a day and get the benefit of additional rest. Fred expects to be ready and in the best of form for Thursday's game at Winnipeg.

Watt proved far less able as a mathematician than he does as a defence star. He miscalculated the time it takes to get from his home to the station—and he missed the train. Despite a mad dash to North Edmonton, he still missed the rattler.

So Gordie and Fred will tag along with Eck. Duggan on Tuesday's train.

Hockey decks were further cleared by big time play on Monday night. Fort William's Thundering Herd entered the Allan cup final for the second time in the last three years by blanking Kimberley, 5-0, thus taking the two game round by 8-3.

Moncton Hawks plastered a goosegg on Hamilton Tigers, 2-0 in the first of the eastern pre-semi-final series. The Hawks are favored to take the series.

In the pro field, Toronto Maple Leafs came back to form and trounced Detroit Red Wins 3-1 in the motor city, thus getting back in the running. The Leafs are far from out of the Stanley cup hunt yet and they may just take the next two games for the series.

Vancouver won a hard 2-1 victory over Calgary Tigers and squared the Northwestern League playoffs at two wins apiece. The fifth game is scheduled for Wednesday.

And in the meantime local hockey interest is mainly divided between the east-bound E.A.C. juniors and the two-game series on Wednesday and Friday between Eddie Shore's All-Stars and the All-Star opposition. It will be good to see some of the old timers back in form.

TITULAR ROLLER SKATING

LONDON—Five teams competed in the three-mile roller skating championship race at Alexandra Palace.

DECIDING TILT TO BE PLAYED ON WEDNESDAY

Both Teams Wage Torrid Battle—Goalers Are Brilliant

VANCOUVER, March 27. — A fighting crew of Vancouver Lions turned back Calgary Tigers 2-1 in the fourth game of the Northwestern pro hockey league championships playoffs here last night and made a fifth and deciding game necessary.

The teams clash again here Wednesday night to decide the league champions.

In one of the greatest ice battles seen here this season Lions kept pace with Tigers in the early periods, then rattled home the winning goal in the third.

Both Red McCusker in the Calgary nets and Johnny Clark between the Vancouver pipes turned in great exhibitions, turning back bullet drives from every direction and breaking up combination plays in front of the nets.

Gordon Savage, Tigers hard working defence man, scored the only goal of the first period.

PENALTY COSTLY

Tigers were a man short at the time and Lions came down four abreast on a scoring rush.

Savage hooked the puck just inside his own blue line and flashed down the ice, skirting the lone Vancouver defence man, swept in on Clark and, as the Vancouver goalie dropped to his knees, flipped the puck over his shoulder into the net.

In a desperate effort to get back on even terms, Lions threw out a torrid attack in the second but failed to get past Tigers' tight defence until midway through the session. Stocky Bobby Kirk, who played a brilliant game, worked in to Calgary territory, worrying puck carriers as they attempted to break loose on a rush.

Finally the black-thatched second line pivot man broke through a tangle of Calgary players, chased Dutch Gainor around in circles for a half minute, finally stealing the puck from the Tiger centre, who was in front of his own goal, and rattled it past a startled Red McCusker.

TALLY WINNER

For the rest of the period play swept from one end to the other with Lions holding the advantage until the final minutes.

Lions tallied the winning marker early in the third session.

Driving into Calgary territory, the Vancouver front line fought a half minute around Tigers' goal. Clint Smith took the puck from the left corner of the ice near the net, and slipped it across to Sammy McAdam, who was partially uncovered. McAdam made no mistake and his sizzling drive went past McCusker before the Tiger goalie could make a stab at it.

Tigers kept up a hot pace in the final minutes of the game, taking advantage of a Vancouver penalty in the last two minutes, but Clark was unbeatable, and the final whistle found him sprawled on the ice with the puck as he stopped a hard drive from Savage.

Calgary — McCusker, goal; Savage, Houbregs, defense; Gainor, centre; O'Neill, Harris, wings. Subs—Blyth, Sutherland, Coupez, Hutton.

Vancouver—Clark, goal; Arnott, Redpath, defense; Smith, centre; Mason, McAdam, wings. Subs—Kirk, Palm, Creasy, McCartney.

Referee—Carl Jacobs, Vancouver

SUMMARY

First period—1, Calgary, Savage, 13:12. Penalties—Arnott, O'Neil.

Second period—2, Vancouver, Kirk, 10:17. Penalties—Sutherland.

Ace Batter Packs Punch For Chicago

CHUCK KLEIN,
National League batting champion, 1933, is big gamble of Chicago's Cubs and around this heavy hitting ball buster Chicago will place a bunch of promising rookies in their drive for the pennant. Genial Mr. Grimm praises pitcher and expects to go places this year.

LOCAL EATON PLAYERS WIN IN BADMINTON

Defeat Southern Invaders to Win Four of Five Trophies

Winning four out of five trophies at stake, Edmonton Eaton's store emerged victors over Southern Alberta representatives to capture high honors at the annual Eaton badminton tournament which was held at Inglewood club yesterday. All five cups for this competition were donated by R. M. Pinfold, formerly of Edmonton store.

It was not until five very successful matches had been run off that Edmonton emerged triumphant on the round and the southern players extended the locals to their utmost.

First match, between the two men's teams resulted in a victory for Calgary when Tom Elliott and Charlie Waldie vanquished the Edmonton team of Earl Dutton and Jack Harvey, 15-8, 15-11. There were some spirited rallies in this game and the losers were always dangerous.

EDMONTON RALLIES

Edmonton rallied in the next match however and the Misses Doris Turner and Viola Shultz took two out of three making the standing for the North and South one trophy each. This match also was hotly contested and the losers, Mrs. Tom Elliott and Mrs. Nell McCreery staged a rousing battle.

Men's singles match between Tom Elliott of Calgary and Roger Harding was a prolonged battle, going full three sets and only resulted in an Edmonton win after many strenuous rallies that called forth the best shots of both contestants.

Edmonton clinched the round by also winning the ladies' singles when Viola Shultz edged out Mrs. Tom Elliott in a match particularly interesting for its spirited rallies and clever returns. The victory went to Edmonton, however, in two games by close margins.

Although Edmonton at this point held three of the five trophies, much interest remained in the mixed doubles match between Tom and Mrs. Elliott, Viola Shultz and R. Harding, the decision eventually went to Edmonton, and with the last trophy at stake.

The contestants and spectators concluded the tournament with a banquet at which the various trophies were presented.

DORATY STARS TO SCORE TWO LEAF MARKERS

Mighty Molecule Again Leads Mates to Cut Deficit to One Game in N.H.L. Play-offs.

By ELMER DULMAGE

DETROIT, Mich., March 27.—Little Ken Doraty, the mite pinchhitter from Regina, who knows all the answers in a playoff series, last night slashed two goals past young Wilf Cude, another youngster from the west, in a torrid National Hockey League championship game and Toronto Maple Leafs got back into the running for the league title with a 3-1 trimuph over Detroit Red Wings.

The mighty molecule, Toronto's hero of the 1933 National Hockey League playoff with Boston, wasn't the outstanding player in a fast, sensational game, but he contributed the decisive blows as he has done before. They know how to stop Doraty in mid-ice, but there seems to be no way to check the 128-pound right winger when he is set for a pass inside a foe's defensive zone.

Staggering from two straight defeats in the five-game series, fighting with their backs to the wall, the Leafs turned in a courageous, if not scientific, effort against the light-weight battalion of Jack Adams, supremely confident they would win this series in three straight games.

NOT LIKE WINNERS

While a hysterical crowd of 14,150 cheered them on, the American division winners carried the play to the Leafs, but they never looked like winning. They bumped into a hard-hitting defence that worked all the harder because King Clancy was unable to play, and the veteran George Hainsworth, overshadowed in the first two series games by the spectacular Cude, got complete revenge with a masterful performance.

Doraty, who broke up the historic N.H.L. final game last spring against Boston with a goal after 104 minutes and 40 seconds of overtime, cast two of the deciding votes in their victory. The tiny blonde from the west, most famous of all "money" players, bagged his first goal late in the first period. He raced inside the Detroit defence zone with Hal Cotton and Joe Primeau. A few feet from Cude he snatched a pass from Cotton and lashed it into the cage.

THEY HIT STRIDE

Far from attempting to defend this slim margin, the Leafs went after more. Not only had Dick Irvin's defending champions hit their stride in a big way, but they had regained all the confidence they lost through the sudden 2-1 overtime defeat by the Red Wings last Thursday and Saturday's humiliating 6-3 downfall. It was late in the second period before Detroit raid netted the tying goal, Lewis scoring on a pass from Johnny Sorrell and Ebbie Goodfellow.

The second period was almost over when the midget again jumped into prominence. Nearly five minutes after Lewis tied the count, Doraty jumped into the Detroit defence area while Thomas was carrying the puck. He raced into the goal mouth, snapped up a perfect pass from Thoms and sailed a pretty back hander over Cude's prostrate figure.

There was nothing the Red Wings could do about these body blows. Around the mid-section, the Leafs had too much power for the border team. They outskated the favorites, outshot them. But it was late in the third session before Toronto definitely made the series a four-game affair.

Then Kilrea broke away from a wild Red Wing assault, skated into the centre zone alone and had only Cude to beat. He skated up to the kid sensation and even then didn't slip the puck past him. Cude blocked the rubber, but it rolled out on Kilrea's stick and the speedy wing man banged it home.

Team For Game With All-Stars Named Tuesday

Eddie Shore, star defenceman of Boston Bruins, and promoter of the National League All-Stars exhibition games here Wednesday and Friday evenings, announced Tuesday morning that the following players will represent the Northwestern Hockey League all-stars in the two games.

MORENZ IS SURE OF HOLDING JOB

CHICAGO, March 27.—The more he thought about it yesterday the more certain Howie Morenz, famous centre of Montreal Canadiens, became that there is a lot of National League hockey left in him.

Monday morning Morenz, who suffered an injury to his right hand in a collision with Harold "Mush" March as the Canadiens were eliminated by Chicago Blackhawks from the Stanley Cup playoffs Sunday night, felt a little uncertain about his future in the rough, tough ice game. Last night, however, everything looked different.

"You can say," Morenz told the Associated Press last night, "that I am good for five—make it four, just to be sure—years more.

"I am not old, only 31, and I will be back there as long as the Canadiens want me."

ATHLETICS BEAT CARDINALS 4-2

BRADENTON, Fla., March 27.—Alton Benton, Connie Mack's recruit from Oklahoma City, pitched nine innings for Athletics yesterday, scattered six Cardinal hits over as many frames and accounted for a 4-2 defeat of the Red Birds.

Other exhibition games: At Fort Lauderdale, Fla., St. Louis (A.) 8; Buffalo (Int.) 7. At Winterhaven, Fla., Cincinnati (N.) 12; Philadelphia (N.) 9. At St. Petersburg, Fla., Boston (A.) 1; Boston (N.) 9.

He Appears In Shore's Starry Six

fiery thatched pivot of Boston's bruising Bruins, will be seen in action here in two exhibition games, Wednesday and Friday, of this week when Eddie Shore leads his squad of picked players from the National Hockey League against an all-star Northwestern League sextet.

LARGE CROWD CHEERS E.A.C. ON TO FINALS

Layetzke, Watt to Leave Edmonton Tonight for Winnipeg

With a large crowd cheering them from the platform, Edmonton Athletic Club's brilliant sextet entrained last night for Winnipeg, where they will meet the winners of Kenora-Port Arthur playdowns to decide the possessor of the Abbott cup and Western Canada junior hockey honors. The first of a two-game total-goals series is set for Thursday and the second on Saturday night.

With the exceptions of Fred Layetzke, brilliant goaler, and Gordon Watt, clever defencemen, all of the E.A.C. squad left last night with a number of supporters accompanying them. Layetzke is suffering from illness and he and Watt will leave tonight, it is thought. Both of these stars will be in action, it is assured for Thursday night.

Edmonton A.C. take with them an impressive goal-getting record and they are expected to go a long way in this series. Should they take the western series, they will advance to the dominion finals.

Ten Applications Needed To Obtain Rate To Winnipeg

With 90 applications for the special rate of $18.05 to Winnipeg and return from Edmonton to see Edmonton Athletic Club battle for Western Canada junior hockey honors being made, there remains only 10 more to complete the necessary total of 100. There still remains two days in which to obtain this rate and it is expected the 100 mark will be reached before that time.

Applications may be made at Williamson and Mills' sporting goods store or at Mike's Newsstand.

Edmonton A. C. play in Winnipeg on Thursday and Saturday nights of this week.

STARRY PUCKSTERS READY FOR GAMES

Shore's Sextet Arrives Here for Tilts on Wednesday and Friday

With nine players now in the city ready to don their hockey outfits for a workout this afternoon, preparations have been completed for the staging of two big exhibition games here on Wednesday and Friday nights when Eddie Shore's National leaguers meet a selected team from the Northwestern Professional Hockey league. Both games are due to start at 8.30 p.m. each night. The seat sale opens in Mike's news stand today.

"All of the boys are here now and they are in great shape," Shore told the Bulletin early today. "We will have two fine games and I, for one at least, will be glad to have this opportunity of getting out in front of Edmonton fans and performing for them once more.

"Don't make any mistake about it we'll all be playing at our best—trying our hardest to put over a victory—and I hope that the fans will be well pleased with the exhibitions."

Thompson, Shore, Beattie and O'Neill are with the Boston Bruins; Art Chapman is the regular centreiceman for the New York Americans, while Dutton, Martin and Conn also play on that club. Paul Runge is a member of the Montreal Maroons.

Gordon Williamson will referee.

GLENORA CLUB PLANS OPENING

Tennis will get off to a good start this summer at the Glenora Tennis club. Improvements are being put into effect and the courts are being resurfaced.

The club has obtained the services of a tennis professional in the person of N. B. Radford, the Edmonton Badminton club's pro. Radford has had a brilliant tennis career in British Columbia and has been chosen many times to represent Victoria and Vancouver in the Pacific North-West tournaments. He has won several B. C. titles and last season teamed with R. Hocking, fifth ranking player in Canada, to take several doubles titles on the coast.

In England Radford played county tennis for Corwall and was ranked first on their team, and also playing for and winning the Lord St. Levan cup at Plymouth, and the Torbay Country club cup, losing to Jiro Satoh in the Torquay tournament.

Tennis enthusiasts in Edmonton are looking forward to a really good season. The provincial tournament is to be held here this year and if association plans materialize it is entirely probable that this tournament will be the most interesting ever held in the province.

Enquiries from prospective members are requested to communicate with Mr. H. L. McKinney, secretary, at the Dominion bank.

PEDEN-PARTNER LEAD BIKE RACE

PITTSBURGH, March 27.—Jules Audy of Montreal and Torchy Peden of Victoria, B.C., took a one-lap lead over 10 other teams as the bike riders went into the second night of an international six-day bicycle race.

Two of the riders locked handlebars and spilled during the racing this afternoon but no one was hurt. The standing at 9:30 p.m.:

MORE WAYS OF LOSING A HOLE

If the Rules of Golf were thoroughly understood and as strictly applied many a golfer would elminate himself from competition. Monday's article summarized some of the many ways in which a golfer may forfeit a hole in match play. There are yet many others. They continue.

The player who plays a stroke while his ball is moving loses the hole except in the case of a ball struck twice, a ball falling off the tee and a ball moving in water. If the ball only begins to move while the player is making his forward or backward swing, however, he escapes this penalty but comes under Rule 12 or 28 which provide one stroke penalty if ball moves after club is grounded; if ball moves after a loose impediment lying within one club length through the green has been touched; if player's ball is accidentally moved by the player's side in searching for it or, when the ball is on the putting green, it moves after any loose impediment lying within six inches has been touched or moved by the player's side;

A player loses the hole if, before striking at his ball in play, he improves the position of his ball by moving, bending or breaking anything fixed or growing except (1) so far as is necessary to permit him fairly to take his stance in addressing the ball or (2) in making his forward or backward swing. Note the amendment to this rule—the player now must not "improve the position of his ball." He is only permitted to ground his club lightly and may not press it on the ground.

If the players' ball strikes or is stopped by an opponent or his caddy or his clubs the opponent loses the hole except as otherwise provided in the rules;

The player loses the hole if his ball strike himself, his partner or either caddies or fore-caddies;

A player who plays his opponent's ball loses the hole unless the opponent then plays player's ball and the penalty is cancelled by the hole being played out with the balls so exchanged. This penalty is also cancelled if the error is due to the opponent or his caddy having given wrong information;

The hole is forfeited if a player plays with a ball belonging to anyone outside the match unless he discovers his mistake and intimates it to his opponent before the opponent has played his next stroke.

In amending the Rules of Golf the committee has performed a real service by deleting the old Rule 21 which reads: "If a ball be 'lost' except in water, casual water or out of bounds, the player's side shall lose the hole unless it be afterwards discovered that the opponent's ball is also lost, when the hole shall be halved.

That rule being obsolete. Rule 21 is that now governing search for a ball in "fog, bent, bushes, long grass and the like." It provides that only so much thereof may be touched as will enable the player to find his ball. The next section of this rule governing search for a ball completely covered with sand provides that only so much sand may be removed as will enable the player to see the tip of his ball. The ball may be touched without penalty in removing sand to this extent. Breach of this rule incurs loss of the hole.

If a ball is lost, played out of bounds or deemed by the player to be unplayable (except in water hazard or casual water in a hazard) the player must return to the spot from which he played that ball and play his next stroke from as near that spot as possible. The penalty for not doing so is loss of the hole. A provisional ball may only be played before the player or his partner go forward to search for a ball.

A player may not ground his club in a hazard nor may anything be touched or moved in the hazard before he plays his stroke, except as provided in the rules, under penalty of loss of the hole.

There are still more "loss of the hole" penalties. Tomorrow's article will deal with them.

Beats Kimberley To Take Honors; Moncton in Lead

Blueshirts Trounce Coast Sextet 5-0, Advancing Into Allan Cup Finals With East Champs.

FORT WILLIAM, March 27—Fort William Blueshirts last night defeated Kimberley Dynamiters 5-0 to win the Senior Amateur hockey championship of Western Canada and the right to meet the Eastern winners for the Allan Cup. The teams played to a 3-3 tie in the first game in Winnipeg, the Forts winning the round 8-3.

The Forts, rested and more fully recovered from the injuries and bruises received in their final game with the Winnipeg Monarchs, played like their late season form had shown them and at no time in the game were Kimberley really threatening. Forts pressed home their attacks right into the goal mouth and whenever the Dynamiters tried to put on the pressure play the Forts broke dangerously.

The game was very clean and at no time was there any danger of bad feeling breaking out All penalties were for minor offenses and the referees had an easy night. The Forts' kid line of Hughie O'Leary, Ossie Hacquoil and Bill Hogarth accounted for all the goals and dominated the play whenever they were on the ice. The other line and the defense played steady, sure-checking hockey and threatened often but were unable to make the grade. For the Dynamiters, Doug. Kiever, Hugo Mackie, Kozack and Reddick were outstanding. Hornquist had no chance on any of the goals scored against him

Billy Hogarth picked off the Fort's goal on a solo dash when the initial period was five minutes old but despite heavy attacks the blue shirts could add no more before the period ended.

Two goals each in the second and third periods gave the home team their wide margin of victory over the conquerors of Alberta and Saskatchewan champions in their march eastward. Ossie Hasquoil got both the Fort goals in the second, taking a pass from Hogarth for his first and adding his second on a solo dash.

Hogarth got his second goal in the third on a pass from Hacquoil after Hughie O'Leary had banged one home just after the 12-minute mark.

LINEUPS:

Kimberley: Hornquist; Reddick, Kozack; Kiever; P. Kemp, A. Mackie.

Kimberley Subs: H. Mackie, D. Mackie, Botteril.

Fort William: G. Hacquoil; Knowles, McCranor; Hogarth; O. Hacquoil, O'Leary.

Fort Williams Subs: McLeod, Manahan, Houston, McArthur.

Officials: Harry Tuckwell, Fort William; and Carl Kendall, Trail.

SUMMARY:

First Period: 1. Fort William, Hogarth, 5.33. Penalties: Kemp, McCranor, Reddick.

Second Period: 2. Fort William, Hacquoil (Hogarth), 10.52; 3. Fort William, Hacquoil, 14.35. Penalties: A. Mackie (2), Knowles.

Third Period: 4. Fort William, O'Leary (Hogarth, Hacquoil), 12.53; 5. Fort William, Hogarth (Hacquoil), 14.56. Penalties: Kiever, Manahan, Kemp.

Mighty Maritime Hawks Defeat Hamilton 2-0 in First Contest of Eastern Finals.

By A. E. FULFORD

TORONTO, March 27—Moncton's high-flying Hawks went into a two-goal lead in their Eastern Canadian Senior Amateur hockey finals series last night, defeating Hamilton Tigers 2-0 in a fast, hard-fought game.

Held scoreles for two periods, the 1933 Allan Cup winners got both their counters when Hamilton men were serving penalties in a stirring third period packed with brilliant hockey.

Thirty-two seconds after the final frame started "Dud" James, Hawk captain, took a pass from Bill Miller after the latter had drawn the Tiger defence aside, and whipped the puck past Hawse Marsh for the first counter.

Twenty seconds before the game ended Aubrey Webster beat the Hamilton goalie on a rebound from close in after Sam McManus had raced through the whole Tiger team and pounded a blistering shot at Marsh.

The teams met here again Wednesday, the winners in the total-goal series playing Fort William, Western champions for the Allan Cup, the first game will be in Toronto next Saturday night with the second of the two-of-three-series here either Monday or Tuesday.

Lineups

MONCTON—Goal, Foster; defence, Burrage, Gill; centre, McDonald; wings Irvine, Connolly. Subs., McManus, Webster, James, Miller.

HAMILTON—Goal, Marsh; defence, Farrel, Howard; centre, Conick; wings, Bennett, Blake. Subs., Worthy, Fitzgerald, Chisholm, Radke.

KELOWNA CAGERS SEND CHALLENGE

VANCOUVER, March 27.—Kelowna Famous Players, provincial men's senior B basketball champions, have entered a challenge for the British Columbia men's senior A title and will play the winners of the Victoria Blue Ribbons-Vancouver Province series, Walter Hardwick, secretary of the B. C. basketball association, announced last night.

The interior crew will meet the senior A titlists March 30-31, the venue to be decided later.

Kelowna defeated Blue Ribbons earlier in the year when the Canadian champions toured the interior.

Ontario Asks Cricket Formation

HAMILTON, Ont., March 27—The Ontario Cricket Association will approach Premier George S. Henry in his capacity of Minister of Education for the province and ask his co-operation in promotion of junior cricket in Ontario.

The executive of the association, meeting here Saturday, decided on this step after advocating cricket bodies in the west and Montreal district be asked to join in a project to form a Canadian cricket advisory board, or board of control to govern the game in the Dominion.

REDS APPEAR TO BE THREAT FOR PENNANT

Many Changes Peps Up Squad—Look Strong in Training

NOTE—This is another of a series of stories dealing with the 1934 prospects of major league baseball clubs by Alan Gould.

TAMPA, Fla., March 27—If their performances in the grapefruit circuit are a criterion, Cincinnati Reds will not be the push-over of the National league this season.

Under new ownership and management, the Reds have an entirely different outlook in baseball life, as a consequence of which they are showing more hustle and spirit than at any time in recent years.

"It is remarkable what a little more confidence in the future will do for a ball club," says Manager Bob O'Farrell.

GET STRIKEOUT KING

Since O'Farrell took command under the organization headed by Powell Crosley, Jr., as president, and Larry McPhail as general business manager, the principal player changes have involved the purchase of the old strikeout king, Dazzy Vance, from St. Louis, and the acquisition of Tony Piet, second baseman, and Adam Comorsky, outfielder, from Pittsburgh Pirates in exchanges for Red Lucas.

"I look for a real come-back by Paul Derringer, still young and possessed with as much ability as any right-hander in the league." O'Farrel continued. "Silas Johnson, Larry Benton, Benny Frey, Sylvester Johnson, Ray Kolp, Jim Lindsey, Don Brennan, Fred Blake, Keith Frazier, Allyn Stout and Walter Hilher give me plenty of pitching talent."

O'Farrell, in search of all possible hitting strength, will not hesitate to bench himself in favor of the rawboned Ernie (Schnozzle) Lombardi, who atones for his lack of mechanical smoothness behind the plate by his ability to knock the ball to far places. Lombardi, when in the mood, has a cleanup wallop no less potent than that of Chick Hafey, the bespectacled outfielder. Piet, comorsky and Sunny Jim Bottomley, the stylish first baseman, give the Reds a well-balanced attack.

The left side of the infield will be weak unless Mark Koenig, the former Yankee shortstop, and Earl "Sparky" Adams, veteran third baseman, can fill the bill.

HI-School HI-Lights ON SPORT

By CHARLES TODD

This is the last of High-Lights until after the Easter Holidays. Here is a resume of each individual school's accomplishments in the line of sports since New Years.

GARNEAU

This favorite South Side school's greatest accomplishment this spring was probably the winning of the Harris Cup, emblematic of South Side hockey supremacy. Both their junior and senior squads made the playoffs, but neither were able to cop a city title.

The school enjoyed a very successful season of house-league hockey. Claire Hicks' squad defeated the Goulding crew 1-0 to win the divisional championship.

In basketball, the junior girls are tied with Scona for the South Side championship. These schools have each won one play-off game. The final game will be played after the holidays.

EASTWOOD

This East End Institute of learning had none too bright a spring in sports. Their senior hockey team pulled out of the race in mid-season, and the juniors dropped too many games early in their schedule to make a playoff berth.

McDOUGALL COMMERCIA

The students of this school have done great things in the realms of sport. The senior basketball squad successfully beat off no less than five challenges for the Queen Victoria Challenge Cup. The senior girls' trophy was defaulted to this school. The junior squad are the North Side champs and will get a shot at the city title after Easter.

House-league basketball has gone over big. Blanche Belanger's hoopsters are at the top of the heap. The girls play twice a week.

Under the leadership of Morey Rimstad, Andy Maloney and Mac Colville, the senior pucksters downed Garneau to win the senior championship mug.

SOUTH SIDE COMMERCIAL

Junior hockey's top honors went to Commercial when they crushed the Garneau crew. The school is not interested in basketball and seem quite satisfied with having the junior title.

SCONA

No titles fell into the hands of this school. The best they could do was to have their junior pucksters end up in third place. Their junior girls' hoop squad may bring home the bacon if they can take a win from Garneau in the third and deciding game of the South Side playoffs.

TECHNICAL

The sea was pretty rough for the Technicians. Their senior puck chasers ran on the reefs of defeat early in the season and sank. The juniors were in bad shape all year but reached port out of the race.

Crisp Blouses for Spring Suits

Nine-Thirty Special Strikes a Note of Thrift and Economy Interest!

at 9:30

Vogue says a suit deserves three blouses. Certainly you'll want more than one of these little numbers, when you see them! Ginghams and cotton prints in fresh stripes, plaids and dotted effects — ever so clean-looking and gay. Styles have a young-ish air, very becoming, with collars of organdy or bow necklines, and full sleeves. Many colors; sizes 14 to 20. 9:30 SPECIAL .... EACH, 79c
